NATIONS CRUSH BERLIN DEMAND FOR WAR PARITY

Vote Versailles Treaty Must Stand.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—Germany today flatly demanded military parity with the victorious allies but was turned down at the league of nations preparatory disarmament conference over the violent protest of Count von Bernstorff, the Berlin delegate. By its action the commission went on record that the Versailles treaty must stand.

The session was thrown into an uproar after Rene Massigli of France proposed an amendment that any decision concerning the limitation and reduction of armaments adopted at the league's international disarmament conference in 1932 would not release the defeated nations from the strict terms of the Paris peace treaties.

Perpetuates Treaty Clause.

M. Massigli aimed directly at perpetuating the Versailles military clauses, which stripped Germany of a navy and aviation force and which allows her an army of 100,000 men without artillery and tanks.

Seconding the Paris delegate, Lord Cecil of England turned the stipulation over the Washington and London naval treaties by saying:

"Great Britain cannot accept any one interfering with or diminishing the terms of these accords."

Denounced by German.

Count von Bernstorff denounced the embargo in even more scathing terms than those recently used by Maxim Litvinov of Russia.

"We should take stock of the deplorable results of the year's work," he cried. "Perhaps there are certain delegations among us which believe they can offer Germany a project which, instead of leading to real disarmament, merely serves to veil the real status of land armaments and, what is worse, to augment them and at the same time force my government to renew her signature to the permanent clauses of the Versailles treaty.

"I pray you gentlemen to abandon such illusions. You all know the conditions Germany believes indispensable to enable the convention to execute the obligations of other governments toward a disarmed Germany. Germany can only recognize a disarmament convention which brings a just solution and takes account of the security of all the states. Germany will judge the value of the disarmament convention by examining how it realizes the principle of parity and security."

Gasp at Count's Daring.

The room was hushed as the delegates heard the German representative come out openly and boldly for the revision of the Versailles treaty in its most vital clause—armaments—and gasped as Count von Bernstorff dared to tell France that Germany duly aims at military parity with the victors.

Sen. de Marinis of Italy tried to relieve the tension at the same time by supporting Germany's claim.

M. Massigli lost no time in nailing the German statement.

"In respect to the existing treaties, especially the military clauses, the Versailles treaty constitutes a precious honor for France," he shouted.

Von Bernstorff Protests.

Count von Bernstorff again arose and addressing Lord Cecil in English, said:

"Did you or did you not limit naval material directly and refuse to limit land war material directly, and did you refuse to touch the question of armed reserves? Reduction of land armaments has been sacrificed for the apparent limitation of naval armaments."

The delegates of the 31 nations impatiently awaited the words of American Ambassador Hugh R. Gibson as he arose to present America's attitude toward the treaty which the Washington senate rejected.

"The United States signed the naval treaties of Washington and London and will not permit them being placed under discussion," the American delegate declared, omitting any mention of the Versailles treaty.

The French proposal was adopted by a vote of 12 to 6, Germany, Turkey, Italy, Russia and Bulgaria voting against it.

Relief From Cold Promised Today

ZERO EXPECTED THIS MORNING, THEN WARMER

More Snow Is Seen for Tomorrow.

Relief from the cold wave, which has gripped Chicago and the middle west and spread low temperatures over areas of the country as far south as the gulf of Mexico, was predicted for late this afternoon by the government weather bureau last night.

Although temperatures early this morning were expected to strike zero in the city and possibly 4 to 5 below in the western suburbs, Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said he expected that a shift of the wind to the southwest this afternoon would bring the mercury up to 18 or 20 degrees above. The rise may continue tomorrow, he said, boosting the mercury to 25 and possibly 30 degrees. Indications are for snow tomorrow.

The abnormal cold wave which has been general during the last few days reached into all sections of the country, causing frosts in parts of Florida, heavy snows and severe temperatures in the west, and unseasonable conditions in the east. In Manitoba, temperatures ranged from 10 to 16 degrees below zero.

Three Deaths Reported.

The wintry blast yesterday gave Chicago and the middle west one of the coldest Thanksgivings in recent years. Three fatalities, two due to exposure, and one to heart disease aggravated by the cold, were reported in the Chicago area. During the early morning the mercury skidded down to 3 above for the official minimum, and rose to 14 degrees at 2 p. m. as the maximum, giving a mean temperature of 8 above. The normal mean temperature for this time of year is 35 degrees.

The cold weather victims were Charles Donnelly, 27 years old, 2140 Fremont street; William Little, 63 years old, 572 South Hawthorne avenue, Elmhurst, a retired carpenter, and an unidentified man, about 55 years old. Donnelly was found dead in an alley in the rear of 415 South Halstead street, and the unidentified man in the rear of 946 West Adams street. Both deaths were attributed to exposure.

Little collapsed on the sidewalk near the home of H. G. Wood, 104 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, where he had been a holiday guest. Heart disease, superinduced by the cold, was blamed.

Fire Routs Two Families.

Numerous fires occurred, keeping the fire department busy. At 1352 West 61st street two colored families were driven to the street by a blaze which originated in a defective furnace. The damage was small.

Shelter agencies were taxed to capacity by homeless men. The Wrigley shelter at 509 North Union avenue, housed 1,691 men yesterday, while the Tower Town shelter in the old Criminal court building gave shelter to 700. The Warren avenue, Des Plaines street, and Wabash avenue police stations sheltered several hundred derelicts. Other stations throughout the city took in scores.

3 Above Zero at Peoria.

At Peoria a minimum of 3 degrees above zero was reported yesterday. The Illinois river was frozen over. Not for many years has the river been frozen so early in the winter.

At Quincy there was snow at intervals, making a white Thanksgiving. The cold was less severe, however, the mercury standing at 18 above.

Indianapolis shivered in a temperature of 1 degree above zero, making it the coldest Thanksgiving day in the history of the city. Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, Mich., felt the sting of 1 degree above zero, with a 50 mile gale and snow. Hundreds of cars were stranded temporarily on highways. The snowfall was extremely heavy near Valparaiso.

Snaps Greta Garbo Taking Sun Bath; Big Hue and Cry

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Greta Garbo, Swedish film star, has asked her movie employers to ferret out a photographer who stepped through the hedge surrounding her Santa Monica yard and snapped Greta taking a sunbath and wearing only a pair of shorts. The Swedish star has consistently refused to permit cameramen to snap her or reporters to interview her. And now, above all things, Greta wants to find that photographer and secure his plate.

Home? Give Us Our Jail! Says Alimony Club

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Seventy-five residents of alimony row rose from an unhurried, peaceful hour yesterday at the county jail's festive board, filled with roast goose and other Thanksgiving delicacies. Then they set about to meditate upon their freedom from domesticity.

There were no bemoanings of "the kind of meal my wife used to cook." The worries of providing for an ex-wife and children, in spite of "not being able to get a job to pay alimony" were forgotten history. There wasn't a thing to worry the alimony club, unless it be the approaching termination of a six months' "vacation."

"Been here two weeks. Very nice. Six months to go," remarked Joe Sakuta, 1620 North Crawford avenue. "First vacation in seven or eight years. You get a good dinner here, kind you'd get for $1 or $1.50 on the outside."

He Has no Worries Now.

"Nice around here," observed William Mueller, 2034 West Austin avenue, a bricklayer. "Three squares a day and a good bed. Don't have to worry. I've been here four months and I hope my wife puts me right back when I get out."

John Gerchas, 1510 48th court, Cicero, a carpenter, worked twenty-three years rearing a family of five children, and now the children are old enough to work his wife "didn't want him any more," he explained.

"We never had trouble until the children got grown up," said Gerchas. "I had to spend a lot of time in the basement. But a wife fixes herself when she puts a man in jail. She can't get any money out of him."

The trouble is with the lawyers," Mueller broke in. "They tell women they'll get the money. That's where the racket comes in."

Mr. Kramer Speaks His Mind.

"Either strangers, lawyers, or mothers-in-law are to blame for us being here," added R. H. Kramer, 6023 North Talman avenue, who is running for president of the alimony club.

"The women are all right but they let attorneys interfere," continued Kramer. "Attorneys tell them a lot of stuff. It's the woman who pays in this alimony business. Most folks think the man does, but it's really the woman. She doesn't get any money. We get a lot of good times in here. It's peaceful like. It's like a big job we all do for six months, then go away again and do another. We have the run of the place and don't have to work unless we want to."

"Yeh, I'd rather be here than home if I used to be, and have to fight with my wife," declared Joe Gombler, 4344 Winthrop avenue, a hotel man who joined the club last Monday on account of $1,675 back alimony.

"I had the dearest little wife in the world if she had only checked her temper," put in Ed Kennealy, 3234 Laflin street, who has $5,000 back alimony to think about. "My wife didn't bother me for five years, then she took a sudden interest for some reason or other."

Just Among Clubmen.

The talk shifted to reminiscences of the courtroom. Said one to another: "My wife puts up a cry in front of the judge and so he says: 'Alright, you, go downstairs if you can't pay.' And then she turns around and laughs at me."

"Our wives had fine dresses and all kinds of frills," said another member. "Then they put on their oldest duds that look like rags and go down to the judge and cry for alimony."

ANOTHER—"And they walk down the courthouse hall like as if they were going to a picnic, teheeing and giggling."

ANOTHER—"But they're happy, and we're happy."

Will H. Hays and Indiana Woman Wed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Will H. Hays, former postmaster general and now so-called czar of the movies, was married here this evening to Mrs. Jessie Herron Stutesman.

There was no Hollywood flavor about the wedding. It was unheralded and took place quietly at the homs of the bride's brother, Col. Charles D. Herron, in Bethesda, Washington suburb. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Hays was postmaster general under President Harding, resigning in March, 1922, after a year's service, to become president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc. He was an ex-chairman of the Republican national committee.

Both Prominent in Indiana.

For Mr. Hays this is a second marriage. He married Miss Helen Louise Thomas of Crawfordsville, Ind., in 1902. They were later divorced.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Parke Herron of Crawfordsville, Ind. Her father was the late Capt. William P. Herron of the 72d regiment of Indiana volunteers in the civil war. Capt. Herron for forty years was president of the First National bank at Crawfordsville.

Widow of a Diplomat.

Mrs. Hays was the widow of James F. Stutesman, former United States minister to Bolivia and prominent in Indiana social and political life, who died in 1919. She has lived with her mother at Crawfordsville and with her brother, Maj. Frederick L. Herron of New York City. Mr. and Mrs. Hays left this evening for the west.

Boy Aviator Saves Life by 2 Mile Leap

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A daring parachute leap 10,000 feet in the air today saved the life of Gerald Nettleton, 20 year old aviator, as he was only forty miles from his goal in an attempt to set a new junior transcontinental flight record. Nettleton is from Toledo, O.

Dense fog and "frozen" instruments caused Nettleton to abandon his plane. He drifted gently to earth in Pine Valley while the plane crashed about a mile from where its pilot landed. Except for being rain soaked and severely cold, young Nettleton escaped unhurt. He landed near a ranch house a quarter of a mile from the state highway.

Fog Blinds Him.

"The weather was so 'soupy'—rain, fog, and snow—I couldn't see ten feet," Nettleton said after being brought into San Diego tonight. "The instruments 'froze' and since I couldn't see there was only one thing to do and that was to jump. I fought the weather as long as I dared. I hated to leap, but that was my only alternative. So I leveled the plane off, cut the switch, closed the throttle and rolled out the door.

"The last I saw of the plane it was floating off gently. I'd fallen for several minutes and did not see the earth until less than 200 feet from it. That was how bad the weather was.

"I was close to a ranch house and made my way there. The rancher took me into Pine Valley to a telephone. Later I went back to the ranch house and had a big Thanksgiving dinner with the rancher and his family. The rancher then brought me into San Diego.

No Fault of Plane.

"The motor was functioning perfectly and it was through no fault of the plane that I balled out. The weather was just too much.

"Jumping wasn't such a hard job. I knew it was all I could do. I fell until I was about 300 feet from the plane and then yanked the rip cord. It opened so suddenly it was over before I hardly realized it."

Young Nettleton's leap probably made him the youngest member of the "Caterpillar club" of aviators who have used parachutes to save their lives.

The young flyer also revealed it was a year ago last Thanksgiving day when he was a dinner guest at the place where the rancher took him to dinner today.

"I thought I was in familiar territory as I neared the earth," Nettleton said.

GUNMEN KIDNAP AND ROB COUPLE ON GOLD COAST

Dr. and Mrs. David Hill Danek, 65 East Oak street, were held up by two gunmen early this morning as they stopped their automobile in front of their home. The bandits compelled them to drive to Dearborn and Oak streets, where they took jewelry valued at $1,800 and $60 in cash.

Dr. Danek is a dentist with offices at 108 North State street. His wife is a former president of the Woman's Protective association.

On the ride to Dearborn and Oak streets Dr. Danek sat beside his wife in the front seat and the bandits in the rear trained their guns on both. At the intersection one of the robbers took a $750 diamond ring, a $150 stickpin, and $40 in cash from Dr. Danek. Mrs. Danek gave up a $350 diamond necklace, a $350 ring, a $200 bar pin, and $20 in cash. She saved a $900 ring by leaving it in the finger of a glove which she stripped from her hand.

Buying for Christmas Needs Is a Part of Normal Buying

Friday after Thanksgiving—this is the day that launches in earnest the buying rush for Christmas. Today, if past records can be relied upon and weather permitting, the streets should be alive and the stores crowded with Christmas shoppers. It's in the air. The holiday season is at hand.

Buying for Christmas needs has long been a regular part of normal buying. Manufacturers and retailers spend months in preparation for the buying rush that takes place regularly at this time of year. Factories are kept running and salespeople retained in their jobs on the supposition that business will proceed as usual.

Because the Christmas prospects for a relatively small part of the population cannot this year be very bright is a good reason why the much greater percentage should not lower their Christmas standards. Reduced buying during the next few weeks will slow down business further and throw more people out of work. Normal buying, on the other hand, will speed up business, create jobs, and make it possible for many to have a Christmas who won't have it if buying proceeds at a subnormal rate.

Everybody who is able should resolve now to resume normal buying for normal needs.

THREE JURISTS TO HEAR FACTS ON CONVICTIONS

Prisoners' Appeal Starts Probe.

Saltis Surrenders

Joe Saltis, public enemy sought on a vagrancy charge surrendered yesterday to Judge John H. Lyle and Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne and gave $10,000 bond for his appearance in court on Tuesday. Saltis, who has been in hiding in a Wisconsin woods retreat for several months, was drawn back to Chicago by a desire to see his son, Emil, 14 years old, who was critically injured when struck by an automobile on Wednesday.

The judicial conduct of Municipal Judge John H. Lyle of the Felony court in at least two cases will be reviewed today by a court of inquiry composed of three Criminal court judges, headed by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court. The hearing is scheduled to be held at 11 o'clock in the Criminal court building.

Chief Justice McGoorty and Judges Harry Fisher and Philip Finnegan will sit en banc to review the judicial conduct of Judge Lyle in sending two alleged gunmen to the Bridewell. The inquiry is due to the fact that both Judge Finnegan and Judge Fisher have before them writs of habeas corpus to free men sentenced by Judge Lyle, and they decided to invite Judge McGoorty to sit with them in the court of inquiry.

Appeals to Judge Fisher.

The case of Dominick Brancato, alleged Capone henchman, is one of those involved in the inquiry. Brancato appealed to Judge Fisher after a six months' vagrancy sentence was imposed upon him by Judge Lyle.

In his petition for a writ of habeas corpus Brancato alleged that his constitutional rights were denied by Judge Lyle. He charged that he was refused a jury trial and denied a change of venue and the right to be represented by counsel. It was announced that Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis from the Felony court and Eddie Carpenter, the clerk of that court, will be called as witnesses to prove these allegations. It is charged that the records of the Felony court do not correspond with the facts.

Indicted on Gun Charge.

Brancato and Dominick Bello were arrested in September while in an automobile in front of the downtown office of Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, and Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles Rathbun. Loaded revolvers were found in the automobile. Brancato was indicted on the gun toting charge, but is still waiting for his trial to be started in the Criminal court.

Brancato, when he was taken before Judge Lyle last week on a vagrancy warrant, asked for a change of venue. When he failed to produce the necessary legal petition he was ordered to trial, convicted within 30 minutes and sent on his way to the Bridewell.

Sentenced as Gun Toter.

The case before Judge Finnegan involves the liberty of George McGinnis, who was sentenced on Nov. 3 by Judge Lyle to one year in the Bridewell and fined $300, the maximum punishment for carrying concealed weapons. McGinnis also was hustled off to the Bridewell to start serving his sentence.

In the petition for a writ of habeas corpus it was charged that Judge Lyle refused to allow bail to McGinnis pending appeal of his trial in Judge Lyle's court. It also was charged by Attorney John B. Fruchtl that Judge Lyle will not sign a bill of exceptions so that an appeal can be made to the Appellate court. The petition alleges that the assistant state's attorney in the case says that the bill of exceptions truly states what occurred at the trial, but that despite this Judge Lyle, without giving any reason, refuses to sign the documents necessary to an appeal.

Oppose Lyle's Methods.

Some of the Criminal court judges have openly expressed themselves as opposed to Judge Lyle's method of dealing with gangsters. Judge Lyle has replied by charging from the bench that Judge Joseph B. David and another Criminal court judge have turned the "mad dogs" [referring to gangsters] on the streets without sufficient bond.

Chief Justice McGoorty refused to prophesy yesterday what the court of inquiry will do about the situation. He refused to say whether the court will be able to do more than review Judge Lyle's actions in the two specific cases, or go into a general investigation of the judge's operations in his war on gangsters.

GEORGE RODDY, SOAP OFFICIAL, KILLED BY AUTO

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Garbed in evening clothes, his pockets stuffed with paper favors from the Thanksgiving party he had attended, George A. Roddy, 39 years old, superintendent of the plant of the Palmolive-Peet company, was killed on St. Paul avenue near 18th street shortly after daylight today by an automobile driven by Edgar Perry, assistant engineer of the Geuder, Paeschke & Frey company.

It was not indicated yesterday whether Judge Lyle would be invited to testify at the hearing or even be asked to be present. Under ordinary circumstances it would be the duty of the state's attorney's office to defend the proceedings in Judge Lyle's court and oppose the release of any criminal duly incarcerated.

SALTIS SURRENDERS

Joe Saltis, public enemy, once tried for the murder of John [Milters] Foley, a rival beer runner, returned from his hideout in Wisconsin yesterday and surrendered to Judge Lyle and Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne. Saltis was one of those named in the vagrancy warrants issued some weeks ago by Judge Lyle.

The former gang leader who in 1929 dodged the authorities for more than 200 days before surrendering to serve a 60 day sentence in the Bridewell for gun carrying, was drawn from his north woods retreat near Winter, Wis., by a desire to visit his son, Emil, 14 years old, who was seriously injured Wednesday night when struck by an automobile at 57th street and Kedzie avenue. The son may die.

The usual gangster precautions to insure status quo were taken by Saltis before venturing into the city. He opened pour-parlers with the authorities. He said he was going to be here but a short time and that his presence was unavoidable. It was agreed that he would give a $10,000 bond on the vagrancy charge.

Attorney Opens Negotiations.

Attorney James Burke conducted Saltis' negotiations. He telephoned Assistant State's Attorney Ditchburne that Saltis was returning to the city. Mr. Ditchburne in turn telephoned to Judge Lyle, and it was arranged for Saltis to surrender at the Englewood police station. Judge Lyle left a Thanksgiving dinner to accept the $10,000 bond, which was posted by William Soltes, 2701 West 51st street, a butcher.

"I am impressed with the humanitarian side of the judge," Saltis was quoted as saying. Reporters acquainted with Saltis expressed surprise, since when he left Chicago a year ago his vocabulary was limited to one syllable words.

Saltis was ordered to appear in Judge Lyle's court on Tuesday. If at that time his son's condition is still serious, the case will be continued, it was said.

Although the authorities in handling Saltis' case departed from the usual procedure with public enemies, assurance was given that he will be accorded no more consideration than George [Bugs] Moran, Terry Druggan, George [Red] Barker, and others when he appears in court.

Greeted by Wife at Hospital.

Saltis was greeted at the Holy Cross hospital by his wife, Anna, who had been virtually widowed by the former gangster's desire to hide from the police and also, it is reported, from opposing gunmen. Saltis' wife lives with their children at 5654 South Albany avenue.

Physicians at the hospital said that the Saltis boy's skull may be fractured. He is unconscious. He was struck by an automobile driven by M. J. Morris, 7121 South Francisco avenue.

Steve Oswald, 29 years old, 6805 South Artesian avenue, a former chauffeur for Saltis, was arrested yesterday by Lieut. Walter Storms in a raid on a flat at 2449 West 61st street. Oswald, who has been a fugitive since forfeiting a $50,000 bond set by the State Supreme court, will be started at once to the penitentiary to start serving a one year to life sentence for burglary.

Last night Oswald was viewed by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph N. Gardner, 4803 Greenwood avenue, who were held up with Mr. and Mrs. George E. Crandell in front of the Crandell home at 179 Lake Shore drive on Oct. 22. The Gardners failed to identify Oswald as one of the robbers. He will be viewed by the Crandells today. The bandits took jewelry valued at $64,800 in the holdup.

While State's Attorney Swanson was rejoicing over the day's developments, James [Fur] Sammons and George [Red] Barker, public enemies, were reported to be in mournful moods for a Thanksgiving day. Both are prisoners in Joliet penitentiary as a result of a campaign started by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court to investigate the manner in which they were paroled.

Sammons, who was returned to prison on Wednesday, will be finger printed and measured and examined by the penitentiary psychiatrist and medical experts today, and then assigned to one of the factories to work. He has 30 years to serve on a 50 year term for murder, according to a ruling by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom.

Frank Foster to Go on Trial Today for Murder of Lingle

Frank Foster, gunman associated with the now nearly defunct Zuta-Aiello-Moran gang, will be placed on trial this morning before a jury in the Criminal court of Judge George Fred Rush, accused of the murder of Alfred Lingle.

The state, it is known, will not contend that Foster fired the single shot which killed Lingle, but will charge that the defendant was an accessory to the crime and possesses guilty knowledge of the persons who committed it and their motive. This, under the law as interpreted by the state, makes Foster as guilty as the assassin himself.

Start Jury Selection Today.

The selection of a jury to try Foster will commence this morning, after the disposition of preliminary motions, it was announced. The prosecution will be in charge of Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney and a member of the law firm regularly retained by THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Rathbun will be assisted by James E. McShane, also appointed an assistant state's attorney in connection with the Lingle investigation.

Foster will be defended by Harold Levy, Emmett Byrne and Everett Jennings.

The defendant was captured in Los Angeles last July 1 by detectives from the staff of Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson. On the following day witnesses were taken before the Cook county grand jury and an indictment was returned charging Foster with murder.

Bundesen Grand Jury Witness.

The witnesses before the jury included Coroner Bundesen, who directed the investigation of the revolver which was thrown away by the Lingle slayer, and Peter Von Frantzius, sporting goods dealer, who has sold many guns to gangsters and who is said to have testified that Foster entered into the purchase of the gun in the Lingle case.

Prosecutor Rathbun declined to discuss the nature of the state's testimony against Foster, stating that it would not be revealed until the witnesses take the stand in court.

After being indicted, Foster employed lawyers in Los Angeles to fight his extradition to Chicago, and it was only after two weeks of legal skirmishing in California that the gangster finally was put aboard a train in the custody of Investigator Roche's detectives.

Foster, in resisting extradition, asserted that on the day of the Lingle murder he was not in Chicago. He testified that he left Chicago on June 6 or June 7, going to Santa Fe, N. M. Lingle was killed on June 9.

Mr. Rathbun had prepared for this claim, however, and two witnesses from Chicago testified at the hearing that they had seen Foster in the lobby of the St. Clair hotel on June 11.

SUGGESTS EXTRA SENATE SESSION ON WORLD COURT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Calling of a special session of the senate alone, immediately after March 4 for consideration of the revised world court protocol, was advocated today by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.]. It was Senator Jones' opinion that by such a procedure it would be possible to dispose of the matter without interfering with the work of the short session and without having to delay action until the next regular session, a year hence. Senator Jones concurred with the view of other administration leaders and of President Hoover that there should be no special session of the two houses of congress.

SWANSON PLANS PARLEY TO MAP POLICE INQUIRY

Will Meet McGoorty to Decide on Jury.

State's Attorney Swanson will confer with Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court on the advisibility of following the recommendation of the November grand jury that a special grand jury be called in January to investigate the police department. The prosecutor yesterday said that he is never in favor of special grand juries if the evidence can be gathered beforehand and logically be presented to a regular jury.

"However, in view of the grand jury report and the charge that corruptness exists in the police department, a special jury may be advisable. I will confer with Judge McGoorty on the suoject before taking any definite stand."

May Put Mueller to Work.

The prosecutor said that he will also confer with Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, who had charge of the presentation of the evidence to the last jury. He indicated that he may set Mueller to work with a staff of assistants to gather evidence during the coming month for presentation to the January jury, whether it be a special or the regular grand jury.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock defended the department against the grand jury onslaught. In reference to the charge that the morale of the department is low the commissioner called attention to his policy of handing out extra compensation of $300 where he believes such rewards merited.

"Next Saturday I will have ready the record of my five months as acting commissioner," he said. "This will show that the department is working better now than at any time during the last seven years. Records will also show that there is a better morale."

In reply to the jury charge that the department should be reorganized and cleaned up the acting commissioner said:

"I have been working to build up the police department ever since I stepped in as acting commissioner last June. It is a slow job to build the proper kind of a department and no human can do it in less than seven years. I am building surely and although everything cannot be done in five months I have brought about a number of improvements in that period."

Some Policemen Prosecuted.

The commissioner called attention to the fact that he has caught some policemen taking money and has prosecuted them. He says he is closing in on other members of the department. To the charge that the department is under the domination of unscrupulous politicians and their criminal associates he said:

"No one has had any influence with the department since I have been at its head. No racketeer, politician or criminal has had anything to do with the department or had any influence. If they had had influence the record of the last five months could not have been accomplished."

Maj. Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, in commenting on the grand jury report, said that the commission will show no hesitancy in removing from the force any policeman who is grafting.

"Any charges of grafting or of other offenses that are brought to our attention will be investigated immediately," he said. "Most of the cases that have been before the commission have involved petty violations of the police department rules and seldom any of the higher ranking men of the department. But the commission is ready to act promptly on any case, no matter whom it involves.

"I am not satisfied, nor are the other members of the commission with the method by which the efficiency rating is computed for members of the department who are seeking promotion. We are now working on a system to make the rating method a scientific and fair one which will eliminate any chance for political preferment to be shown."

CERMAK SEEKS ECONOMY PLEDGE IN MAYORAL RACE

Wants Commission to Eliminate Waste.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A proposal by A. J. Cermak, Democratic county chairman and president of the county board, that all candidates for mayor should pledge themselves—if elected—to appoint a nonpartisan, nonpolitical commission to make a survey of the activities and expenditures of the city government in order to apply business methods and stop waste at the city hall raised the curtain yesterday for the Democratic mayoralty primaries.

Mr. Cermak, who for months has been rated among the possible or probable candidates, has not announced whether he will run or not, and the outlook is that the Democrats will take no action on candidacies for a couple of weeks or longer, to get the new patronage distribution out of the way.

Wants Waste Eliminated.

Meanwhile, Mr. Cermak laid down his views on a pledge for waste elimination by candidates:

"I propose," said Mr. Cermak, "that all candidates for mayor should pledge themselves to the appointment of a commission to survey the city government, its activities and expenditures. The members should be nominated by outstanding civic organizations like the association of commerce, the Western Society of Engineers, and others of that type. It should be understood that these organizations will act independently in recommending men for appointment to the commission and that the candidate, if elected, will subscribe to these nominations.

"There can be no doubt in the minds of people familiar with the city government that millions of dollars are wasted every year. There are duplications of service, countless unnecessary services, thousand of jobs which could be eliminated.

"Millions could be saved. The police force could be doubled by expending for police purposes some of the money saved.

Includes Schools in Plan.

"The schools should also come under the plan for a general survey, and here, too, great savings could be effected. Municipal government must be political, but there is no reason why it should not also be operated under business methods.

"One of the greatest wastes in the present city government is the employment of inspectors. There are hundreds of inspectors and many, perhaps the majority, of these could be abolished. Any citizen building a home knows of the horde of inspectors who come to his place for inspection of trivial things. If all the city inspectors who go to a new building were to go at once the owner would hesitate to let them in for fear they intended to take away the building.

Should Pledge Their Support.

"The candidates for mayor should pledge themselves first to appoint such a commission as I have described. They should pledge themselves also to support the commission with appropriations. Competent engineers, recommended by the engineering societies, should make the survey, and they must be well paid.

"Finally, the candidates for mayor should pledge themselves to carry out the recommendations of the commission."

Mr. Cermak said also that in his annual message to the county board, he will urge that the citizens advisory commission on public expenditures, which he appointed some time ago, should coöperate with the members of the Strawn citizens' committee to devise legislation which will consolidate the operations and expenditures of the 410 local governing bodies in Cook county.

Some of the many separate taxing bodies, through their statutatory rights to levy taxes, are spending more money than they need, Cermak maintains, while other governments, which are limited in their tax assessments are without sufficient funds to operate."

Monday is inauguration day for some of the newly elected Democrats and the patronage distribution has the main call. Headquarters are daily swarming with job hunters, and the chiefs say mayoralty affairs will be held in abeyance a couple of weeks or longer while the jobs are allotted.

A plethora of Democratic booms for mayor is on the list of possibilities. The woods are full of candidates and the ice boxes are suffed with lightning rods.

The Democratic situation appears to remain where it was at the close of the bathhouse convocation at Hot Springs, Ark., at which nothing was done on mayoralty candidacies. The leaders say they look for a good fight at the primaries, and that rival groups may exchange swats 1 February of a sort that will not, perhaps, keep them from being together in the April election. The Republicans for months have been looking for a crack in the Democratic party, but so far what discord there is has not caused any open ruptures.

List of Possibilities.

Col. A. A. Sprague, Carter H. Harrison, Mr. Cermak, Coroner H. N. Bundesen, Recorder Clayton F. Smith, Ald. John S. Clark, Judge Henry Horner, Michael Igoe, Judge John P. McGoorty, Judge Joseph Sabath, Judge Denis E. Sullivan, and William L. O'Connell.

Friends of Col. Sprague have been active in his behalf for some time, and of late the old Harrison group has been whooping it up for Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago.

Republicans Looking Around.

On the Republican side, the Brundage and Deneen groups are still looking around for a candidate to back in the primaries. Informal conferences have been held. One emissary is said to have called on Col. Noble B. Judah and Charles A. McCulloch and to have brought back word that neither will run. Some are seeking to bring Warren Wright, head of the Lincoln park board, into the running. Others are talking of George W. Dixon, a member of Lincoln park board.

LAST OF 3 BANK GUARD SLAYERS DIES IN CHAIR

Leon Brown Calm as He Goes to Death.

Leon Brown, Negro slayer of Martin French, colored guard at the Franklin Trust and Savings bank, during an attempted robbery in January of 1929, was electrocuted in the county jail at 12:09 this morning. He displayed little emotion during the hours preceding his execution, but slumped as he was led to the electric chair.

Brown was the last of three Negroes to be executed for the murder of French, who was killed when he offered resistance to the robbers. Brown was to have been electrocuted on Nov. 13, but a last minute stay of execution issued by Judge Charles A. Williams of the Criminal court saved his life.

The other slayers, Leonard Shadlow and Lafon Fisher, were executed some weeks ago. The three evaded the electric chair for nearly two years by appeals to the Supreme court and insanity hearings.

Judge Williams issued his stay Nov. 13 under a misapprehension that Brown's attorneys wanted time to appeal. When he learned the Supreme court had already refused to hear an appeal from an insanity hearing he set the electrocution for this morning.

It's Things Like This Make Village Marshals Cynics

Downey, Idaho, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Marshal Dan Ware listened to pleas of four men that they be given a warm place and finally admitted them to the city jail. That was last night.

This morning Mike Wakeley found the marshal locked in a cell. A hack saw was used to liberate the officer.

The seekers after a warm bed were missing. So was $21 of the marshal's money, and $1,200 worth of merchandise taken from several business houses.

'DIRTY DOG,' SAYS EARL; GETS SLAP FROM LABORITE

Government Defeats Vote of Censure by 65.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Scenes reminiscent of the old days when the Labor party was in the opposition marked tonight's proceedings in the house of commons. While the government won the division on a vote of censure by 299 votes to 234, party spirit ran high and interruptions were frequent. Even ministers were frequently unable to make themselves heard. A climax was reached when C. G. Simmons, Laborite, flipped Lord Winterton, Conservative, in the face with a sheaf of paper during an argument. The debate hinged on the Canadian proposals for empire tariffs.

Minister of the Dominions J. H. Thomas led the fight against the Conservative party's motion of censure, introduced by Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, indicting the government for its failure in the imperial conference.

Speaker Rebukes Thomas.

Mr. Thomas, in a fighting mood, referred to the dominions' preference proposals put forward by Premier Robert B. Bennett of Canada as "humbug." This caused the first scene, a Conservative member demanding the withdrawal of the expression. The uproar continued for several minutes until the speaker mildly rebuked Mr. Thomas.

After a speech by Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, finished after much interruption, the vote on the censure took place. During Mr. Snowden's speech Lord Winterton referred to the chancellor as a "dirty dog." Mr. Simmons walked across the floor and slapped the earl in the face with an order paper.

Earl Wins Apology.

The noble earl took no notice and remained in his seat. After the division the speaker's attention was called to the incident but the speaker declared that he had not seen it. Pressed by Mr. Baldwin, the speaker said that if the incident occurred as stated, it was improper and most insulting to the house. He suggested an explanation and an apology from the offending member. Mr. Simmons then regretted that he had allowed his feelings to get the better of him and apologized, which brought cheers from both sides of the house.

Free fights occurred tonight at a meeting addressed by Lady Cynthia Mosley, daughter of Mary Leiter of Chicago, and other Labor members of parliament in the central hall of Westminster. The meeting was organized by the Commonwealth of India league in support of Indian freedom. Five members of parliament in addition to other speakers were all shouted down by a noisy audience mainly composed of young Indians. During an attack on the speakers the chairman was struck heavily in the stomach and his throat was bruised by one of his Indian assailants.

1930 AUTO TOLL HITS 1,000 MARK; POLICEMAN DIES

The Cook county automobile death toll for 1930 yesterday reached the 1,000 mark. The victim was a policeman, killed crossing a street. The mark was passed in 1929 on Dec. 20. With almost five weeks of the year remaining, Coroner Bundesen predicted that the 1930 toll will come close to equaling the high mark of 1,087 set in 1928. Last year's toll was 1,022. The toll to Nov. 28 last year was 898.

As the 1,000th death was fixed on his records, the coroner presented a platform for motor safety. The suggestions point for alleviation of traffic congestion through wider roads, grade separation, better paving, more policemen for traffic duty and more signal lights.

The coroner also asks for educational campaigns for motorists and pedestrians and stricter enforcement of the motor vehicle laws.

The policeman killed was James Reilly, 50 years old, 5722 South Peoria street. Reilly was en route to his home from the Hyde Park station when he was struck by an automobile while crossing 51st between Federal and Dearborn streets.

He died a few minutes after being taken to the Chicago Lying-in hospital. Witnesses said the driver, Frank Sedlak, 7123 Ingleside avenue, attempted to escape after dragging Reilly from the fender of his car, but was restrained by bystanders. He was held. Reilly had been on the police force 20 years. He leaves a widow and two children.

Anton Spuhaleck, 38 years old, 3760 Adams street, Gary, was killed early this morning when he was struck at 37th and Adams streets in Gary by an automobile driven by Miss Alice Garcia, 27 years old, 1400 Adams street, Gary. According to the police Miss Garcia turned off the lights of her car and fled. She was traced to her home through the automobile license number and was arrested.

Woman of 60 Falls Dead on Michigan Avenue Bus

The police last night were trying to find relatives of an unidentified woman, about 60 years old, who collapsed and died on a bus at Roosevelt road and Michigan boulevard. The woman fell as she was about to alight from the bus. She was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where her death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage. She carried a book with the name "Francis M. Watson" inside the cover.

VISIT TO FAMILY SHOWS GOOD OF GOOD FELLOWS

Happy Thanksgiving One Result of Charity.

This is the story of Albert and Anna F. and their children and of the way they spent Thanksgiving day. The F's are wards this winter of THE TRIBUNE Good Fellows.

A raw west wind was blowing swirls of snow off the roofs of the cottages huddled along their street in the district west of the stockyards. A sign in a basement window, blurred by the frosty pane, announced:

"Curtains Neatly Laundered With in."

Albert, a seemingly sturdy man about 35 years old, came to the door in his Sunday suit of serge. Crowding around him were four tow headed youngsters, bashful but curious.

Flat Is Tidy and Warm.

It was bleak outside, but snug and tidy within. An old fashioned coal stove in the living room radiated heat enough to keep all six rooms of the flat comfortably warm.

The children were munching apples and their mother was in the dining room clearing the table after the Thanksgiving meal. She smiled a little wanly at mention of the window sign.

It had brought her no outside work. Her neighbors did their own washing. But Mrs. F. was hopeful that some day soon a stranger driving by might see the sign and send her work to start the family back to independence.

The husband too was hopeful. A competent, self reliant workman, he had formerly earned $10 a day in a sash and door factory. Recurrence of a boyhood injury had cost him his job; he had undergone two operations, lost his home and had seen one child die of malnutrition.

Family Kept Together.

Nevertheless, with the support of Good Fellows and county aid, the family was together under a warm roof, the children decently clad and progressing in school, and there had been a hearty Thanksgiving dinner of pork roast, fresh vegetables and fruits, and preserves.

The social worker administering the Good Fellow contributions had advised Mr. F. to spend no more carfare on trips to the free employment agency downtown, since no jobs were available there. But a foreman in the nearby railroad shops was his friend and had promised to hire him at the first vacancy.

He talked of his fortunes freely and without self-pity. Of Austrian descent, he had offered himself for enlistment in 1917 when the United States declared war.

He was rejected on account of a hernia suffered years before in a football game. Two years later he and Anna were wed, and with his savings and a $500 gift from his father made the down payment on a cottage in Union avenue, where they set up housekeeping.

Illness Starts Family Troubles.

Work was steady and the children came, one every two years until 1928. Early that year the hernia compelled him to quit his job and go to a hospital. He was convalescing when the fifth child, Rita, was born.

Unfit for hard labor, he could find no work that autumn. Payments on the cottage were long in arrears, and as winter approached the family was ejected from their home. Her relatives helped them through the winter and in the spring an alderman found him a job as night watchman.

It was soon after he began work that the family went one day to a picnic in Washington park, where Rita, the youngest, was seized with convulsions. Her older sisters said she had eaten a cookie picked up from the grass, but the doctors at the county hospital decided, after her death, that the hardships of the winter were the principal cause.

In the fall of 1929 he was laid off. After three months' unemployment he found another job at the wood working trade and worked there until the concern failed.

Wife Forced to Quit Work.

Another winter was approaching and the wife became breadwinner. She found employment in a laundry and there earned $18 a week until approaching motherhood compelled her to stop.

Before the baby, Nicholas, was born, Mrs. F. occupied herself making butterflies, which she hoped to sell.

The butterflies did not sell and the family was facing destitution when the Central Charity bureau, with funds contributed by Good Fellows, took them in charge. Now the F. family is on the road to rehabilitation.

OSLO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—In recognition of his activities in creating the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, today was awarded the Nobel Peace prize for 1929.

At the same time the prize award committee of five appointed by the Norwegian storthing announced the peace award for 1930 had been given Dr. Nathan Soderblom, archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, and pro-chancellor of the University of Upsala since 1914.

Each of the two awards carries a grant of 173,000 kroner [about $48,000]. It is understood here both Mr Kellogg and Dr. Soderblom will arrive in Oslo on Dec. 10 to receive their awards in person.

The peace awards are the first to be made since 1927 when the prize was divided between Ferdinand Buisson of France, and Ludwig Quiddee of Germany. The prize previously had been awarded to four other Americans, Theodore Roosevelt in 1906, Elihu Root in 1912, Woodrow Wilson in 1919, and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes in 1925.

COP IS PREACHER AT OWN MISSION FOR JOBLESS MEN

"Good Will Is Mightier than the Club."

On the police lists he is registered as a sergeant attached to the custodian's office but among the homeless men along West Madison street he is better known as "the missionary cop."

For the last two years, it was discovered yesterday, Sergt. Edward De Vries, who lives at 2624 South Tripp avenue, has been pastor and sponsor of the Trinity Gospel mission, 203 South Halsted street.

At the nightly service he exhorts his charges to follow the path of right. On Saturday nights the mission becomes a soup kitchen and all who enter receive a meal. Average attendance on week nights is 200 and on Saturday 350.

Dinner Bares Cop's Role.

Sergt. De Vries' missionary activity came to light yesterday when, with the coöperation of the Good Deed Children's Aid society, he spread a Thanksgiving feast for the homeless in the society's quarters at 1202 Congress street. The waiting line was long, for 800 were fed between noon and 6 p. m.

Viands were contributed by the Weiss restaurant, Ward Baking company, Grennan Cake company and other food companies of the neighborhood. The sergeant's wife and his daughter, Lorraine, assisted in serving.

Favors Good Will Rule.

"I became interested in missionary work while traveling a beat five years ago," Sergt. De Vries explained. "It seemed to me then and still does that a policeman can better maintain law and order with a hand clasp of good will than with a hand gripping a night stick.

"I used to preach at the missions on my beat. Then I got the idea of opening my own and, with the coöperation of the business men and church people of the district, have kept it going for two years, although the monthly expense is above $350."

THOUSANDS TURN OUT AS CHICAGO SKATING SEASON IS OPENED

Chicago's skating season opened yesterday after shallow park ponds and vacant lot arenas which had been flooded by park employés and firemen became frozen sufficiently to permit skating. One of these areas was in the Midway, where a stretch of depressed parkway at the University of Chicago campus, three blocks long and a block wide, was frozen to a depth of about 3 inches. It was estimated that more than 3,000 skaters used the ice during the afternoon.

Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, said that a number of ponds in north side parks were ready for skating. Testers had reported that the Lincoln park lagoon had frozen only to a depth of one inch and there would have to be at least 6 inches of ice before skating is permitted there. The construction of several large toboggan slides in Lincoln park is contemplated, Mr. Wright said.

George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, announced that 15 of the smaller parks on the south side are being flooded. W. R. James, president of the west parks board, reported the flooding of west side ponds.

CHICAGO'S NEEDY JOIN IN FEAST OF THANKSGIVING

Hundreds of Jobless Get Turkey Dinners.

Aroused to concern for those driven to want because of the depression of the last few months, Chicago agencies and individuals united yesterday in one great effort to provide Thanksgiving cheer for the hungry. It was a day of genuine thanksgiving for food and shelter.

Almost every one had a chance at a piece of roast turkey, goose, chicken, or roast beef, with such trimmings as cranberry sauce, celery, pumpkin pie, potatoes, coffee, and dessert. Shelter houses for the unfortunate provided dinners such as the more fortunate ate in hotels or at their homes. Chicago and Cook county institutions—the jails, infirmaries, and hospitals—in addition to serving a menu that approached the proportions of a feast, saw that every one had a good time.

Women Prisoners Feast.

In the women's quarters at the county jail there was a party attended by the 51 inmates and a 6 months old baby. The women and girls danced to radio music after a special feast served at tables in the quarters. The dinner included goose, cranberry sauce, celery, peas, potatoes, pickles, dressing, raisin bread, pumpkin pie, butter (and lots of it), assorted candies, coffee, apples, and oranges. This was the same menu served to the county jail's population of 1,300.

The women added a holiday touch to their dinner table with a bouquet of paper flowers which they fashioned for the occasion. In addition to radio music, a brass band visited them as well as the men's quarters, and the baby, the son of a woman in jail for a minor offense, held the center of attention most of the afternoon.

Children Dine on Turkey.

At the Thanksgiving feast at the Cook county juvenile detention home, 210 boys and girls declared that the dinner of turkey accompanied by cranberries and other "trimmings" was "the best dinner we ever had." Although two-thirds of the children are delinquents, the others are there principally because their parents cannot care for them.

It took 4,200 pounds of turkey to go around at the Oak Forest infirmary where there are 4,150 inmates. A band concert and a vaudeville show followed the dinner. Several county commissioners visited the infirmary under the escort of Frank Venacek, superintendent.

Dinner in bed proved an enjoyable experience yesterday for 1,200 patients in the county hospital. An equal number were wheeled or carried to the main dining room to make merry over chicken and other dainties. The luckiest of the patients were the 146 who were discharged yesterday and thus were able to spend the day with their families. A sumptuous dinner was served to 1,600 inmates of the Chicago state hospital at Dunning.

Jobless Men Are Fed.

At two tables in Community kitchen No. 1 of the Volunteers of America, at 2047 Madison street, 800 hungry men, most of the jobless, sat down to a dinner of turkey, potatoes and gravy, cranberry sauce, cole slaw, pie or cake, coffee and bread. There were white oilcloth tablecloths and white paper napkins. Those who possessed a nickel paid for a ticket, and those who didn't were fed anyway.

The men awaiting their turns were sent to a warmed room next door to avoid the bitter cold of a "bread line." Most of the men, Maj. John O'Neal of the Volunteers said, were truck drivers, carpenters, painters—men with good employment records. The same meal was available at other Volunteer kitchens.

Turkey and all its accompanying dishes were fed to nearly 1,900 hungry men at the Salvation Army shelter, 509 North Union avenue last night. In addition 1,000 men received tickets for turkey dinners in restaurants. These tickets were given away following church services at the Salvation Army station at 1512 Madison street.

At the Tower Town shelter in the old Criminal Courts building, 1,500 men were fed last evening for two hours, beginning at 5 o'clock.

Food for Babies and Mothers.

At St. Vincent's Infant and Maternity hospital, mothers of babies were thankful for a turkey dinner, while 200 babies less than a year old feasted on milk.

Children at the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children had a turkey feast. The meal was provided by Mrs. Alvin Kessell as a memorial to her brother, Sollie Greenstein.

A free dinner for 1,600 needy people of the neighborhood was given by Harry Block in his restaurant in the Lexington hotel. Tickets were given to the pastors of churches for distribution. The cooks and waitresses donated their services.

Cheer for 150 Evanston poor families was provided by the Evanston Central Association of Charities and supplementary aid was given to 400 other families through subscription.

PLAY, CHURCH, TURKEY, WORK LOT OF HOOVER

President Has Busy Day on Thanksgiving.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—President Hoover, like thousands of his fellow countrymen, celebrated the traditional Thanksgiving holiday today in the traditional manner. He went to church, helped eat a turkey, sat about the fireside with his family and friends, and in between managed to catch up with some work he had brought home from the office.

Where the President's day differed was that he probably got up earlier than most people and did more work. He rose at his usual hour of 6 o'clock and took his regular morning workout with the medicine ball.

Following breakfast, he went up to his study on the second floor of the White House and labored over the final touches to his message to congress.

Attends Wilson's Church.

Then, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, their son, Allan Hoover, and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard and Miss Peggy Rickard of New York, the President attended services at the Central Presbyterian church, where President Wilson formerly worshiped. He sat in the pew President Wilson had occupied and, after the services, officiated at the laying of the Sunday school corner stone. The same trowel was used which President Wilson had used in 1913, when the corner stone of the main church building was laid.

Secretary Davis at Home.

Secretary of Labor Davis dined at home and celebrated the fact that his daughter, Jean, convalescing from scarlet fever, was well enough for a sliver of turkey.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon went to New York to visit his daughter, Mrs. David Bruce.

MEALS FOR JOBLESS, CELEBRATIONS AND ACCIDENTS MARK DAY

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—New York City celebrated Thanksgiving day in traditional fashion. While widespread unemployment and the financial depression may have robbed the holiday of some of its traditional mirth, few of the city went hungry, and those who did might have feasted on turkey, cranberry sauce, and plum pudding for the asking. New York took extraordinary steps to feed its needy and unemployed.

There was no way of estimating accurately the number of homes into which dinners were taken, but it was estimated that 75,000 men and women were provided with dinners by accredited agencies of the city, not counting the countless number of meals provided by individuals, churches, and societies.

Turkey Cheap in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The bottom dropped out of the turkey market here, and although the collapse brought grief to market men, it gave joy to hundreds of last minute purchasers.

The favored bird, which earlier in the day sold as high as 55 cents a pound, hit 20 cents before the last minute stampede was over close to midnight.

Observed at Plymouth.

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Old memories were stirred in ancient Plymouth today—memories of a bygone Thanksgiving, three centuries ago.

Observance of the holiday in this scene of the first giving of thanks followed the same simple routine of years.

Pealing church bells summoned the townsfolk to worship. Afterwards came the traditional feasting.

Dies Preparing Dinner.

Clinton, Ia., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Jane Colton, 91, was found apparently burned to death in her home today. It is believed her clothing caught fire from the cookstove as she was preparing dinner.

Explosion Injures Eleven.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Eleven persons were injured, three seriously, by an unexplained explosion at a Thanksgiving dinner tonight at the home of Mrs. Mary Harrigan. Mrs. Harrigan, 70 years old, and her son John, 41, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edmund Harrigan, were the most seriously hurt. The force of the explosion shook the house and almost immediately flames darted into the dining room, enveloped the victims and set the room ablaze.

Fire Destroys Home.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—It was a sad Thanksgiving today for Mr. and Mrs. John J. Snider and their seven children. The dinner was cooking on an oil stove at their Maryland home when the stove exploded and the home was destroyed by fire.

$100,000 LOSS IN TWO FIRES ON NORTH SHORE

Wilmette Golf Club Is Partially Destroyed.

Two fires on the north shore, one in the Wilmette Golf club clubhouse at Lake avenue and Harms road, three and a half miles west of Wilmette, and the other in a girls' dormitory of the Holy Child High school in Waukegan, caused an estimated damage of approximately $100,000 late yesterday and last night.

Half of the clubhouse was wrecked with a loss of $60,000, according to Chief Walter Zibble of the Wilmette fire department. The blaze originated in a defective fireplace in the first floor locker room, and spread to the second floor, ruining six bedrooms assigned to employés. A brick fire wall separating the north and south ends of the house saved the latter end, which includes a dance hall, dining room and kitchen.

Firemen Call for Help.

Because of the intense cold, firemen were hampered in fighting the blaze and were compelled to call upon the Glenview department for aid. Water was pumped from a near by ditch. Five hours' time was required to overcome the fire.

According to Chief Zibble, the $60,000 estimated loss took in the contents of the steel lockers. The lockers withstood the flames, he said, but could not protect golf outfits and clubs from destruction from the intense heat.

Waukegan School Burns.

The Waukegan fire attacked the third of a group of buildings on the high school grounds. The dormitory is occupied by sixteen resident students and six nuns. The students, all girls, were away on Thanksgiving vacation.

According to school officials the blaze was discovered by the six nuns as they stepped into the dormitory from the main building. They immediately sounded an alarm, and several companies responded. Unable to save the dormitory, which was of frame construction, they diverted their efforts to protecting the school building and administration house. Damage was estimated at close to $40,000.

DAWES PRAISES WALES AT LONDON TURKEY FEAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Americans in London celebrated Thanksgiving day with the traditional dinner of the American society at the Savoy hotel, at which the prince of Wales was the guest of honor. Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, who presided, in proposing the health of the prince, said:

"The prince of Wales is held in universal respect not alone because he is a prince but because he exemplifies the British and our own conception of what a prince among men should be."

RUSSIA 'HUSHES' POWERS' NAMES IN TREASON TRIAL

Refuses to Let Prisoners Accuse Nations Publicly

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—(AP)—There will be no naming of names where foreign governments are concerned hereafter in the trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the soviet régime, for the court ruled today that evidence involving foreign powers will be heard in closed sessions.

This ruling came as one of the accused was about to go into details concerning charges that France had entered officially into an elaborate intrigue with several other powers to attack the soviet republic. The testimony was cut short and presumably was to be heard by the four judges after the public sessions ended.

Seeks to Preserve Relations.

The move was interpreted as an effort on the part of the Red government to preserve its diplomatic relations with the powers involved in the charges. France already has protested through its envoy here, and Raymond Poincare, former president, has denied such of the charges which identify him as an active plotter.

Elaborate confessions of the eight defendants already have identified France, Britain and several other nations as parties to the fantastic scheme by which the accused are charged with having plotted Dictator Stalin's overthrow, and the testimony thus far in the trial has been virtually a series of repetitions of the confessions.

It was Kuprianov, one of the defendants, whose testimony brought the closed-session ruling. He had recited details of his part in the alleged plot and was about to name French government officials, with whom he said he had worked, when the decision was handed down.

Cross-Examination Begins Today.

It did not detract, however, from he wide interest which the proceedings have aroused since the commissar of police announced discovery of the intrigue.

The trial was adjourned tonight until 6 p. m. tomorrow when the prosecutor will present its first witnesses. As the uncringing, but apparently repentant engineers completed their confessions, it was expected Prosecutor Krilinko would begin his cross-examination, but with the consent of the defendants' attorneys a recess was granted by the court.

Among the witnesses to be called are some former high technical experts of the government now under arrest. The last two defendants to confess their guilt, for which the extreme penalty may be death, were Ochkin, the youngest of the octet, being about 30, and Sitnin, an engineer in the textile industry.

Ochkin, who was secretary to Prof. L. K. Ramsin, indicted as leader of the conspiracy, pleaded guilty and said he was sorry. He said that Ramsin led him into the industrial party ranks and that he was but a minor member of the organization.

Gave Parcels to "Mr. R."

"Ramsin often gave me sealed parcels which I gave to a Frenchman named R. From what I overheard I gathered intervention had been postponed until 1931. Intervention was the last stake of the Industrial party. I believe this trial will check many engineers who would have wandered astray in their political ideas."

Sitnin's testimony was brief. He said he had thought over his past crimes in prison and had repented.

"We were led to disbelieve in the success of the soviet government," he said. "My part of the plot was to work out false plans for the textile industry, especially cotton, in which we gave cotton growers bad seeds, greatly decreasing the crop."

Tells of Visit to U. S.

He said he went to the United States two years ago as an agent of the government to make cotton purchases. In this venture he received a percentage of the purchase price. Fedotov, who publicly confessed his guilt earlier in the day, said that "beginning with petty sabotage I went up the ladder until I came to high treason."

Fedotov was among the conspirators who went to Paris and in a published confession said he had met people there who "had conferred with Poincare and Briand on intervention."

This is a momentous trial in Russia; it is broadcast daily and the court room is crowded for each session with comrades admitted by ticket. The judges smoke incessantly, as does everybody else.

At today's hearing Prof. Ramsin, called the arch plotter, looked himself more like a judge than a defendant. He sat close to the bench with a set of sound magnifiers at his ears so that he could more readily hear the testimony. He busied himself continually making notes, and followed every move with eager interest.

Looks Like Movie Set.

An American would have thought this was all part of a movie set. Great batteries of bright lights illuminated the huge room and movie cameras were in operation "shooting" the defendants, the court and the spectators from all angles.

Even the soviet soldiers who stood about the little inclosure where the eight defendants sat seemed to take this trial lightly. They wandered about the courtroom frequently, leaving their charges to themselves.

Report France May Cut Ties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The French government, it was stated tonight in authoritative political circles, is prepared to give in to the demands of the Nationalists and break off diplomatic relations with Russia as a result of public accusations made against former President Poincaré and Foreign Minister Briand at the trial of eight professors in Moscow on charges of an anti-soviet plot. Several deputies are reported to be preparing to interpellate M. Briand in the chamber on his failure to take drastic action in the face of "public insults."

Moscow Passenger Train Runs Gantlet of Bullets

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 27.—Passengers arriving at Riga tonight on the Moscow train pointed to bullet scarred coaches and smashed windows and told how they were ordered to lie on the floor of their compartments while passing through a zone of fire between Smolensk and the Latvian border.

The passengers reported that conditions in Moscow are normal and that they did not hear anything of the reported uprising in White Russia until the bullets began to hit the train. Soviet train guards, they said, then ordered them to keep away from the windows, but refused to answer questions.

From Ritupe and other points on the Latvian-soviet frontier the Lettish guards reported intense firing today. The uprising, they allege, has spread through the provinces of Pskov, Oportchka and Ostrov, where the peasants are said to have been called upon to surrender both grain and flax crops to soviet tax collectors. Reports say the peasants are burning their crops rather than pay the taxes.

Report 60 Peasants Slain.

Today Russian troops are reported to have shelled the village of Kozhina, killing the entire male population of 60 men. They are also said to have burned the village of Pustoye, where men and boys were massacred and the surviving members of their families interned in the Troitski monastery, which has been converted into a prison.

On the Russian side of a wide highway which formerly led from Riga to Petrograd the Letts today claimed they saw three armored cars, which are participating with an armored train at Ostrov in attacks against peasants. Border guards also report large troop reinforcements along the Russian frontier. The Russians are reported to be shooting on the spot all peasants trying to flee into Latvia.

Esthonian guards in the Pechora districts, just across the Latvian frontier, also report heavy firing near their frontier.

Bare Food Conditions.

Two decrees published by Pravda, official government organ, and signed by President Kalinin throw light upon the food conditions in the Russian capital.

"All of the communal, coöperative and individual farms, as well as the slaughter houses of the villages and towns," one decree says, "are strictly forbidden to kill before Dec. 31, 1931, the following classifications of live stock: All registered thoroughbred cattle, young horned cattle, cows under 18 months of age, heifers, sheep under 18 months, pigs under 8 months, and all bulls, rams, and cows suitable for breeding purposes.

"All violations will be punished with fines ten times the value of the animal slaughtered, or, should the lawbreaker be a kulak—a farmer employing hands—two years' imprisonment, exile from the district, and confiscation of property will be enforced. All soviet officials will be held criminally responsible for failure to enforce the decree in their area."

Killing Horses for Food Forbidden.

An amendment mentions that large numbers of horses capable of work are being slaughtered for food and forbids this, threatening similar punishment.

The second decree discusses the bread supply of Moscow for the coming year. It reports that seven large bakeries and 31 mechanical bakeries will be operated and that 138 manual bakeries will be closed. The supply of bread will be increased by 13 per cent and larger quantities of the present gray bread—a mixture of barley, rye, and wheat flours—will be manufactured, the decree says. It adds that the present ration of one pound per inhabitant will not be increased.

ANOTHER SOVIET IMPORT BARRED BY RULE OF U. S.

Purity of Sausage Cases Doubted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A new compliaction was thrust into American-Soviet trade relations today by the disclosure that orders have been issued by the department of agriculture banning the admission of Russian sausage casings unless disinfected upon arrival under official American requirements and at importer's expense.

This order, sent out after conferences between Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, is construed as an administration decision to accept no more food shipments from Russia on the health certificates of soviet authorities. The step is explained on the ground that in the absence of normal diplomatic relations between the two countries, the United States has no way to ascertain whether Russian sanitary inspections are adequate to protect American consumers.

Doubt Soviet Inspection

The new order is understood to have followed complaints registered with the department of agriculture to the effect that impure products had been received at New York from Russia, carrying soviet certificates of inspection.

The new order marks the termination of a special arrangement under which the United States has been accepting soviet health certificates on sausage casings for more than a year, nothwithstanding the fact the United States does not recognize the new Russian government. Involved is the whole question of recognizing the good faith of officials of a nation when that nation has not measured up to the international standards demanded of a government before this country will accord diplomatic recognition.

Just how the United States worked out the special arrangement with Russia, a government it does not recognize, has not been explained. Officials who reluctantly admitted tonight that the arrangement had been cancelled, said they could not explain how it had been arranged in the first place.

Suspect Soviet Inspection.

Since the arrangement was worked out through the state department, soviet casings have entered the United States without protest. Recently, agriculture agents began to suspect that some of the casings were coming from countries other than Russia, although bearing the soviet health certificate. The inference was that, in many cases, the certificates had been signed in blank, the inspections by Russia having been of only a perfunctory nature.

The fact that the casings order comes at a time when the treasury has promulgated a new regulation against convict-made goods which has been construed as aimed specially at the soviet, unusual interest is felt in official circles regarding its reaction in Russia. In some quarters the belief is held that recent developments foreshadow trade conflicts with the soviet that may have far reaching consequences.

No meat is imported from Russia because this country has no way of determining whether it has been inspected satisfactorily.

Death of Boy, 3, Is Laid to Ptomaine Poisoning

Ptomaine poisoning was believed to have caused the death yesterday of Richard Summers, 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Summers, 606 West 48th place. Two other children also became ill after eating canned tomatoes, which were believed to have caused Richard's death.

CHICAGO EXPERTS DESIGN SOVIET PACKING PLANTS

Chicago's meat packing methods are to be reproduced in soviet Russia, it was revealed last night. More than 50 engineers and draftsmen, under H. P. Henschien, Chicago designer of packing plants, are now at work blueprinting important features of the industry for a committee of the Soyusmiaso, or government owned meat trust of Russia. The committee has offices here.

The experts are designing two plants, one in Moscow and the other at Semipalatinsk, in southwestern Siberia. After the final drafts have been forwarded to Moscow, Mr. Henschien will visit the soviet capital. The two Russian plants, it is understood, will cost $10,000,000. According to N. L. Volynski, vice chairman of the Soyusmiaso, the soviet industrialization plan calls for the construction of 40 packing plants at a cost of $80,000,000.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

RAILROADS ASK LEGISLATIVE AID FROM CONGRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Convinced that the railroads are confronted with their most serious emergency since the passage of the transportation act in 1920, the Association of Railway Executives, which represents every class 1 railroad in the country, will demand sweeping legislative relief from congress. The most radical provisions of the proposed legislation would compel the oil industry to divert itself of a $400,000,000 investment in oil pipe lines.

Other provisions of the legislation the railways will seek from congress would put coastal ship lines under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission and make the chartering of these ships in this service subject to the issuance of certificates of convenience and necessity by the commission. The railroads also propose to ask permission to operate steamships coastwise and on the great lakes, which operations now are forbidden by the Panama canal act.

Awaits Action by Senate.

A bill for the regulation of interstate movement of freight in motor trucks has passed the house and is awaiting action by the senate. The railroads now purpose to supplement this bill with one regulating interstate operation of passenger omnibuses.

That the railroads were pushing these legislative aims was confirmed today by Charles C. Paulding, vice president of the New York Central lines.

"The present situation of the railroads," said Mr. Paulding, "has nothing to do with the current condition of business and industry.

"Competition by new and unregulated methods of transportation has brought about the present crisis in railroading. The railroads do not oppose the use and expansion of these methods. Such an attitude would be inimical to progress. What they do oppose, however, is operation by their new competitors free from the close regulation under which the railroads must carry on their business.

Remove Certain Restrictions.

"In brief, what the railroads desire and will seek by appropriate legislation is the placing of all forms of interstate transportation under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission and the removal of certain restrictions on their operations that the railroads find onerous and believe unfair. The forms of transportation which the railroads will seek to put under the regulation of the commission are oil and gasoline pipe lines, motor vehicles, and coastal steamship lines."

Mr. Paulding asserted that the movement of oil and gasoline in pipe lines by the oil companies has deprived the railroads of the revenue they would otherwise have derived from the carrying of these commodities.

Champion Faster Ends Life Because He Was Starving

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

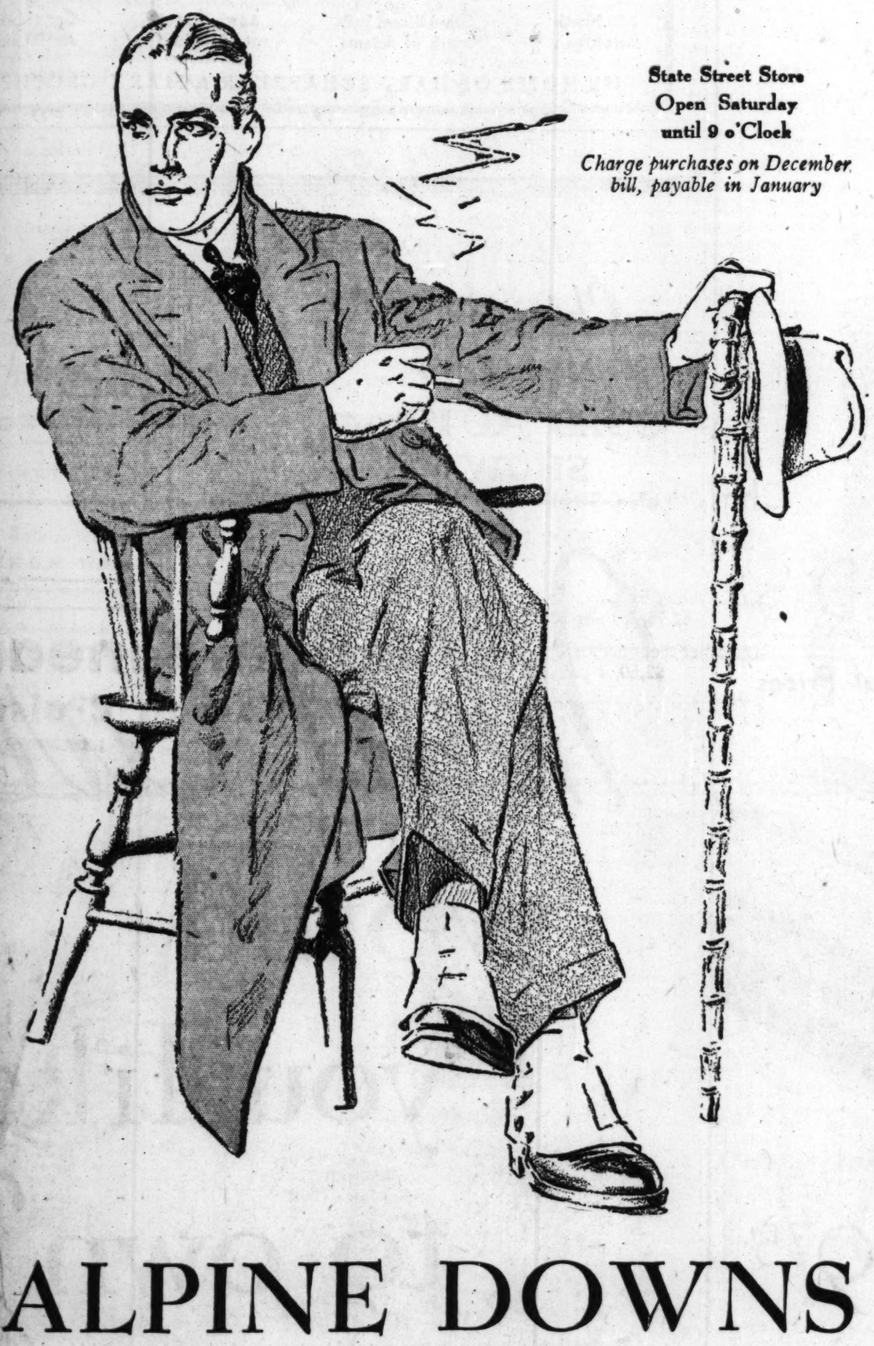

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—"Jully," the stage name of Dr. Adolf Gluecksmann, who claimed the world record for fasting, committed suicide today with gas, in despair because he was starving. Jully won world fame when he remained forty days and nights in a glass case in Berlin. He always asserted that he did not touch food, but his assistants later confessed that they smuggled chocolate to him. He was unable to book further shows and fell into poverty.

NEW ARMY PLAN HANGS ON FUNDS FROM CONGRESS

Fate of Mechanized Unit in Balance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The question of whether the movement to mechanize the American army, begun by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired chief of staff, will go forward, or be allowed gradually to die out for the present, will be decided largely by the action of congress this winter. Funds voted by the last session of congress for the acquisition of tanks and other fighting machines will be exhausted by next spring and unless additional funds are provided in the 1932 army budget, experiments in the use of the army's first mechanized force will be rendered virtually abortive, due to lack of modern up-to-date equipment.

Experiment with Armored Units.

About a quarter of a million dollars is being expended this year for experimental tanks, trucks, cross country cars, armored ck vehicles for moving infantry and machine gun squads across fire swept rough ground, self propelled 75 millimeter field guns and ammunition carriers, armored cars and radio equipment. This material will be turned over to the army's first permanent motorized force, now at Fort Eustis, Va. War department reports estimate a minimum of $3,000,000 is necessary to equip an armored force.

Gen. Summerall, as one of his last acts before retirement, organized the Fort Eustis force. He also took the initiative in obtaining army funds to complete the latest model Christie combined track and wheeled tank which will be tested out by the army this winter. If this machine is successful, the plan is to organize the whole force with a tank of this type as the backbone. All vehicles would be based on the Christie chassis. Such a force would have a cross country speed of thirty miles an hour.

In his final report to Secretary of War Hurley, Gen. Summerall emphasized the necessity of continuing experimenting with machines, asserting that the United States must mechanize or fall behind other armies. Gen. Summerall does not anticipate that tanks and armored cars will completely change the character of modern armies. His opinion is, however, that all armies are now in a state of transition with their future character still in doubt.

Baby, Given Blood by His Prisoner Father, Is Better

Robert Noeth, 8 months old, whose father, Arthur Noeth, was released from the county jail on Wednesday to give blood for a transfusion to save the baby's life, was reported to be somewhat improved at the Children's Memorial hospital last night. Officials of the hospital appealed to Judge Daniel P. Trude to permit Noeth to go to the hospital for the transfusion, which was believed to be the only hope for the baby, who is suffering from dehydration. Noeth was returned under guard to the jail after the transfusion.

WEIGHT SAVINGS ON CRUISERS TO INCREASE ARMOR

Modern Methods Raise Efficiency.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—By the use of cork ceilings, aluminum paint, wooden decks, light metals and electrical welding on an unusual scale, naval constructors have been able to effect radical savings in weight without loss of stability in the building of the first group of 10,000 ton Washington treaty cruisers.

A report prepared by Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief constructor of the United States navy, for the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers reveals that the first two treasy cruisers, the Salt Lake City and the Pensacola, finished approximately 900 tons under the allowed 10,000 ton displacement. As a result of the weight saved, the first eight treaty cruisers completed will weigh much less than the 10,000 tons permitted by treaty. In at least two cases the vessels will be in effect 9,000 ton rather than 10,000 ton ships.

Lessons learned in constructing the first two cruisers were applied to the next six, and these vessels have somewhat better protection than the so-called "tin clads," the Salt Lake City and the Pensacola. In building the last seven of this class permitted by the treaty full advantage is taken of the weight savings effected through the use of cork, aluminum paint and aluminum to increase the armor protection. The 900 tons saved on the earlier ships will be built into the vessels in the form of armor. Naval architects assert greater savings in weight will be effected in these later vessels than in the Salt Lake City class through a wider application of welding. The weight saving compared with earlier built ships are estimated at least 10 per cent.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Lamport & Holt line will be the first of the Royal Mail steamship group to "go under" as the result of reorganization by Walter Runciman, the new controlling power of the world's biggest shipping combine. Runciman himself admits the Lamport-Holt, which is now in the receiver's hands, "may have to go," while other Royal Mail companies will suffer drastic reconstruction of their capital.

The line consists of forty ships, aggregating 266,950 tons, and has an issued share and debenture capital of $39,750,000. In financial London it is feared that the whole Royal Mail slump will cost British banks and investors almost $100,000,000 before the group is back on a paying basis.

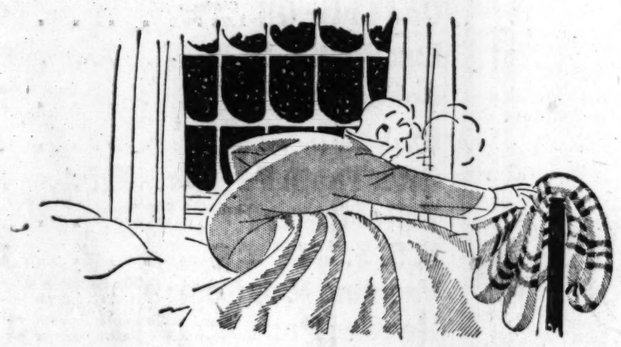

Runciman's policy is one of unscrambling thirty-four interlocked companies, headed by Lord Kylsant—saving those which can be made to pay and scrapping the derelicts. Lamport-Holt owned the ill fated Vestris.

Chicago's YEAR-ROUND USED AUTO SHOW

What Car would you like to own?

You probably have a motor-car ambition. It may be a long, lean, luxurious eight-cylinder. Or, a fine car in a more moderate price range. Or, perhaps you simply want to own a good automobile of any make.

Whatever your ambition, you have a better chance of fulfilling it right now than ever before. Used car prices are amazingly low. Chicago dealers have cut them to close out their stocks. You can find the car you want and buy it at a sum smaller than you ever dreamed of paying. Your lean eight-cylinder sells for the price of modest machines, and moderately priced cars are now within the reach of practically everyone.

JURY DEADLOCKS OVER TAMMANY JOB SELLING CASE

Roosevelt Expected to Order State Quiz.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Tammany sat uneasily at its Thanksgiving table today wondering whether the current tempest over racketeering was going to develop into a full gale or blow itself out after a couple of days of dirty political weather.

The dismissal of a sullen, smoldering jury this morning after it had wrangled through 22½ deadlocked hours trying unsuccessfully to agree on whether Martin J. Healy and Thomas T. Tommaney had sold a magistracy appointment to George F. Ewald for $10,000 coupled with yesterday's sordid story linking the courts and police with a vice ring that preyed on immoral or innocent women alike brought a concerted demand for a thorough-going legislative investigation of this city's tangled municipal affairs.

Want to Hear All Evidence.

Leading lawyers of the city said the probable course of legislative action would be to get Gov. Roosevelt to name a nonpartisan committee of prominent citizens and obtain legislative authority for it to hear all evidence in graft, corruption and racketeering cases which then would be presented to an extraordinary grand jury, also to be organized by state rather than city authority.

It was shortly after 9 o'clock this morning when the Healy jury filed into the courtroom to face Supreme Court Justice Phillip J. McCook. The jurors had been out since before noon yesterday and they were tired, had had little sleep and were short tempered. They were hopelessly deadlocked, Aaron H. Silverberg, the foreman, told the court, adding that there had been no change in the voting since early yesterday.

Judge Sleeps in His Office.

Justice McCook had passed the night on a couch in his chamber. He, too, was tired and in anything but a pleasant mood. The court ascertained that the jury had not stood eleven to one either for conviction or acquittal.

Spokesmen for the defense and for the prosecution whispered to reporters that the deadlock stood seven to five. Seven to five for acquittal, said the defense; no, seven to five for conviction, corrected the prosecution.

Sydney A. Syme, chief of the defense staff, conferred with Hiram C. Todd, the prosecutor, and then both asked for a retrial of the case as soon as possible. Justice McCook said he would take the plea under advisement. After the jury had been officially dismissed Justice McCook talked individually with each juror in his chamber.

Meanwhile, Healy and Tommaney were elatedly receiving the congratulations of their friends. They had passed the night in an adjoining room where it was said there were poker, bridge and pinochle games going on.

The demand for a legislative investigation of the New York City administration under Mayor James J. Walker came from a dozen sources today and unless Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt acts sooner the matter will come up next month when Republican legislators and party leaders meet to agree on a party program for the next legislative session.

Demand Unbiased Inquiry.

Letters demanding an unbiased investigation were mailed to Gov. Roosevelt by the city affairs committee, a nonpolitical organization of which John Haynes Holmes is chairman and Paul Blanshand executive secretary, by Norman Thomas and the public affairs committee of the Socialist party, and the Institute of Public Service issued a statement showing that vice cases rose from 1,714 in the four years preceding Mayor Walker's election to 3,608 during his first four years in office.

In requesting legislative action, the city affairs committee declared: "We hope a broad investigation into the government of New York City will include racketeering. The experience of Chicago and other cities in dealing with racketeers has demonstrated that rackets are almost always closely associated with local police and political leaders. An investigation conducted entirely by local officials is open to suspicion from the start. The inertia and timidity of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain in dealing with recent city scandals has destroyed public confidence in any investigation under his direction."

A development in the Kressel inquiry today was the reported weakening of "Chile" Mapocha Acuna, the South American stool pigeon, in his identification of Inspector Thomas T. Ryan as the "Inspector Ryan" who "hired him to help trap fallen women for graft money." Acuna when shown a picture of Inspector Ryan is said to have remarked, "That is not the man." Inspector Ryan said last night he never had heard of Acuna.

In three days of public hearings the Kressel committee laid the groundwork for possible criminal prosecution against six lawyers, four bondsmen, a former member of the district attorney's staff, and thirty-six policemen. Fifteen other lawyers face disbarment proceedings and perjury charges may be brought against ten witnesses who have testified at the hearings.

REECE SAYS HE SEES WAY OUT OF DEADLOCK OVER MUSCLE SHOALS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A new path through the Muscle Shoals controversy has been blazed by Representative Reece of Tennessee and he will attempt to lead the senate and house conferees to an agreement at the forthcoming meeting of the conference committee.

The Republican who has led in the arguments for private operation today made known that he had decided upon certain modifications to the house bill which he would submit to the conferees.

The house bill for private operation was deadlocked in conference when the members of the two houses sought to reconcile it with the Norris plan for government operation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 27.—A majority of the hotels in Oslo will close down on Dec. 11 if a dispute concerning working conditions is not settled. Today the union ordered employés of the smaller hotels in the city to strike following the collapse of negotiations for better conditions. The employers' union made a counter move, declaring a lockout of all big hotels. This will affect 1,500 workers. A similar conflict is already on at Bergen.

MEXICO PLANS HUGE WELCOME TO YANK ENVOY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—Mexico is going to "throw the house out the window," tomorrow, as the Mexicans say, in a grand reception for J. Reuben Clark, the new American ambassador to Mexico, by President Ortiz Rubio. Mr. Clark represents to the Mexicans a continuation of former Ambassador Morrow's policy of mutual understanding and international friendliness because during his ambassadorship Mr. Morrow called on him to make a three year investigation which won the good will of all Mexicans.

Tomorrow's reception will therefore, according to prominent Mexican politicians near the president, symbolize the friendly relations of the United States and the Mexican government and the fact that Mr. Clark's appointment is especially pleasing to the Mexicans.

All generals have been ordered to appear at the palace tomorrow at noon in full uniform. The president's guard, members of the cabinet and employés in the department of foreign relations have also been ordered to the palace. A military guard in full uniform will escort Mr. Clark from the embassy to the national palace for the presidential reception.

Kidnaped Teacher's Grip Found in Irrigation Ditch

Fort Morgan, Colo., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A suitcase identified as belonging to Miss Enid Marriott, Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, believed kidnaped ten days ago, was found in an irrigation ditch ten miles west of here late this afternoon by two boys.

Sheriff R. A. Johnston, after an investigation, said he was convinced she had been kidnaped and slain. He believed the teacher's body would be found at some point in the irrigation ditch. Miss Marriott disappeared on Nov. 16.

tween Germany and the allies. Germany will meet her private obligations regularly and promptly," former Chancellor Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, said today, while addressing the National Association of German Industry.

This is considered a confirmation of the rumor current in financial circles that unofficial negotiations are going on between Germany and the allies to delay and reduce Germany's reparations payments.

Dr. Luther emphasized that the strongest advocates of revision do not desire to hold up payments on debts of a private character or whose creditors are private persons.

"The more clearly we recognize Germany's signature to the Young plan as binding, so more effectively can we demand from the other signatories the fulfillment of their obligations," he said. "One can reckon that, following the increasing recognition of dangers to world economics entailed in the present reparations system, the world will realize that changes must be made."

Dr. Luther pointed to the stability of German currency in the present crisis, adding:

"The 70 year old reichsmark stood firm through seven lean years, and will continue to stand firm through many times that period."

GOTHAM THEATERS TO GIVE SERIES OF 'BENEFITS FOR IDLE

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Every star on Broadway, every show and every theater will be pressed into service to aid the unemployed if the plans of Mayor James J. Walker's official committee, announced today, are carried to completion.

A sub-committee has been named to arrange for a series of special benefit performances of all the current shows, with Alfred A. Aarons of the Broadhurst theater as chairman. Consent has been obtained from the Actors' Equity association, the Stage Hands' union and the Musicians' union, thus insuring the voluntary services of their members.

The shows will be presented at special matinées, on Sunday evenings, and some at special midnight performances.

Hangs Himself Rather than Serve 20 Years in Prison

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Choosing death rather than 20 years in prison, Joseph Walters, 26, of Omaha, Neb., served as his own executioner in the county jail today. His body was cut down from its impromptu gallows and the final chapter in the life of the 26 year old "traveling holdup man" was written. He hanged himself with his belt attached to the top of his cell door.

Walters was sentenced Nov. 20, to serve from 20 to 60 years in Marquette prison for holding up an oil station. He was awaiting transportation to prison when he killed himself.

Ship Saves Drifting Barge in Ocean with 10 Aboard

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 27.—(AP)—After drifting 15 hours out in the Atlantic, the barge Gotham with 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 10 men aboard was brought safely into Halifax harbor today. The barge's towline broke, and she became separated from the tug Goliath 31 miles southwest of Halifax lightship early yesterday. She was rescued by the Canadian government steamer Lady Laurier.

GERMANY SENDS LEAGUE PROTEST AGAINST POLAND

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The German cabinet, after a night session which lasted until nearly dawn, decided today to present Germany's complaints of alleged Polish terrorism toward German inhabitants of upper Silesia to the next regular meeting of the league of nations council on Jan. 15. There will be no demand for an extra session of the council, the ministers having considered that such could not convene before Christmas.

The German complaint probably will make the league session one of the liveliest in league history.

The world will be informed of the ground for Germany's complaints in a note embodying them to be sent to the secretary of the league today, and presumably to be published upon its arrival at Geneva tomorrow.

As far as can be learned now, the German note will embrace two points—a protest against alleged acts of terrorism visited upon the Germans in upper Silesia during the recent weeks and months, and a protest against the alleged infraction of German voters' liberty during the recent campaign and election there. Julius Curtius, foreign minister, has been designated to present Germany's case to the league.

HOW TO SATISFY RADICAL GROUP IS G. O. P. POSER

Balance of Power Is Held by 13 Senators.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Senate radicals will hold the limelight throughout the coming short session of congress.

How to satisfy this group will be a major problem of administration Republicans, who are fearful of obstructive tactics which will force President Hoover to call a special session of the new congress in the spring.

Republican regulars and most of the Democrats are a unit in a desire to avoid a special session after the old congress ends on March 4. The radicals, however, have refused to enter into any agreements and definitely have served notice that the administration may expect appropriation bills to be blocked unless their pet measures are permitted to reach the statute books in the short session.

Nine States Represented.

Thirteen senators are included in the group of radical Republicans who feel up against the administration throughout the last session and are expected to prove the chief trouble makers for President Hoover in the coming short session. The thirteen represent nine states as follows:

Wisconsin—Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine.
Iowa—Smith W. Brookhart.
Minnesota—Thomas D. Schall.
Nebraska—George W. Norris and R. R. Howell.
South Dakota—Peter Norbeck and W. H. McMaster.
Idaho—William E. Borah.
Oklahoma—W. B. Pine.
New Mexico—Bronson Cutting.

Also acting with this group will be Senator Henrik Shipstead [Farmer-Labor, Minn.] and a few of the more radical Democrats.

Norris Their Leader.

The radicals recognize Senator Norris as their leader, with Senator La Follette as his chief lieutenant. Senator Borah also is at times a leader of the group, but his course frequently digresses from that of the others.

In matters of general legislation the radicals are likely to combine with the Democrats in opposition to the administration, as they did during the tariff fight of last session.

With respect to actions having a bearing upon a special session of the new congress the radicals will pursue a policy of their own. The radicals will increase their power in the new congress, in which the Republicans and Democrats are almost equally divided in both houses. In the present congress the radical strength in the senate is largely nullified by the overwhelming administration majority in the house. The radicals will hold the balance of power in the house, as well as in the senate, in the new congress and consequently they are eager to have it called in special session in the spring, instead of waiting for the regular session in December.

Want Muscle Shoals Law.

The principal items of legislation on which the radicals demand action in the short session as their price for refraining from filibusters against appropriation bills are:

The Muscle Shoals government operation bill, on which conferees of the senate and house are deadlocked, and which the administration has opposed.

The Norris lame duck constitutional amendment resolution, which has been approved by the senate and held up by administration leaders in the house.

The Shipstead anti-injunction bill, which is on the senate calendar, with an adverse report from the committee on judiciary and which administration leaders have succeeded in blocking for the last two years.

Wagner Bills on List.

Two Wagner unemployment bills, which were passed by the senate, one of which was held up in the house and the other of which was amended in the house and is tied up in conference.

According to the ultimatum delivered by Senator Norris, if action is obtained on this program there will be no effort to obstruct appropriation bills. If the administration continues to block these measures, the purpose of the radicals will be to prevent the passage of important appropriation bills which are necessary for the operation of the government. Failure of one or more of the big appropriation bills in the short session of the old congress, ending March 4, would force President Hoover to call the new congress in special session in the spring.

SENATE COMMITTEE ON FUNDS TO MEET NEXT IN NEW JERSEY

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, will hold an inquiry next Thursday morning into primary and election expenses in the senatorial race in New Jersey.

Candidates in New Jersey are required by law to limit their expenditures to $50,000. The purpose of the Nye committee's investigation, it was explained, is to ascertain what other outlays were made in behalf of the candidates by organizations associated with their campaigns.

The successful seeker for the United States senate seat was Dwight W. Morrow, Republican, former ambassador to Mexico. His Democratic opponent was Alexander Simpson of Jersey City. In the Republican primary last June Senator Elect Morrow's opponents were former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Representative Franklin W. Fort.

Free Five Held for Quiz on Killing of Policeman

Five student male nurses who were held for questioning in connection with the killing on Tuesday night of Policeman James Corcoran, were released yesterday by Cottage Grove avenue police. The men were questioned after Irene Ray, colored, alleged that two of them were companions of the patrolman in a 29th street saloon the night he was killed. The identification was proved to be faulty, however. Corcoran was slain in a fight with an unidentified man at 29th street and Indiana avenue.

Vets in Hospital Vote 804 to 2 for Bonus Payment

Veterans of the world war in the Hines hospital at Maywood yesterday voted 804 to 2 in favor of immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates. The plan is now being considered in Washington, it is reported. The vote was taken to test sentiment among the veterans, according to Edwin H. Cleeseman, who conducted the referndum.

Illinois Boy Amazes Mother

"My son's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. Frank V. Sheets, 4926 W. Division St., Chicago. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated.

"My mother used California Fig Syrup with us, so I decided to give my boy some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

ELEVATOR BILL MAY OPEN WAY FOR 100 STORIES

New York Would Remove Speed Limit.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—More liberal regulations covering elevator construction and operation, which would mean virtual elimination of speed restrictions, have been drafted for inclusion in the new city building code being prepared under the direction of the Merchants' association at the request of Mayor James J. Walker.

The proposed changes represent a "new conception of vertical transportation designed to remove one of the chief obstacles that has existed to the erection of buildings 100 or more stories in height," the association stated today in the summary of the report of the subcommittee on elevators of the committee engaged in reviving the code.

Bessett Jones, chairman of the subcommittee, submitted the report to the advisory committee, and subject to slight changes, it is expected that the recommendations will become a part of the new code to be presented to Mayor Walker shortly.

In addition to removing the present 700 feet per minute speed limit, the changes would allow for two car elevators operating as a unit and for use of two separate lifts in one shaft.

"Hitherto one of the chief economic restrictions on the erection of 100 story buildings has been the excessive requirements for elevator space when buildings were carried above a certain level," the Merchants' association pointed out.

"In the proposed new elevator code the problem has been solved by applying to such transportation the same principles which have been used successfully in railroad transportation.

"In the proposed code as written the 700 foot per minute speed limit that the present code imposes on elevators has been removed. If the code is adopted there will be no restrictions on speed. The provisions as drafted contemplate a speed of 1,200 feet per minute or between thirteen and fourteen miles an hour."

MRS. HEFFERAN SEES MYERS SINGLE TEACHER PLAN AS IMPOSSIBLE

Civil service and seniority regulations with regard to the employment of teachers would practically nullify a rule in the school system to employ only unmarried teachers in the future, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a member of the school board, said yesterday. Such a rule was recommended to the board Wednesday by President Lewis E. Myers as a relief measure to "distribute all available means of support in the present crisis."

"It is apparent that Mr. Myers is also trying to assist the normal college graduates, most of whom, of course, are unmarried," Mrs. Hefferan said. "It is entirely possible also that a number of married women may have more dependents and may need the money more than those who are not married.

"I think married women make good teachers," she continued. "They are, in large part, steadier and more serious. For the sake of the pupils merit should be the sole basis for selection of teachers, whether the applicants are married or not. The Otis law gives life tenure to a teacher during good behavior. I believe that with the large number of married teachers now employed such a prohibitive rule would be dynamite."

Rescue Two Buried in Locomotive 39 Hours

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 27.—Kamegoro Numazawa, railway engineer, and Boku Junkai, Corean laborer, who were buried in the Tanna tunnel in the quake zone for 39 hours, were rescued today by a party of 50, which had worked continuously since the morning of the quake. The rescuers, digging in a cave-in 11,000 feet from the entrance, heard faint cries for help. They found the men alive in a buried locomotive. They were released after boring the iron plating with torches.

DO-X Flies to Lisbon; Ponder Flight to Brazil

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 27.—The German flying boat, DO-X, arrived at Lisbon this afternoon from Corunna, Spain, after a four hour flight. When the DO-X flew over Vigo it saluted the two German cruisers. From Lisbon the DO-X will fly to Cadiz where it will be overhauled. The Dorniers have apparently abandoned the trans-Atlantic flight to New York, but are still considering crossing the south Atlantic to Brazil.

BENNETT ESTATE GROWS; WRITERS' HOME BENEFITS

Millions of N. Y. Herald Chief Increase.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—An increase in the value of the estate of James Gordon Bennett, former publisher of the New York Herald, who died May 4, 1918, leaving his residuary estate to establish the James Gordon Bennett Memorial home for New York journalists, is shown by accountings filed in the Surrogate's court, it was learned today. They indicate that the home eventually will get more than $6,500,000.

The Bennett estate was appraised by the state tax commission in 1923 at $4,350,000 as the valuation at the date of the publisher's death, but this included only $2,500,000 for his newspaper stock, sold later to Frank A. Munsey for $4,000,000.

Home Assigned Three Millions.

While the accountings do not show the transactions of the home for journalists, which is managed by a separate corporation organized in 1919, the report for the seven-year period shows that the executors set aside $3,133,181 for the home.

The executors reported the sale of mortgages and notes for $6,340,591, while they purchased bonds, mainly of railroads, states and municipalities, and mortgages, many of them guaranteed, for $6,848,057.

The income collected for the seven years was $1,014,706. The payments of income to the home for newspaper men aggregated $119,509 during the period that the executors held property belonging to the home. Many payments of from $40 a month to $40 a week to men and women beneficiaries who had qualified by ten years' service in New York journalism under the terms of the will, were reported. The home corporation previously announced expenditures of $274,473 in 1928, including annuities and monthly and temporary payments to 45 beneficiaries, a large number of whom were employed in the mechanical departments of the Herald.

Many Payments to Annuitants.

The bulk of the executors' payments represented $279,708 to annuitants, including $50,000 a year to the widow, Maud Gordon Bennett; $30,000, yearly to Isaac Bell, nephew, and $20,000 a year to Ronald De Reuter, stepson. Two employés of Mr. Bennett on his yacht, Lysistrata, who received a total of $1,500 a year, had died, is was said.

From July, 1928, to Dec. 31, 1929, the estate paid $46,000 income to the home for journalists.

The last accounting indicates that the bulk of the $3,412,920 held by the estate on April 30, was to meet the annual payments to beneficiaries, now aggregating $153,000 a year.

TURK WHO ATE 100 APPLES AND 900 DATES DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 27.—The death was announced here today of Mudhlis Effendis, corpulent former Turkish high official, who was captured by the British during the Mesopotamia campaign.

His captors were unable to satisfy his gluttonous appetite and released him, but he soon applied for reincarceration, declaring that the British were the only people who were able to provide him with his necessary diet.

The Turk once demolished, at a single sitting, ten large bowls of sour milk, 900 dates and 100 apples. The British authorities refused to reincarcerate him, but granted him a small allowance.

SEARCH LAKE FOR 4 HUNTERS GONE OVER TWO WEEKS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Coast guardsmen and customs border patrolmen from Detroit to Sault Ste. Marie were searching today for four men who left here Nov. 11 on a 42 foot steel tug for a hunting trip to Drummond island in Lake Huron. They had expected to return last Friday.

The hunting party consisted of Frank Becker, 35, a foreman for the Detroit department of public works, owner of the tug; his brother, Charles Becker, and Einar Altalo, all of Detroit, and the tug wheelman, known here only as "Slim."

SLAIN MAN PROPPED AGAINST WALL.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The body of a well dressed unidentified young man shot through the head was found propped against a building at Sixth and Delaware streets today. A trouser pocket was turned inside out, indicating robbery as the motive.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. —(Adv.)

WAGE REDUCERS PUBLIC ENEMIES, SAYS A. F. L. HEAD

Green Assails Lowering of Living Standards.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today denounced as "public enemies" those employers who are taking advantage of the present economic and industrial distress to lower living standards through forced reduction of wages.

Asserting that the reduction of wages during the prevalence of unemployment is a wrong perpetrated against the public, the labor leader said that there is no term which more aptly describes employers who do so than that which recently has been applied in Chicago to notorious gangsters and racketeers. It is the "patriotic duty" of workers, he said, to resist any attempt to cut wages at this time.

"In every national emergency during war periods or times of peace there are those who attempt to exploit the workers and thus secure an unfair economic and industrial advantage," declared Mr. Green.

Names Certain Industries.

Mr. Green stated that he referred in particular to employers in the textile industry, the bituminous coal industry, and the boot and shoe industry.

"Because of their action a substantial decrease in the purchasing power of these workers, who become their victims, is brought about and to that extent the day of returning prosperity and normal industrial activity is being delayed and an injury is inflicted upon those industries where employers and workers are heroically endeavoring to maintain established wage standards," he continued. "The government has committed itself to the maintenance of wage schedules and working standards. It is the duty of all working people to support this policy and to hold fast to the wage levels already established.

Coincident with Mr. Green's appeal for a continuance of the wage scale, Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, issued through President Hoover's emergency committee for employment an explanation of his company's plans for an unemployment survey which it has been been asked to make by Col. Arthur Woods, head of the committee.

Former Results Found Accurate.

On two previous occasions, Mr. Ecker said, the Metropolitan company has made similar surveys for the bureau of labor statistics and the data so obtained were found to be so accurate as to warrant use of its field organization again to "sample" the present situation.

"The survey will be made by our field organization in the course of regular calls made at the homes of the industrial policyholders of the association," said Mr. Ecker.

The survey will be conducted in forty cities.

GRAVE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM IN ALMOST EVERY LARGE NATION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A continued and marked increase of unemployment in practically every important country of Europe as well as in Canada and Australia was shown today in statistics published in the monthly labor review of the United States department of labor.

In Great Britain where compulsory unemployment insurance is in force 2,114,955 persons were registered in September of this year, as compared to 1,181,862 in September, 1929. Germany had 2,983,000 persons registered on its insurance rolls September of this year, as compared to 1,323,603 in September, a year ago. Italy has 342,061 registered as wholly unemployed in July, 1930, and 24,209 as partially employed, as compared with 201,868 wholly unemployed and 13,503 partially employed the corresponding month in 1929.

In Australia the number of trade unionists unemployed increased from 40,996 in June, 1929, to 80,595 in June, 1930, while the number of trade unionists unemployed in Canada increased from 7,159 in August last year to 18,232 in August this year.

AUTO HITS DEER, DRIVER KILLS IT WITH HAMMER

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—While some deer hunters go forth armed with high powered game rifles, Marlin Rick, auto mechanic, brought down his buck with car, hammer and screw driver. Rick, driving a light sedan early today, struck a large buck which ran across the highway. The deer was not killed, but lay on the road bellowing with pain, three of its legs having been broken. Rick got out of his car with a hammer in one hand and a screw driver in the other. He struck the deer on the head with the hammer and struck it in the throat with the screw driver.

ROCKEFELLER JR. HOME; HOPEFUL FOR THE FUTURE

Problems Will Be Solved, He Predicts.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller Jr. returned from Europe today on the White Star liner Homeric and spoke optimistically on world conditions. He was accompanied by Mrs. Rockefeller, with whom he has toured France and northern Spain for two months.

When asked to comment on the world wide business depression and evident unrest, and to state whether he as a business man could see a turn for the better, Mr. Rockefeller answered that he had faith in the people of the world and believed the present problems would be solved.

"I have no message," Mr. Rockefeller said, "except that I am very hopeful, as always. There are many problems, grave and difficult ones, and no one knows today just how they will be solved, but they will be solved ultimately. That I believe.

"We as a nation have never had more to be thankful for than we have today. That is my own personal feeling."

Because of the failure of Mr. Rockefeller Jr. and his wife to get home from Europe in time, the usual Rockefeller Thanksgiving family reunion at Pocantico Hills was not held today.

Manufacturer Slays His Wife, Daughter and Self

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Albert Tarlo, 50, president of the Robert Tarlo and Son Woodworking company, today shot to death his wife, Flonrence, 48, and their daughter, Marie, 20, and then ended his own life.

Gangster Killed by Blast of Safeblowing Mixture

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Jack Stein, 28, former Chicago gangster, was killed today, police believe, while stirring a self made safeblowing mixture on a stove in a hiding place near here. The explosion blew out one side of Stein's house, in the wreckage of which police said they found rifles, shotguns, dynamite, and ammunition. An unidentified woman, said by investigators to have posed as Stein's wife, escaped injury. She called an ambulance, then disappeared.

Hunt Mexican Bandits Who Raided American Ranch

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Mexican fiscal guards today took up the trail of four heavily armed bandits who were reported speeding toward the fastnesses of the Sierra Madre mountain range in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, following their raid on a ranch home on the American side of the Rio Grande yesterday. Ramon Barajas, 50, was killed during the foray and $1,500 in currency was taken.

QUAKE, FIRE AND FLOODS RAVAGE NORTHERN CHILE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An earthquake, fire and floods today ravaged the north central part of Chile, causing damage estimated at more than one million pesos [about $130,000].

The busy seaport city of Coquimbo was shaken by a short but sharp quake at 7:40 a. m., throwing the inhabitants into a panic. Just as the excitement had about subsided, fire broke out in the business section and an entire block was leveled before it could be subdued. The damage from the quake and fire was estimated at $100,000.

Floods reulting from the melting of heavy spring snows in the Andes are ravaging farm lands along the Rivers Huasco and Copiapo. The town of Vallenar was threatened and the railroad connecting the city of Copiapo with the seaport of Caldera has been cut. All available men are being used in an attempt to stem the floods.

In her popular Sunday Suppers

Mrs. Leon Mandel II

emphasizes the importance of this rich, rare coffee

Every Sunday evening, the Leon Mandels keep open house in their spacious apartment overlooking Lincoln Park. Mrs. Mandel credits the success of these buffet suppers largely to the aromatic savoriness of Manor House Coffee, served in this lovely old blue Spode, on her priceless old mahogany buffet. Her home is literally filled, not with "antiques," but with superlative examples of 18th century furniture—one of Chicago's finest collections of early American mahogany.

Mrs. Mandel is a New York girl, a Cornell graduate and a dilettante in art. Her chief hobby is the collecting of old furniture and prints. She attends the symphonies and violin concerts, and is both patron and student of the Art Institute. After her recent return from Paris this Fall she determined never to go abroad again without a supply of her favorite coffee, for as she says, "the coffee over there is impossible, to one accustomed to Manor House."

Tune in W-G-N, Every Sunday Night... 7 to 8 o'clock... for the Manor House Dramatizations of the Grand Operas... with Stars Singing the Principal Arias.

HERE, amazingly, is a young woman who enjoys life in her own way. Not golf... not Clubs... but art, and music, and entertaining. And Mrs. Mandel has developed the gift for hospitality into a fine art, whose key motif is always Manor House Coffee—because, as she says:

"Coffee is the most important part of any meal, for if the coffee is not satisfying, the entire effect is spoiled. That is why the day begins and ends in our home with Manor House. I wouldn't think of trusting my formal dinners or buffet suppers to any but this delicious blend, which always seems to put everybody into a lovely mood."

For this reason 92 per cent of our exclusive lake shore hostesses serve no coffee but McLaughlin's Manor House. Their wealth cannot command a more richly mellowed blend.

Yet in spite of the costly methods used to produce its intriguing flavor, this supreme taste-sensation may be yours for a few cents more than the cost of the most commonplace coffees. And after all, since coffee makes or mars your success as a home-maker and hostess, it is true economy to serve Manor House—as do more of Chicago's coffee lovers than serve any other quality brand.

The Mandel home is friendly, informal, responsive to every mood. There are spacious rooms for gay dancing parties, and ripples of music from the piano which stands invitingly in the midst of things. There are soft, colorful corners for cozy chats over fragrant after-dinner Manor House. There are things to see and discuss—rare old furniture, modern paintings and pottery—and books, for the Mandels are bibliophiles, with a remarkable collection of Elizabethan literature and first editions.

EXTENSIONS OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

The secretary of the interior, Dr. Wilbur, is doing considerable good, outside his administrative cabinet work, by pouring cold water on numerous enthusiasms for federalized control of activities which are of individual or local responsibility. On one occasion he stepped out against a federal education inspiration and now he is trying to put a little ice in the federalized hands which would seat the government in the nursery or at the infant's bedside. At a White House conference on child welfare he said that what was needed was a minimum of legislation.

These enthusiasms take no account of the design of the federal Union, of its political architecture and its legal structure. They assume that if a plan for human good is ideal it requires federal execution. There are plenty of reasons for that. It is the greatest sphere of action and therefore offers the greatest gratification to the enthusiasts. Within it lies the shortest and easiest line to sufficient funds. Central control gives the longest reach. It is simple. One decision will affect all the states. It is a short cut through state indifference or backwardness. Where there is state irresponsibility it substitutes federal responsibility.

Federal control in extraneous affairs, federal assumption of responsibilities which are not in the charter of the Union and are in the charter of the states, if in any form of public authority, is one of the surest methods of destroying the American federal system by changing it to another form of government. This groping for new power has two tendencies. One is to devitalize the representative government by inequities in apportionment. The other is to augment the administrative government by giving it jurisdiction it should not have. Each is in the direction of autocracy.

PSYCHO-ANALYZING LAWYERS AND SOME OTHERS.

Every so often some one writes a book which can properly be described as an eye-opener. Such a book, for example, was Veblen's "Theory of the Leisure Class," and another was Trotter's "Instinct of the Herd." Keynes' "Economic Consequences" was of the same order. All these books served to bring into the foreground of the mind facts and relationships which hitherto had been sensed rather than clearly seen. Jerome Frank's recently published "Law and the Modern Mind" is that kind of a book.

It is Mr. Frank's thesis that the law is, by its nature, uncertain and therefore more or less unpredictable. He finds laymen as well as lawyers confused on this point. They both act as if the law of any case were as predictable as the behavior of two chemicals in a test tube. The fact is, he observes, that no society ever was so static that today's statement of the law could cover all of tomorrow's contingencies, and in a world such as ours, with its innovations in human and corporate relationships paralleling its inventions in mechanics, a belief in the existence of a body of law which will cover any situation is plainly out of step with the facts.

"Now the true art of the lawyer," Mr. Frank observes, "is the art of legal modification, an art highly useful to the layman. For the layman's interests, although he does not realize it, would be poorly served by an immobile system of law. Especially is this so in the twentieth century. The emphasis of our era is on change. The present trend in law is, accordingly, away from static security—the preservation of old established rights—and toward dynamic security—the protection of men engaged in new enterprises. Which means that the layman's ordinary practical needs would be seriously thwarted by an inelastic legal arrangement. A body of undeviating legal principles would be unbearably procrustean. Yet paradoxically he and his lawyers, when they express their notions of a desirable legal system, usually state that they want the law to be everlastingly settled."

Mr. Frank suggests that psycho-analysis may offer the explanation of the paradox. When the maturing child discovers his father is not an unerring source of wisdom and justice he transfers his emotional attitude from his father to the law, which he thereupon clothes with the paternal attributes.

The truly adult mind, Mr. Frank says, the mind of Mr. Justice Holmes, for example, is free of this emotional pull. It knows that legal certainty is impossible of attainment. It welcomes the opportunity to adapt and to change. This interpretation may or may not be adequate, but at any rate it opens up a large field for speculation. It suggests, for example, that a belief in the Socialist panacea is, in even larger measure, an evidence of a protracted emotional immaturity.

Thus, by following Mr. Frank's interpretation a step farther, it might be said that the Socialist yearns for a return to the security he felt in childhood when material welfare was his without effort on his part. He resents a world of economic uncertainty and instability, a world in which he must rely largely on his own abilities, resources, and good fortune for anything he may get.

In his theorizing the Socialist expects the state to provide this security. The government, therefore, must conduct all the enterprises of production, distribution, and consumption. If the Socialist examined the problem in the cold light of reason he could hardly select a more incompetent agent. Everything that we know about government is evidence for the opposition. It is slow moving and therefore unable to cope with rapid changes in technology; it is bureaucratic and therefore stupid. It always has its favored sons and it is frequently dishonest. In democratic countries positions of responsibility commonly fall to mediocre men with histrionic talents, men with an outstanding capacity for getting themselves elected. The probability that to these talents will be joined an outstanding capacity for economic statesmanship and business administration is not great; yet the Socialist would place such men in positions of executive responsibility so vast as to stagger even the ablest of business administrators. The Socialist who is unsparing, and properly so, in his denunciation of a Thompson or a Fall is precisely the same man who would give government inconceivably greater power over men and their welfare than any government we now have and expect it to function flawlessly in providing universal well being and security.

The hope is fantastic, yet it is persisted in. This paradox, like Mr. Frank's, needs to be explained. His theory seems to offer much. Fortunately, many of those who are most fluent in handling the terms of the new psychology are also Socialists; we should think, therefore, that they would welcome the opportunity for self-examination which is here afforded them.

THE VOLSTEAD MAYORS OF THE PALACE.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, says that a new party will be formed if President Hoover accepts modification doctrines from the Wickersham commission. The commission was regarded this time last year as being well in hand, without contumacy and without will of its own. It was merely doing dental work for Volstead, sharpening up the teeth. This had administration approval.

The zealots note a change in mood. It is given out that the commission is preparing to recommend essential changes in prohibition law, modifications which would recognize the failure of the noble experiment. The large northern Republican states have declared themselves against either the Volstead act or the eighteenth amendment or both. The elections gave the commission a new authority for free consideration of the subject. When it was created it was immediately enveloped in a cloud of intimidation. That has been dissipated. Furthermore, the political warnings to the Republican national management have been made plain enough.

Dr. Wilson undoubtedly speaks for the leadership of the prohibitionists when he says that the Republican party will remain sealed to the bigotry of extreme Volsteadism or an attempt will be made to punish it by setting up a new party. As a threat, that is interesting more as a declaration of intent than as an indication of consequences.

The party has found that if it wants to lose votes and destroy itself it will remain in alliance with the bigot wing of prohibition.

The general secretary of the Methodist board regards himself as the mayor of the palace. That ancient Frankish office has not been recognized by the American people as part of their government. They elect a President and expect him to do without the compulsion of a self-constituted authority of greater power. The Merovingian kings degenerated under the mayors of the palace until as weaklings they were succeeded by the vigorous Pepins.

Dr. Wilson has illusions of grandeur, derived probably from experience, but he is not the head of an extralegal dynasty.

THE NEW CHIEF OF STAFF.

The new chief of staff of the army, successor to Gen. Summerall, is Gen. Douglas MacArthur. It is a fortunate selection. Gen. MacArthur, like Gen. Summerall, has a soldier's temperament and a soldier's experience. In the European war he was twice wounded. His experience of that war was not confined to the congenial surroundings of G. H. Q. or the security of division headquarters. He knows modern warfare as it appears to the man in the trenches, and it is safe to predict that, like his predecessor, he will seek to exploit to the full the possibilities of the new mechanized weapons. He will not abandon the traditional weapons until he is sure he has better ones to replace them, but he will retain an open mind in inquiring into the serviceability of machines which will spare his infantry.

Gen. MacArthur is young and energetic, and he has the full confidence of the army and of the nation. His administration should result in a steady strengthening in our defenses. He takes office in an era of transition, so far as the military forces of the United States are concerned. It is no longer possible to place much reliance upon the junior officers and the enlisted men trained in the last war. Many of them are already past the age of active service and others are approaching it. Should another emergency arise, another generation will have to meet it. Gen. MacArthur cannot give too much attention to the preliminary training of the men who must be relied upon to defend their country should war come.

TEN HOURS, BOSTON TO CHICAGO.

[Boston Transcript.]

Beginning on Dec. 1 air passengers leaving Boston at 9:45 a. m. will reach Chicago at 7 p. m. the same day. On the schedule that looks like a trip of nine and one-quarter hours. But the travelers will spend fifteen minutes in changing planes near New York, and they will gain an hour on the sun when they enter the central standard time belt at Chicago. This means an actual flight of ten hours. And what a marvel this is! Accustomed though the public has grown to the annihilation of space by professional aviators this latest announcement strikes the imagination a new and resounding whack. Not Lindbergh only but any average citizen can now breakfast in Boston and dine the same day in Chicago. From Massachusetts bay to Lake Michigan in ten hours; to Salt Lake City in twenty-four; all the way to the Pacific coast, if one pleases, in thirty-two hours.

These new schedules, evolved by the Colonial Air Transport and the National Air Transport companies, are unquestionably the most impressive single advance ever made in the organization of regular passenger service by airplanes to and from Boston. The arrangement brings Boston into close touch potentially with the whole of the United States. It makes the midwest, where the nation's population is centered, part and parcel of a single day in the life of any Bostonian who wishes to have it so.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TREATING GALL TROUBLES.

DR. MAX EINHORN thinks diet plays a prominent part in the care of people who have various kinds of gall bladder trouble, but his opinion is not fixed as to the diet for some of the disorders. In acute infections—jaundice—and in other acute liver troubles he advises a light liquid diet composed of milks, gruels, fruit juices, eggs incorporated in bouillons, tea or cocoa. He advocates frequent meals, but small ones. In most gall bladder troubles he advocates eating several times a day, certainly oftener than three times.

The theory is that nothing equals eating as a means of stimulating the flow of bile. Ninety per cent of the medicines which are claimed to stimulate the liver and cause bile to flow from it are without that property. Of the remaining ten per cent all but one per cent cause a flow of bile by stimulating intestinal peristalsis. If there is one per cent of drugs which act directly to stir up the liver I have forgotten which they are.

And now returning to the opinions of Dr. Einhorn, he holds that foods rich in fats and oils have a considerable tendency to cause a free flow of bile into the digestive tract, but a limit is put on their use by the difficulty the liver has in handling fatty foods and oils.

In cases of jaundice the diet should be very low in fats. A good base line diet for jaundice—and, in fact, for liver troubles generally—is 2½ quarts of skimmed milk and 3½ ounces of each of the following: Wheat bread, oatmeal and sugar, with plenty of fresh fruit and green vegetables. He can see some basis for not feeding gall bladder cases much food that is rich in cholesterin, but this chemical is so widely distributed in foods that banishing it from the diet or even greatly limiting it is not very practicable. For gallstone cases he advises the following regimen:

1. Eat at short intervals.
2. Avoid excesses. Eat small, simple meals. No luxuries. Eat sparingly of meat and spices and use wines and beers sparingly.
3. Overcome constipation.
4. Indulge in out of door sports. Take long walks.

BETTER WEAR GLOVES.

M. H. writes:

I am very easily poisoned by poison ivy or oak. Is there anything you could suggest to prevent infection when exposed to these plants?

REPLY.

Wear gloves and other coverings for the skin. Remember, however, that the juice may get in fabrics and remain potent there for years.

After exposure, wash the skin thoroughly with a solution of ferrous sulphate in water or with a strong soap and warm water solution. The Rural New Yorker gives this method of killing poison ivy vines:

Use calcium chlorate. Dust the powder on the leaves when they are lightly covered with dew or when they are wet after a rain. Or, use a spray containing one pound in one gallon of water. Spray, not sprinkle, the leaves.

MIGHT HAVE X-RAY.

F. R. writes:

Twenty-one months ago I fell from a swing and hurt the lower part of my backbone. Soreness is still present and sometimes I have sharp pains in this region. Shall I ignore these symptoms?

2. Do physicians know the cause of cancer in women?

3. I have heard that using certain drugs causes cancer. Is this true?

REPLY.

1. You might have an X-ray picture taken. If this shows nothing I expect you will be better off if you ignore the soreness and pain.

2. The answer is almost—No. They know that chronic inflammation and other chronic irritations contribute to cancer and that is about all.

3. No.

NO HAIR IN VASELINE.

J. K. writes: Does the daily application of vaseline cause a growth of hair on the face?

CHARGES MALPRACTICE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In May I went to a dentist to have my teeth pulled, making three trips in all. No agreement or contract was made as to the price. He tore the gums and had to call at my house to stop the flow of blood and sew parts of the gum. I made three additional trips to his office for the same purpose. Upon receiving bill for $50 I paid same, thinking it included all services. Today I received an additional bill for $25. Must I pay this? H. J. C.

Unless you can prove malpractice, it would seem reasonable for him to make an additional charge for the subsequent work. We are not in a position to say whether he mishandled the job.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNDER CIVIL SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you please tell me the requirements for clerks and typists that work for the public schools? Are they under civil service and if so when are examinations held? A. G.

The examinations for junior clerk and school clerk are under civil service. These examinations are open to all citizens of the United States, more than 21 years of age, and who are residents of the city of Chicago for a period of at least one year immediately preceding date of examination. We have placed the name of the writer on our mailing list for notification of the next examinations called for these positions.

INJURY BY MINORS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a domestic in a private family is struck and injured by a minor can she bring suit against the parents? 2. Can they refuse to pay the doctor bill, etc.? 3. Can an employer dismiss such a person while she is ill? C. J.

1. Of course, she can bring suit, but she would not be entitled to recover on the bare facts stated.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.

YESTERDAY'S HAPPIEST THANKSGIVING DINNER.

LY KELL Photo.

THE CO-OPERATION THANKSGIVING DINNER given yesterday by the seven eminent Democrats who issued the famous peace manifesto to the G. O. P. soon after election was one of the happiest events of a happy day. The seven eminent Democrats had as their guests seven equally eminent Republicans and a happy time was had by all. There were only two bits of discord—some Democrat whose name could not be learned said something about a special session of congress being inevitable, but was immediately hustled to the door and given his hat. At another time, as Mr. Rascob started to carve the turkey, Sen. Moses of New Hampshire, white with fear, screamed: "Look out, boys, he's got a knife!" Mr. Rascob wittily replied that no one should be alarmed, as it was merely an old carving knife and quite dull, as because of the new Republican high tariff it was impossible for anybody to afford a new knife this year. This merry sally threw the Republican guests into gales of merriment and the dinner proceeded most happily. Among those in the photograph are Mr. Rascob (extreme left), Senator Moses (sneering at the sons of wild jackasses), Al Smith (looking at the record), Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio (behind the water pitcher), Nick Longworth (squeezing in at door by small majority), Jouett Shouse (third from right), and Senator Jim Ham Lewis (standing behind the whiskers).

LETTERS FROM HOME.

And, dovelike, flutter from the postman's hands,
Letters from home and all the things they say,
And redolent with charm of old home lands.

They tell the little things we love to hear
And all the family circle sealed therein,
The town where every hallowed spot is dear
And mingled joy and sorrow all within.

Mother's solicitude, Dad's admonitions, too,
And news of brother's fortune on the rise,
Sister's approaching marriage and her love to you,
And how that Bobbie's grown an awful size.

The family next door that moved away,
The girl that you admired, gone on the stage.
New faces on the street have come to stay.

CLARENCE P. MILLIGAN.

THEY USED TO tell us, "You can't eat your cake and have it, too." But it's different with turkey; we ate it yesterday and we'll pick the bones today, and have turkey hash tomorrow, and something else with turkey in it Sunday, and so on and so on. Anyhow, you don't have to be thankful except the one day. Being thankful as long as that dam turkey lasts would be asking too much.

COL. LINDBERGH is comfortably ensconced within the sacred portals of the New York Blue Book, but Col. Gene Tunney got the gate. We hardly know which was a greater cause for thankfulness yesterday—getting in the Blue Book or getting out. Anyhow, it's perfectly safe to congratulate both parties.

We Forgot to Say It Was Fri., Dec. 5.

The Linebook of 1930, we rise to announce, will be out in just one week from today—namely, to wit: Friday, December 5th. Paste or write in your hat that most important date—Friday, December 5th. We very modestly think it's the best Linebook of all. And more modestly, still we think the cover is by far the best, but because of our extreme and shrinking modesty we will say no more about it. Jerry Byrnes of the Business Survey thought it up or we would be too darned shy to speak of it at all. Anyway, shrinking violet though we be, the cover is a wowwowski. You wait and see. Anyhow, what we started to say is that the new Linebook will be out Friday, December 5th—one week from today. Marvelous for Christmas presents and within the price of all—10 cents on the hoof, 12 cents by mail. Friday, December 5th.—Adv.

P. S.: The Linebook comes out in a week on Friday, in December, the fifth day.

WE KNOW NOW how to tell if a man or a woman is a dry or a wet. You start talking about the Wickersham report to 'em; if they're wet they smile and ask you what you want for Christmas, and if they're dry they turn ashen pale and tremble like a little autumn leaf in a wintry gale.

OUR NEXT TASK

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 28, 1914.

PETROGRAD.—The Russians are pressing inward with the object of enclosing a great part of the German army which is halted within a crooked triangle, the apex of which is Koluzki railway junction and the base of which bends through the country below Lowicz and Lodz. The Germans are bringing reserves in from East Prussia in the hope of saving the isolated advance column. Everywhere on the great battlefront stretching through East Prussia, Russian Poland and Galicia, the armies of Germany and Austria have been forced back.

LONDON.—The bombardment of Reims by the Germans continues fiercely. More than 300 shells fell in the city yesterday and the fire was anything but intermittent today, a Chalons dispatch says. The dispatch also says that the cathedral is the chief target of the German gunners and that the crown has been knocked off the north tower. Many persons have been killed during the bombardment.

NEW YORK.—Society here and abroad will be interested in an engagement just announced, that of Miss Evelyn Marshall of this city to Marshall Field III. of Chicago and London. Miss Marshall is the only daughter of the late Charles H. Marshall, who was prominent in the social life of New York. Mr. Field arrived in New York tonight from England on the Lusitania.

LONDON.—Great Britain has lost three more ships to the enemy within a short distance of the home coast.

CHICAGO.—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw gave a dance in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone to present their daughter, Miss Evelyn Shaw, to society.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 28, 1900.

ST. PAUL.—United States Senator Cushman Kellogg Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations of the senate, died at his home here after an illness of two months. Serious kidney trouble and other complications, following an operation for a slight injury to his foot during the campaign, caused death. He was 62 years old.

CHICAGO.—Resolutions indorsing Graeme Stewart for the Republican nomination for mayor next spring were unanimously adopted by the 22d and 24th ward clubs.

CHICAGO.—"Divine healing" could not cure "Dr." John Alexander Dowie's sister, Mrs. Samuel Stevenson, who died of pneumonia and was buried at sea while homeward bound from Europe. The news was sent to Zion by her husband, a deacon in the Christian Catholic church, who said that his wife "bravely refused medical attention to the last."

CHICAGO.—Miss Gertrude V. O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. O'Brien, 3632 Grand boulevard, and Francis J. Sullivan, will be married this evening at Holy Angels church, Oakwood boulevard and Vincennes avenue.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 28, 1880.

CHICAGO.—Information is that Maj. Waite will be chief deputy of Sheriff Elect Mann and that Conrad Folz will be jailer.

CHICAGO.—The well known architect, George O. Garnsey, in connection with Wallace Hume, theatrical architect, is preparing plans for the new Criterion theater to be erected on Sedgwick street, near Division street.

LONDON.—Much bitterness has been excited in some quarters by Lord Beaconsfield's caricature of Thackeray, whom the great satirist's admirers profess to identify beneath the traits of St. Barbe, the journalist in "Endymion."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Garfield, the President elect, and his wife were honor guests at a banquet given by President and Mrs. Hayes at the White House. Among the distinguished guests were Chief Justice Waite, Richard Smith of the Cincinnati Gazette, Congressman Butterworth of Ohio, George Bancroft, and Senator Morrill. In accordance with the White House custom under the management of Mrs. Hayes, no wine was served. The elaborate and costly new White House china, manufactured in France from the designs of Theodore R. Davis of Harper's Weekly, was used for the first time.

THE COSTS OF PROHIBITION.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—The protest that was registered throughout the United States on Nov. 4 against the prohibition law has, I believe, caused many a taxpayer to start thinking in dollars and cents. I know it has caused me to do some thinking along this line, and I am anxious to give to the public the results of a little research I have made.

In nine years the United States government has spent $343,540,198 for federal enforcement of the prohibition act.

During the same period $44,574,820 has been collected in the federal courts for fines. This makes a net outlay of $200,000,000 for enforcement, of which $151,540,198 has been spent by the prohibition unit and the coast guard; the estimated customs service expenditures for five years were $120,000,000, and the department of justice expenditures are estimated at $72,000,000 annually.

The estimated cost to taxpayers of this country, including federal expenditures for enforcement and a conservative allowance for federal and state revenue, is $936,000,000, of which approximately $300,000,000 a year is for federal and local revenue losses, based on present population.

Federal appropriations for enforcement and annual losses of federal revenue total $886,000,000, and this sum is $3,262,886 more than the government receives annually from the total federal income tax levied each year upon the people of the United States.

Recently Dr. James Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, suggested that the states contribute $250,000,000 annually to assist in prohibition enforcement and, if this demand is adhered to, it will cost the taxpayers of the United States $1,200,000,000 a year, or $317,272,886 more than the income tax receipts.

The tragedy of the whole situation is that with our men walking the streets seeking employment, with the propaganda being put forth to inspire purchases so that employment might be created, we find that approximately $50,000,000 is spent annually in Quebec alone by American tourists who go there for the purpose of indulging in the personal liberty that is offered just across the border. It is estimated that American tourists spent approximately $156,000,000 in Canada in three years.

It is interesting to note that in 1914 the best beer could be secured at $5.50 a barrel and $1 of this went to the government for tax; in 1915 the government raised its tax and got $1.50 on each barrel of the best beer that sold for $6.50 a barrel. In 1918, with the war-time measure in force, the best beer cost $8 a barrel and the government received $3 as tax. In 1919 the best beer sold for $14 a barrel (six months before prohibition), and the government received $6 a barrel on every barrel of beer. Today, under prohibition, beer from the beer runner brings $55 a barrel, and the government gets nothing.

I feel that there is a solution of this tremendously expensive experiment that is going on in the United States, and that is modification by congress immediately of the Volstead act and the passage of laws that will permit of the adoption of the Canadian system, which permits hotels to sell beer and wine with meals, taverns to sell beer and wine by the glass, restaurants to sell beer and wine with meals, beer stores to sell beer by bottles, breweries to sell beer to taverns and beer stores, clubs to sell beer and wine by the glass and to keep liquor for members, steamboats to sell beer and wine by the glass in dining rooms and in staterooms between meals, dining cars to sell beer and wine by the glass, and banquets to serve beer and wine.

This action should be taken by congress immediately as an emergency measure to start the "taking up of the slack in the employment situation" and to bring back the loss of revenue to the country.

This emergency legislation should be in vogue while the work of repealing the eighteenth amendment is going forward, and I am sure that this movement started in congress would act as a remedy to bring back employment, crush crime and to bring back respect for law and order, which has apparently been broken down entirely by the crookedness that has crept into the prohibition enforcement process.

I think that every citizen who is interested in bringing about correction in this bad situation should immediately write to his congressman and senator and insist on action along the lines suggested, because by doing so he is taking a step toward reducing his own taxes.

BLOWING OFF STEAM.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—THE TRIBUNE appears to be unable to break out of its oscillations between whining and braying. It whines its puerility at Senator Fess in a discourteous and unfair manner and shortly brays its asininity in advice to a dry congress. In the meantime it plays up a billion dollar headline that appears to verge perilously near such stuff as would raise the dust of Ananias.

In the opinion of the writer, these well defined characteristics, together with the tendency to take itself seriously, make THE TRIBUNE on all counts the world's greatest nuisance as well as the outstanding example of perverted journalism. A pertinent and timely question is: Why should any intelligent person either seek or accept advice from THE TRIBUNE? As to fanaticism and racketeering, the writer is of the opinion that these are among the objects concerning which THE TRIBUNE should remain silent—unless it is in the mood to make a confession.

EDWARD J. WEBSTER.

BARKING DOGS.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—A writer in the Voice of the People this morning complains about dogs being poisoned in his neighborhood. He says that if the offender had ever known the "loyalty, devotion, and love of a dog he could scarcely act as he does."

There may be another side to the question. This person may appreciate the good qualities of a dog as much as the writer does, but what if he is kept awake night after night with barking dogs in the neighborhood? He may be ruining his health, having his nerves racked, becoming unfit for carrying on his duties in life. Is a dog to be preferred to a man? PETE REITMEIER.

ONE MAN BUSES.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—At a time when kind hearted people are trying to create jobs for the jobless I would like to learn why the bus companies of Chicago have let one man off each bus and put the work of two men on the driver. He has to make change, see that the fares are deposited, open and close doors, dodge traffic, and look after the welfare of the patrons. As far as I can see, the patronage of the bus companies is up to normal. Why were the men let out? G. W. BURK, M. D.

IRRITANTS IN ROAD RIDING

[Punch (Copyright).]

Wife of Motorist: "And what makes it doubly annoying is that my husband's a strict teetotaler."

LICENSE BUREAU OF CITY CALLED NEEDLESS WASTE

Schmidt Seeks to Cut Its Appropriation.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

George K. Schmidt, city controller, recommends the elimination of nine-tenths of the municipal department of license, with its 161 jobs, as useless. Superintendent of License B. O. Smith asks a total 1931 appropriation of $324,120. Controller Schmidt says that $35,000 is sufficient.

This bureau is supposed to persuade individuals and concerns to pay their license fees to the city. In his figures, Controller Schmidt asserts that the department is a needless expense. One of its supposed tasks is to have every auto owner obtain a city vehicle license. Schmidt estimates the receipts from these fees this year at $5,350,000; and next year at exactly the same figure, despite the normal increase in automobiles.

Collected More Before Creation.

In other license fees, which this department is supposed to aid in collecting, the city controller's reports show that many more license fees were collected before this department was created than since. Before the bureau was created in 1921, $3,045,037 was collected and in 1923 $3,008,660 was paid in general license fees.

In 1927, after the bureau was created, these corresponding fees totaled only $2,718,889, and for next year Controller Schmidt estimates that they will be $2,688,700. In a word, after setting aside more than $300,000 in added expense to collect licenses the revenue therefrom is more than $300,000 less than before the bureau was created.

The department has had the reputation for several years of being a reservoir for jobs with which to get aldermanic votes on council matters. A very large percentage of these jobs go to Democratic aldermen who are in control of the city council. They trade their votes in the council for jobs in this bureau.

Won't Vote Against Jobs.

In the stringent financial condition of the city last year Schmidt practically recommended the abolition of this department. The council refused. The aldermen refused to vote against jobs for their ward workers.

That reason for inaction has disappeared. The Democratic aldermen can take their constituents out of the license bureau and place them in offices won at the Nov. 4 election. The bureau has 161 jobs. In the Municipal court alone the Democrats obtained 647 jobs—287 in the bailiff's office, 353 in the clerk's office, and seven in the office of the chief justice, aside from the 28 probation officers. They obtained a pay roll in that court alone of $1,701,700. In the offices of county treasurer, board of assessors, and clerk of the Criminal court they added $1,281,000 in pay roll spoils for 533 more ward workers.

In the sanitary district heretofore the Democrats, according to the reported bipartisan deal, have had only 60 per cent of the jobs, which it was announced last January totaled 1,040. So in the district the Democrats will add about 400 jobs for an annual outlay of $960,000. The jobs which the Republican county commissioners have had will be added to the Democratic spoils, the Democratic member of the board of review will pick up some places and there are other spots where still more jobs will be had. The Democratic estimate of 2,000 added jobs is probably not far from accurate, and the political urge to retain jobs in the department of license does now exist.

In addition the 20 per cent tax increase payable April 1 may wean some Democratic aldermen away from the city administration, so that they will vote for Controller Schmidt's recommendation.

Wants Money to Serve Public.

Schmidt does not urge that the money be not spent. He suggests that all but $35,000 of the $324,000 be expended where it will give some service to the public and create jobs for persons willing to work.

It is planned—against Schmidt's advice—that the $324,000 be taken from the city auto license fees and spent by the department of license on job holders. The controller recommends in his budget that all but $35,000 for the license department be left in the vehicle license fund and spent for the repair of streets.

He has the support of some local improvement associations which have threatened a suit to prevent the taking of street repair money for city hall jobs.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY IN INDIANA WILL BE 350 FEET WIDE

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A 350 foot right of way will be purchased for the Lincoln Memorial highway, which will join the Illinois unit of the project at Vincennes, it was announced at the state house here today. The highway will extend northward from Hodgenville, Ky., birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, through Lincoln City, Ind., where the boy Lincoln lived fourteen years, and on to Springfield, Ill., where he became famous as a lawyer and statesman and where he is buried.

It has not yet been determined where the highway will cross the Ohio river from Kentucky into Indiana. A state highway already exists from Lincoln City to Vincennes via Evansville, but it is not of the width that is desired. A new bridge may be built across the Ohio to accommodate the highway.

Pilot and Aviatrix Wed While 2,000 Feet Up

Edward Brooks, chief test pilot for a Chicago aircraft company, flew down to Bloomington yesterday to the home of Miss Evelyn Bell, who also has a pilot's license. Accompanied by the Rev. Harry W. Talley of the Second Christian church they then ascended to an altitude of 2,000 feet in a cabin plane, where the Rev. Mr. Talley united them in marriage. They will leave tomorrow for Texas for an aerial honeymoon.

SEIZE TWO AS PICKPOCKETS.

Edward Schon, 3636 Wallace street, and George Ogerholdt, 921 North Mozart street, alleged pickpockets, were arrested by Sergt. Michael Lavelle and his squad yesterday as they alighted from a street car at 72d and Halsted streets.

"Let's Make This A Good OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS"

U. S. PROPOSES STATE CONTROL OF POWER WORK

Recommendation Made in Commission Report.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Responsibility for control over water power developments belongs primarily to the individual states rather than to the federal government, according to the annual report of the federal power commission, made public today by Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, acting chairman of the commission.

Citing complaints made by state authorities that governmental interference in certain such projects had resulted in duplication of authority, the report declared that "clearly the government has the principal obligation in safeguarding the interests of navigation and the federal properties as may be affected by water power projects, but in other respects the control of these developments is largely a matter of state interest.

Dual Authority Seen.

"Since this situation involves a considerable degree of dual authority there are present the elements of possible conflict and confusion which might seriously impede desirable developments unless state and federal agencies find a basis whereby each may properly supplement and not duplicate each other."

The report revealed that only about 10 per cent of the 449 plants licensed so far by the commission are east of the Mississippi river. The three Pacific coast states together have about one-half the total plants, while California alone accounts for more than one-third.

The commission also made note of the fact that about 80 per cent of the 2,603,868 horsepower capacity of all licensed plants in the country is confined to Alabama, California, Maryland and New York, explaining that "the effect of legislation so far has been of sectional rather than broad national significance."

Immediate construction of projects costing more than $70,000,000 has been made possible through recent authorizations, the report stated, adding that "the construction program on these projects will contribute measurably to the stimulation of industrial activity in the localities affected." The most important of these new projects, according to the commission, are the Bagnell dam on the Osage river, Missouri; the Safe Harbor dam on the Susquehanna river, Pennsylvania; the Rock Island dam on the Columbia river, and the Ariel dam on Lewis river, Washington; and the Flathead lake project in Montana.

Reorganization of the commission, according to the recommendation of President Hoover in his message to congress a year ago, substituting full time commissioners for the secretaries of war, agriculture and interior who now compose the commission, was effected by the passage of the Couzens bill last June.

CONFESSES SLAYING BUT DENIES ONE HE'S DOING LIFE TERM FOR

Decorah, Ia., Nov. 27.—(AP)—After maintaining his innocence for nine years B. F. Kneeskern, life prisoner in the Fort Madison penitentiary, has admitted the slaying of Charles Van Brocklin of Castalia.

J. A. Nelson, former county attorney, today made public a statement by Kneeskern in which he denied killing Mrs. Van Brocklin for whose slaying he was convicted, but admitted he shot her husband to death. Kneeskern said he killed the man in self defense after the latter had slain Mrs. Van Brocklin in a cabin near Castalia, Dec. 11, 1921.

Nelson said Kneeskern called him to Fort Madison two days ago and made the sworn statement voluntarily, saying he had reached the conclusion that the truth should be told. Nelson indicated the prisoner would seek a pardon from the governor.

The statement said that Van Brocklin charged Kneeskern with having been intimate with his wife and having shot her without further discussion. Kneeskern then grabbed his own gun and ran outdoors, he said, followed by Van Brocklin, who brandished an axe. Kneeskern said he shot without realizing the full import of his action.

AGREE ON PLANS FOR TRANSFER OF PUBLIC DOMAIN

U. S. Will Retain Control in Mineral Areas.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Transfer of the public domain to the states, with the reservation by the government of subsurface rights in known mineral areas, will be the basis upon which final action will be taken in January by President Hoover's public lands committee.

The tentative plan decided upon by the committee represents a compromise between the positions of the government and the states.

Secretary Wilbur's original suggestion was that only surface rights be yielded, while representatives of many of the eleven public land states insisted that subsurface rights be included in the transfer.

Members of the committee, which convened in Washington Nov. 10, today were en route to their homes with the varied recommendations they will make to congress well crystallized and awaiting only a final decision.

Proposals Voted by Committee.

Tentative proposals voted by the committee include:

That the President and secretary of the interior be given power to negotiate with the states, at the states' request, to provide for the transfer.

That a survey be made by federal and state representatives to determine government needs for forest preserves, parks, national monuments, power sites, fuel supplies, etc.

State administration and policing of the acreage and recognition of states' methods of range control.

Division of Income.

Sale of power developed upon reclamation projects to repay costs of the reclamation, and division of later income into 10 per cent for the government; 37½ per cent to the states; and 52½ per cent to the reclamation fund.

Flood control by the government where needed, under a policy similar to that pursued in the Mississippi valley.

Provision by congress for a farm relief fund to repay irrigation districts through loans on the basis of appraised lands.

Continuance by the government of the federal highway program on a more equitable basis for states with great areas but of small population.

Interstate agreements covering water control and elimination of theories of federal ownership and control, with the dismissal of all pending cases predicated upon such policies.

178,969,446 Acres in Nevada.

Recognition of state sovereignty in dealing with control, development and utilizatio of resources, with the assistance of the government where more than one state is involved.

Many of the major suggestions agreed upon by the committee were advocated by Nevada, in which lies nearly one-third of th remaining 178,969,446 acres of public domain.

COPS DRIVE REDS FROM CITY HALL IN BERLIN RIOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Communists erected barricades of chairs and desks in the council chamber of the Berlin Rathaus tonight in defiance of orders for their ejection after riotous scenes. Police reinforcements stormed the strongholds with their night sticks, driving 54 communist councilors into the street.

The Fascist councilors then marched out in sympathetic protest and both groups combined to incite further disturbances among a mob of several thousand which had assembled. Police charged the crowd and cleaned the square near the Rathaus. The trouble began when the councilors learned that the governor of Berlin had appointed two state commissioners to enforce the poll, beer, and property taxes, which the city fathers had rejected.

Riot on Bridge Over Rhine.

COLOGNE, Germany, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Communists battled Fascists high above the Rhine tonight when troops of National Socialists, returning to Deutz from a massmeeting in Cologne, encountered a force of several hundred communists on the Hohenzollern bridge. The communists, armed with pistols, forced the Fascists to retreat, with five wounded.

"On one particularly black night I took off from Hadley Field with a big load of mail for the West. At the perilously low height of 200 feet my engine suddenly went dead! We nosed down. The thought flashed to me, it won't take long for this baby to crash!

"With a little fancy stickwork I managed to momentarily ease her out of it. We headed for three trees. A stone wall. Dodged. Hesitated. Then I saw a big red barn barge up before me! Believe you me! That was one moment I HAD to keep cool!"

CREATING SALES FOR THE MANUFACTURER

From all parts of the country manufacturers send their merchandise to the retailers of New York—so that they in turn may sell it to the people of this huge market.

Automobiles and motor boats, razor blades and talcum powder, ice boxes and vacuum cleaners, silk stockings and foundation garments — a myriad of commodities filling a myriad of needs are sold by the country's well-known manufacturers to the 11,300,000 people of New York—through the retailers.

In determining what newspapers to use to increase his New York sales, what better advice can the manufacturer take than the advice of the New York retailers—many of whom are outlets for his own merchandise? The retail stores of New York — including the great department stores — use more space in The Sun than in any other New York newspaper. Manufacturers seeking to stimulate retail sales of their products in New York will get the best results by following the preference of the retail stores—and putting The Sun first on their New York schedules.

J. M. BECK FLAYS METHODIST PLAN TO REAPPORTION

Proposed "Alien" Clause Hits State Rights.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The proposal of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals to amend the reapportionment law so that aliens would not be counted in determining the number of representatives from the various states, was attacked as unconstitutional tonight by Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], former solicitor-general of the United States. He asserted the purpose of the move was to "sustain the falling edifice of prohibition."

Directing his attack against Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist board, Mr. Beck termed the Methodist proposal a "revolutionary step." He said its effect would be to take from industrial states a portion of their power and transfer it to the agricultural states.

"If the industrial states," he said, "accept, lying down, the proposed destruction of their due representation in congress, then they need not hereafter complain if our government becomes as socialistic as soviet Russia."

Done to Save Dry Law.

"It is lamentable," Mr. Beck continued, "that a representative body of citizens, in their effort to support the crumbling edifice of prohibition, should be willing to destroy another basic principle of our form of government. When the fanatical drys lobbied the eighteenth amendment into the constitution, they destroyed the fundamental basis of our government namely, local self-government—and now they propose to reapportion political power among the states contrary to the express mandate of the constitution, as it has been uniformly interpreted from the very beginning of our government.

"No reasonable man can study the plain language of the constitution, or read the history of the convention that framed it, and have any reasonable doubt as to its meaning. The great question of the convention was the relative power of the states and the proportions in which they would contribute to the public treasury.

Saw Danger at Outset.

"It was at first proposed that the basis of apportionment should be left to the discretion of congress and it was at once pointed out, in unconscious prophecy of Dr. Wilson's present suggestion, that this would admit of infinite abuse.

"The convention therefore decided that the constitution should itself provide an inflexible rule, by which representation should be 'in proportion to the whole number of white and other free citizens and inhabitants of every age, sex and condition', etc. The slaves, then considered as property, were to be included on an artificial three-fifths basis.

Avoids Constitution Change.

"For one hundred and forty years aliens, in each succeeding decennial census, have always been included in the basis of representation, and if congress now were to constitute a different basis of political power on the theory that the constitution did not include aliens among 'persons,' it would mean, in effect, that this nation from its very beginning, was never properly oganized. To attempt a different theory now, would be a revolutionary step.

"It could, of course, be accomplished by a constitutional amendment, but that is not the proposal of the eminent Methodist temperance board. It desires, by an act of congress, in plain violation of the constitution, to take from the industrial states a portion of their power and transfer it to the agricultural states.

"If accomplished, it is virtually a coup d'état, for, in taking 35 seats from the industrial states, it would ordinarily shift the balance of power.

"While the purpose of the Methodist temperance board is to sustain the falling edifice of prohibition, the movement has a deeper and more portentous significance. The agricultural sections of this country have looked with concern upon the growth of political power in the industrial sections, due to the shifting of population to urban centers, and the clear purpose is to impair the growing power of the industrial states.

Hits Industrial States.

"If they succeed in this purpose, we may look for further dissipation of public funds by socialistic measures. Three industrial states pay more than one-half of the income tax, but the agricultural states, which contribute relatively a small amount to the treasury, get an undue proportion of appropriations. Thus, the government subsidizes farm products to the extent of 500 million dollars and itself buys wheat to stabilize the market, but it has never granted like aid to the coal, copper or textile industries, which also suffer from a surplus."

HUNT FOR EVIDENCE WITHOUT WARRANT TO GET HIGH COURT TEST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The right of prohibition agents without a warrant to ransack private premises in a search for evidence soon is to be tested in the United States Supreme court in the case of Philip D. Gowen and William Bartels of New York, charged with conspiracy to violate the dry law.

Defeated in the lower courts, Gowen and Bartels appealed for and received a writ allowing them a hearing before the Supreme court on the ground that the evidence used to convict was illegally seized in that the dry agents had no right to make a warrantless raid in the offices of the Go-Bart Importing company of which they were representatives.

The department of justice today made public its brief in the case in which it contends that a dry agent has a right without a warrant to search the immediate premises under control of those arrested, for the purpose of obtaining "things used to carry on a criminal enterprise" and to seize any of such article which he might find.

HOWELL PUSHES DRASTIC DRY ACT FOR WASHINGTON

Calls Capital "Sanctuary for Bootleggers."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Senator Robert B. Howell [Rep., Neb.] announced today that he would work for the enactment of his bill for a District of Columbia dry law at the coming session of congress. The bill now is pending on the senate calendar. It is so drastic in its provision that it has won the unofficial title of "the home raid bill."

Depend on U. S. Enforcers.

Washington, seat of the national government, is nothing less than "a sanctuary for bootleggers," the Nebraska senator declared. The capital now must depend on federal prohibition enforcement and on such limited powers to deal with liquor violations as the District police possess.

At the mention of wet victories in the recent elections, Senator Howell answered:

Vice and Prohibition.

That conditions are at least somewhat as the senator described them was proved by today's issuance of the District police vice and prohibition squad's report, which showed it had made 750 arrests in three months. The squad's latest activities included the arrests of six persons for the illegal possession of liquor and the seizure of four stills, some two dozen quarts of whisky, 66 bottles of beer, and 140 gallons of mash.

WEDS, LOSES JOB, TURNS ROBBER, HE TELLS POLICE

Married and discharged from his job at virtually the same time, Joseph L. Giblin, 23 years old, turned to banditry, taking his young bride, Geraldine, 18 years old and red haired, with him on his crime excursions.

This story was revealed last night at the Woodlawn police station where the newlyweds were held, following their arrest on Thanksgiving eve. Giblin confessed half a dozen holdups of which his wife professed ignorance.

Giblin, an elevator operator in a loop hotel, eloped with Geraldine two weeks ago. Shortly afterward he lost his job. Then, he said, he turned to crime. His practice, according to police, was to take his wife to the neighborhood of a contemplated holdup, leave her in a nearby drug store, and then commit the robbery.

BANDIT ROBS CIGAR STORE.

A bandit stole $200 last night when he entered the United Cigar store at 183 West Washington street, and threatened Raymond Edwards, 1640 West 37th place, with death.

DOWN in some garage the family car is sheltered while the family shivers as it plods through the sleet of winter. Father drove it to work this morning. So the family goes to school, to the grocer, to visit, wading through the snowdrifts, shivering.

When a man parks the family car in a garage he helps winter put shackles on his family. He invites illness to his home. Without a car, the family is confined indoors or must venture over icy pavements and through slushy puddles.

Free the family from winter! Get a second car in which your wife can get about. Eliminate her winter nerves, born of loneliness and boredom. Keep the children well and at school. Let them have a car. LOW COST MEAT SHOWS DEMAND IS PRICE FACTOR

Drops at Butcher's and on Hoof.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Regardless of retail meat values in Chicago today, wholesale prices of beef, pork, and lamb continued to decline sharply in the last five weeks, a survey of the markets indicates.

In the case of such meat cuts as beef loins, packers' prices dropped 9 cents in the period between Oct. 20 and Nov. 24, a decrease of 35 per cent, while the shoulder cuts were being offered to local butchers at a reduction of nearly 3 cents, or 16 per cent, in the same period.

Condition Is Unprecedented.

This situation was said yesterday by government officials and by packers' representatives to be an unprecedented condition in the fall of the year, when consumption normally increases demand and raises both retail and wholesale prices. They declared that this condition emphasized the fact that demand, as measured by the revenue obtained from the sale of meats and by-products, is a greater factor in price determination than is supply. Receipts for live cattle in city markets has fallen off sharply at the same time that the prices of beef were tobogganing.

"Wholesale beef prices have decreased 11 per cent since the middle of September," declared a veteran packer observer, "partly because of the decreased buying of the public, and partly because of the keen competition beef has experienced by the cheapest pork, the cheapest poultry, the cheapest lambs, and many other food products that are selling at the lowest prices in a decade or more."

The decline in the wholesale beef packer and in by-product values of such items as hides, fat, and casings, plus corresponding increased costs in overhead on a smaller volume of slaughtering were said yesterday by one packing official to represent a total decrease of $28 per beef animal for the week of Nov. 24, as compared with the same week a year ago. It represents a drop of $15 per animal, as compared with the middle week of September, he asserted.

Fowls Wholesale Lower.

"Turkeys and holiday poultry in general were wholesaling yesterday in Chicago at the lowest figures which have obtained in twenty years," said another packing firm official whose poultry business is one of the largest in the middle west. "Declines of from 7 to 8 cents per pound have taken place within a month or so, until present prices are from 4 to 11 cents a pound less than they were in 1928. In some cases this is a cut of one-third in the price of the fowl."

That retailers hesitate to lower prices for fear that they will soon meet, and necessitate explanations to customers, was given by wholesalers interviewed yesterday as the principal reason butchers have not reflected these drastic poultry reductions in their retail quotations.

GINGER POUND CAKE FAVORITE OF FALL DAYS

Nantucket ginger pound cake is a fit food for fall days and for evenings when families come home from the theater. Here is how to make it: One pound of flour, one-half pound of butter, one pound of sugar, one teaspoonful of ginger and six eggs. Stir the butter and sugar to a fine foamy cream; beat the yolks and whites of the egg separately, and until light. Add the yolks and then the whites to the butter and sugar; beat well sift in the flour and ginger and mix thoroughly. Make very thin in square cornered pans. Sift over fine sugar as soon as taken from the oven, and cut into squares for the table.

BODY IS LEARNING TO TAKE FOOD AND NOT GET TOO FAT

The human being is developing a mechanism to protect him against fat, according to Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Along with the speeding up in habits of living, there is beginning to be noted a speeding up of the metabolism by the foodstuffs, particularly proteins, he said.

Dr. Fishbein thus holds out hope for the persons who like good food and plenty of it. He points out, nevertheless, that a majority of people get fat when they eat too much. Many people, it is now recognized, however, do not get fat on a diet which would cause others to put on weight rapidly, he said.

Keeps Excess Fat Down.

"Dr. Russell M. Wilder of the University of Chicago has pointed out," he said, "that if it were not for the speeding up of the work of this weight regulating center, a man who eats 90 calories of fat or carbohydrates in excess of, say, 2,000 calories, if his energy exchange is 2,000 calories a day, would gain 80 pounds in extra weight in 10 years. The 90 calories of extra food a day would amount to no more than a small pat of butter or a rich chocolate cream."

Just why more persons do not grow fat is a question not easily answered, Dr. Fishbein said. Hyperthyroidism, which often leads to loss of weight, is more general now than in the past, he points out.

"Thin persons usually are active and excitable, in contrast to the more quiet, less nervous temperament of fat persons. Emotional strain, the wear and tear on the nervous system, may lead to a freer secretion of epinephrine, a product of the suprenals. As epinephrine, like thyroid, heightens metabolism, it is possible for the nervous type to consume as much as an obese person does, and stay thin," said Dr. Fishbein.

Reducing Rules Unchanged.

But while obesity may not be caused by over eating, but may be due in some instances to a deficient mechanism for the burning up of food in the body, the rules for reducing obesity remain the same. Summarized, Dr. Fishbein said, they may be contained in this guide; Reduce the total number of calories consumed, but eat plenty of vitamins and proteins. Except in rare cases, 100 grams of protein a day should be taken, he said.

"Dr. Wilder has pointed out that the technic of reducing weight is exactly like that followed in the management of diabetes," he said. "The patient must want to reduce, and must be intelligent about it, otherwise it is in vain that an attempt is made.

"Reduction should be a gradual process. If too rapid, the strength of the heart and the nervous system may be harmed, and in that case the patient is uncomfortable and loses confidence, stopping his efforts altogether. No more than two pounds a week should be lost, and one pound is enough after the first 10 or 20 pounds."

Thin Person Lives Longer.

Fat is dangerous after middle life, according to Dr. Fishbein. The thin man over 50 years old is a better insurance risk than the fat man, he said.

"It should be remembered, though, that this is not true of the period of growth and adolescence," he said. "In the years when the body requires extra energy for growth, malnutrition is very dangerous. After middle age is reached, the body begins to degenerate, less energy being needed. That is when only as much food as is needed for fuel for daily activities should be consumed."

Many women attempt to reduce by use of thyroid preparations known to be dangerous, Dr. Fishbein said. These are sold in bottles which are not labeled as thyroid preparations, and while in Canada many druggists refuse to sell such preparations without a physician's orders, it is the practice in the United States to do so, he said.

"There is no law which requires thyroid to be labeled on bottles," he said. "There should be one, by all means, to declare thyroid and other dangerous drugs on labels, just as there is a law requiring that alcohol and narcotics in preparations must be declared.

"Thyroid as an extract prescribed by a physician who carefully watches the symptoms of his patient and regularly measures the basal metabolic rate, which is an index of the rate of chemical interchange in the body, is a useful drug. But an overdose, or its use without sufficient care, may produce serious symptoms which have been known to lead to death."

FARM OFFICIALS GATHER AT PRIZE THANKSGIVING MEAL

Forty officials of the American Farm Bureau federation and their wives attended the prize model farm Thanksgiving dinner of America, served in the house on the roof of Hotel Sherman.

The menu, suggested by Mrs. M. L. Freise, farm woman living near Redwood Falls, Minn., won first prize in a contest recently conducted by the federation's publication, Bureau Farmer. It was composed with the exception of olives, of articles of food that can be grown by all farmers.

The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, celery, salted nuts, olives, roast turkey and parsley dressing and giblet gravy, cranberry ice, glazed sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, peas and carrots, Waldorf salad with dressing, mince and pumpkin pies and coffee. One farmer declared the only improvement he could suggest, after enjoying the bounteous repast, was that from the farmer's standpoint—milk should be served.

The national judges in the contest were also present, including Mrs. Clara Ingram Judson, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Albert Stawle and Edward Kavawsy of the Hotel Sherman cuisine.

FIX POULTRY AND RABBIT FEAST FOR GOV. EMMERSON

Poultry dinners ought to be plentiful in the coming weeks if the downward swoop in wholesale prices of holiday fowl are any indication of what the housewife will buy on the retail counter. But Harvey C. Wood, veteran poultryman and manager of the Chicago Coliseum Poultry show, which opens in the glory of natural plumage here next Wednesday, maintains he has planned an opening feast for Gov. E. L. Emmerson and guests that defies equal in poultry menus.

Here it is: Chicken à la coliseum, international turkey toasties, bunnies on the bun, egg salad, and coffee. Translated into lay language, it means that the governor and poultry leaders will have nothing but poultry and rabbit dishes on their bill of fare.

Other notables expected to attend are Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, Assistant Secretary H. M. Dunlap, members of the agricultural committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, officials of the United States department of poultry husbandry and department of agriculture secretaries from 14 midwest states.

THE SWEET ROLL IS HUMBLE, BUT MERITS AN ODE

Magnate and Hobo Both Like It.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

O plebeian sweet roll, what a mighty pleasure thou art to an humble appetite. And to thee and thine, the lowly doughnut and crusty coffee cake, a dietetic amen.

Friends, some benevolent essayist ought to inscribe a piece dedicated to the sweet roll as an unsung aid to mankind. Which it is. Who hasn't at some time or other sensed a yearning for one of those sugar coated rolls, and what man, rich, poor, or middlin', hasn't set himself before a sweet roll and a cup of coffee—those humble princes of the Royal House of Food? Let the prevaricator step for'ard, for no such person exists!

Yes, friends, humble though it be, the unsung sweet roll merits an ode, an essay, preferably from the pen of some inspired scrivener to do for it what Dickens did for that unbelievable goose on Mrs. Cratchit's Christmas table.

You'll Find It Anywhere.

Venture where you will, in the mean eat-easies of West Madison street, in the luminous dinner rooms of the rich, you will find the abject sweet roll. True, the entree of the sweet roll is covert in loftier spheres, for it owns but a simple pedigree not in keeping with the aristocratic mien of tinier dainties. But its appeal is universal, even though its dinner-jacketed friend is forced to sneak into a common restaurant to renew acquaintance.

But what a friend is the sweet roll—and we include the doughnut, the coffee cake in the same category—to mankind. It assuages the appetite, it stifles growing hunger, it spreads a common camaraderie. It befriends hobo and magnate alike, and both, believe you, have been observed at table length partaking of the same fare—coffee and rolls.

There are times when the individual feels the twinge of a tiny hunger, not enough to demand a sumptuous feast, but merely sufficient to call for something simple. And there, friends, is where the belittled sweet roll, the unsung serf of foods, rises to lordly heights, for the individual, be he banker, be he clerk, just naturally wanders into a near-by restaurant and orders the simplest meal of all: "Coffee and rolls."

Ask for Them.

Don't think sweet rolls are taboo in your semi-smart restaurants or your ritzy cafés. If you don't see them on the menu, ask for them. Somewhere, somehow, the waiter will bring you sweet rolls. They're indispensable, as any honest caterer will admit. But they're the hoi polloi of foods, a sort of mongrel amidst the legitimate. Yet, to paraphrase a remark of Abe Lincoln, the public must like them, for it eats so many of them.

Have you ever paused before a bakery window and feasted your eyes on row upon row of brown butter filled rolls; on heaps of assorted oblongs, squares and rings, some plain, some filled with prunes, lemon, almond, raisin? And haven't they roused a sense of delicious taste and desire? Sure they have. And so have those crispy doughnuts, sometimes known as crullers, and the daddy of them all, good old dependable coffee cake. If the tiny cruller ever needs any reference, just hold a referendum among a couple of million doughboys who journeyed across the seas not so long ago.

Though humble their station in cuisine standards, sweet rolls, doughnuts, and coffee cake belong to the people. And, like the people, they're everywhere.

IT'S NOT KRAUT THAT GERMANS PRIZE AS FOOD

Dumpling Delicacy Ranks First.

BY PAUL JACOBY.

Contrary to popular supposition, pigs' knuckles and sauerkraut are not typically German. As a matter of fact, sauerkraut is more popular in the United States. Not that Germans disdain it, but they eat their sauerkraut with pork shanks instead of the customary ribs.

Germany, famed the world over for its food, has no national dish.

But there is one dish which has the universal appeal to the German epicure. It originated in Koenigsberg, capital of East Prussia, and is known as "Koenigsberger Klopps" or "Koenigsberger dumplings." The dumpling is the size of a baseball. The gravy or sauce plays an equally important rôle.

The mere mention of "Koenigsberger Klopps" makes German mouths water. The dish, though a particular favorite in Koenigsberg, has attained the distinction of being one of the tastiest pieces of German cooking. The German doesn't eat it weekly, or even monthly, because one can't eat turkey every day either.

A Job and an Art.

Preparation of the dumpling and the sauce is both a job and an art. The dish requires about as much time in preparation as a Christmas feast. The housewife toils as the husband eagerly awaits the dinner, which consists of nothing more than the dumplings, boiled potatoes, rye bread and butter.

The dumpling is frequently masqueraded as "Koenigsberger Klopps," but famous German food experts claim the following recipe as the only authentic one:

Ingredients for the dumplings include 1 pound of beef, 1 pound of pork, ½ pound of veal, two large onions, 2 lemons, 1 tablespoon of capers, 1 loaf of stale bread, 3 eggs. Grind the meat and mix with it the bread [soaked in water or milk and pressed dry], one whole egg, whites of two others, one grated onion. Add pepper and salt according to taste. Mix thoroughly and form into balls and boil them in the following sauce or gravy:

Three pints of water, 1 onion, parsley, 1 carrot, 4 bay leaves, 2 or 3 grains of whole pepper.

Taste Worth the Effort.

Cook together about 20 minutes, strain and add "Klopps." When dumplings are done, remove them into a hot dish. Add to the sauce 2 or 3 tablespoons of flour or cornstarch [diluted with milk or water] for thickening. Add the juice of two lemons, and, if preferred, a dash of vinegar. Finally add the yolks of the two eggs beaten into a small cup of water.

Place the "Klopps" back into the sauce and allow them to remain therein thirty minutes before serving.

The recipe is rather involved, but famous German restaurateurs, who serve "Koenigsberger Klopps" [not regularly], insist it must be followed to obtain the desired flavors.

Other German Dishes.

Other famous German dishes, peculiar to certain localities, are Bavarian liver dumplings, Wuertemberger "Spaetzle" [noodles], "Springerle" [Christmas cookies], and bratwurst. Nurnberg has its "Lebkuchen," while Berlin boasts the "Berliner Pfannkuchen," which is not a pancake, but more of a doughnut with jelly.

Eel soup is popular in Hamburg, and Lusebeck is famed for its Marzipan, that famous German confection. Its name is derived from St. Mark's bread and is made of ground almonds, rose water with various flavors, and formed into figurines.

Chicago's First Cold Storage Plant Was Open Air Affair

Picture a stack of frozen pork carcasses piled carelessly on the north bank of the river at Rush street through the winter of 1829-'30 and you visualize Chicago's first cold storage plant a hundred years ago.

Gurdon S. Hubbard, early fur trader and packer, it is recorded, found in the lakeside wilderness a demand for pork fattened on Illinois corn. Lacking barrels after slaughtering, he did the next best thing—piled the carcasses outdoors and let the winter coldness of the prairies do the rest.

Today cold storage is a huge industry, caring not only for the fresh butchered meats as in the pioneer Hubbard's day but hundreds of other foods. One of the greatest boons to housewives is the change of the old methods of heating or chilling to preserve perishable foods to the cold storage plant, which is really a large community icebox.

Storage Eggs Often Better.

Mention cold storage eggs to a housewife and she will not at first show enthusiasm for the cold storage system. Eggs as she thinks she likes them are eggs from the country, and the more recently they have been gathered from the barnyard nest the better. A cold storage egg to her is something to be tolerated only because city life has slowed up the contact between the farmer's produce and her neighborhood grocery.

Housewives, when they break an egg into pan for poaching in the winter, are usually unaware that the egg, a high quality April egg, is apt to be actually better than the average "fresh" egg received on the market during the winter months, and far superior to the poorer grades that reach the city during winter. Careful investigations by bureaus of the federal government and other agencies have discovered this.

If good eggs are put into storage, they will be good when they come out of a modern plant. Cold storage will not make a bad egg good, but it will keep a good egg good. Buyers have long since learned that it is folly to put anything but high grade eggs into storage.

Oversupply in Spring.

One half of the year's supply of eggs is laid during four months of the year—March, April, May and June. This means that more eggs are produced in spring than can be consumed. That is the reason eggs must be placed in storage. Then in winter when the production is low and prices are high, these stored eggs are put on the market. The result is that nobody need do without this food at any time during the year.

Eggs are considered important in diet and it would be a hardship to do without them during the fall and winter when the vitamins and minerals contained in eggs are sorely needed.

If it were not for cold storage, many housewives would not have angel food cake during the winter—nor poached eggs that "stand up."

WHAT TO SERVE WITH BEEF FOR VARIETY'S SAKE

Vegetables of Many Kinds Available.

For the housewife whose family is fond of beef, the question of what vegetables to serve to give variety to the meal is a vexing one.

Mashed potatoes have accompanied roast beef and French fried potatoes have been served with steak for so long that a departure may seem difficult. Some combinations which can make the meal a tempting one follow:

Roast beef—Browned or mashed potatoes, cauliflower, corn, green string beans, lima beans, asparagus, squash.

Filet of beef—Potatoes on the half shell, mashed, or escalloped; grilled or baked tomatoes, carrots, peas, mushrooms.

Tripe—Escalloped potatoes, peppers, onions, carrots.

A pleasing salad, with rolls, muffins, or biscuits; coffee, tea, or milk, and a light dessert will complete a well balanced and appetizing meal.

Dr. Landsteiner Wins Further Nobel Honors

NEW GREEN PEAS ARE THE DINER'S DELIGHT IF PROPERLY SERVED

New peas right out of the pod, green and firm and tender! There is no other item on the menu that so delights the connoisseur of vegetables as new green peas. But let that dish be brought to the table a sickly, shriveled mixture, or in the form of three or four dozen hard green bullets, and there's disappointment for the diner.

Making new peas edible is as simple as cutting the bread or boiling the water for tea. The rules to follow are easy:

Shell peas and cover with cold water 20 minutes. Be sure that you do not omit soaking the peas as directed, for that is one of the secrets of tender peas. Drain; cover with boiling salted water and cook until soft, 20 or 30 minutes. Drain, add a piece of fresh butter and season with salt and pepper.

BOTH SIDES DENY PROSPECT OF CUT IN PRICE OF MILK

No prospect of a reduction in the retail price of milk in Chicago was seen by representatives of the farmers and dealers price bargaining groups, who were interviewed yesterday on the probable effects of a recognized oversupply of dairy products and resultant lowered world prices on milk, butter, and cheese in market quotations.

"The milk dealers of Chicago, I feel sure, would like to continue the close coöperation we have enjoyed with the Pure Milk association (the farmers agency)," said Dr. F. D. Walmsley, president of the Borden company and the Milk council yesterday. "I believe a reduction in the retail price of milk would not increase consumption, and would only serve to further penalize the milk producers who supply the metropolitan area."

Officials of the Pure Milk association, composed of 19,000 farmers whose milk is sold in Chicago and eighteen nearby cities, likewise declared that no reduction in price could be justified by a study of the present situation.

OUR CUBS EAT RED MEAT AND ICE CREAM, TOO

Thick Steak Diet of Ball Players.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

What do athletes eat? You'd be surprised.

They eat just about what they want and just about as much as the capacity allows. At least that is true of the gentlemen known as ball players. They do not yield to any of the theories that a diet is of any importance. Their theory is "when you're hungry you gotta eat."

And when a ball player is hungry, which is most of the time, he concentrates on red meat, garnished by all that he possibly can crowd in without exceeding his allotment of meal money.

The collegians or other breeds of athletes who still believe in the so-called training table idea probably will say that a ball player can do these things because his work is easy. If playing ball for almost 200 days in a row is easy, then there is no such thing as work.

Steak Gospel Is Spread.

The red meat idea among ball players has experienced a big boom in recent years. Rogers Hornsby, Cub manager, did this. A steak of great depth so cooked as to have a blood red center is Mr. Hornsby's conception of an entire meal. And because he has been somewhat of a success as a hitter he has had no trouble spreading the steak gospel.

Hornsby also has other ideas that make him distinctive in an eating house. The steak comprises the regular dinner. To assist in washing it down he flanks it with a glass of milk. Occasionally it is followed by a dish of ice cream. He never touches green vegetables, which should constitute a shock for experts in dietetics. Put a plate of lettuce and tomato salad in front of Rogers and he probably would walk out on the party. He chides any player he catches eating that sort of "rabbit's food."

Hornsby Must Have His Milk.

Hornsby's case is additionally complicated by the fact that he regards coffee as something entirely unnecessary. He never gets away from the milk, morning, noon or night. He uses coffee only as a stimulant when outdoor in cold weather, as on a hunting trip. It gives him the kick the average man finds in a jolt of alleged or real red eye, from which Hornsby is a total abstainer. Neither has he ever smoked.

Still another fad for which Hornsby is credited is the bedtime pint of ice cream. Some years ago the word passed around the league that Rogers indulged himself thusly each night and immediately there was an epidemic of ball players running into the hotels before midnight, carrying pint containers of the frozen article. They all did it because they figured that the ice cream might be part of the answer to Hornsby's hitting skill. Even the pitchers got the habit. They all like to hit.

Among the many who believe Hornsby's theories on feeding are perfect is Guy Bush, the slatlike Mississippian. Guy all of last season went in heavy for steaks, not to mention the late evening ice cream social. Bush had a double purpose in mind. He wanted to fatten up his body as well as his batting average. He hasn't been able to add weight to either.

Hack's Theory Is Quantity.

The gay Hack Wilson, whose very appearance indicates he is a man of action in the dining room, has no finicky notions about what is good or otherwise. Quantity is Hack's theory of attack. If he happens to be especially famished after a hard day, he may ask for a second steak. He has been known to make away with three orders of fried potatoes at one sitting. Other items with which he rounds out a meal are too numerous to mention. He starts with soup and concludes with dessert, but it is what comes in between that counts with him.

The noon meal is the only one in which ball players display any con-

GOOD SALAD IS NUTRITION IN ITS PRETTIEST FORM

Natural Colors of the Ingredients Retained.

One of the heartrending aspects of cooking is that a woman must take fresh vegetables, beautiful, colorful vegetables, peel them and sometimes chop them, and put them on the fire, reducing them to a pulpy mass of indeterminate hue. With salads she need not do this. The vegetables and the fruits can remain themselves in color and taste and often in whole form.

The carrot, the cabbage, and such lowly vegetables may be diced and added to a vegetable salad. Raw, these vegetables have an appeal which is totally lacking when they are dished up hot, with or without cream sauce, forlornly changed from their wholesome natural state.

So far as fruits go, the variety a mixture of fruits offer is unlimited. An ingenious woman can devise a salad peculiarly her own. A salad does not have to be fancy to be good. No scalloped edges or other frills are at all necessary. In fact, the more natural fruits and vegetables look in salads, the better they taste.

Some Suggestions Here.

One of the best salads in the world is cinnamon apple salad, in which whole apples cooked in sugar and water and red cinnamon drops are then set among cool lettuce leaves and stuffed with cheese.

Grapefruit, in sections, combined with almonds on lettuce leaves, is one of the most beautiful and best salads conceivable, not too sweet nor too sour, and a perfect salad to have with a heavy meat course. Much simpler to prepare, however, is grapefruit aspic with almonds, the recipe for which follows:

Grapefruit Aspic with Almonds.

2 ounces chopped blanched almonds.
1 package lemon gelatin.
1 cup grapefruit juice.
¾ cup boiling water.
1 tablespoon sugar.

Cut the pulp of the grapefruit in dice and drain. Add the chopped almonds to the grapefruit. Dissolve the gelatin and sugar in the boiling water and add the grapefruit juice. When this is cool and beginning to thicken add the grapefruit and almond mixture. Pour into a mold and put in the refrigerator to harden. Serve as a salad with mayonnaise dressing or as a dessert with whipped cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Cinnamon Apple Salad.

2 cups sugar.
1 cup water.
1 cup cinnamon drops [candy].
6 medium sized firm apples.

Peel the apples, leaving a little of the peel around the stem and core. Put the apples in an open pan on top of the stove, pour over them the water, sugar, and cinnamon drops. Cook slowly, turning the apples frequently in the sirup until done. Cool and place on lettuce leaves, filling the centers of the apples with nuts and cream cheese and mayonnaise. If you do not wish a deep rose color, use less of the cinnamon drops. Yield: 6 servings.

Cream Cheese Salad.

1 cup thin cream.
¾ cup chopped almonds.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar.
1 cup whipped cream.
2 tablespoons gelatin.
½ cup milk.

Warm the thin cream and dissolve the cream cheese in it. Add the chopped almonds salt, and vinegar. Soak the gelatin in the milk and heat it over the steam, stirring until the gelatin is dissolved. Add to the first mixture and fold into the whipped cream. Mold in a ring mold and when firm turn out on lettuce leaves. This salad is especially good when fruit salad is heaped in the center of the ring. Yield: 7 servings.

Royal Salad.

1 cup finely shredded cabbage.
½ cup diced pineapple.
¾ cup marshmallows cut in small pieces.
¾ cup nut meats.
¾ cup salad dressing.
Crisp lettuce leaves.

Place cabbage, pineapple, marshmallows and nuts in alternate layers in salad bowl. Combine carefully with salad dressing. Pile lightly on crisp lettuce leaves. Yield: 5 servings.

ALEXANDRIA SALAD.

Romaine or lettuce.
1 cup sliced celery.
1 large grapefruit, sectioned out.
Mayonnaise or French dressing.
½ cup English walnuts, chopped.
¼ cup chopped ripe olives.

On a heart of romaine or lettuce place alternate rows of fine julienned celery and diced grapefruit that has been mixed with mayonnaise. Sprinkle with chopped nuts and ripe olives. Serve with French dressing. Yield: 5 servings.

BANANA SALAD.

Lettuce.
Salt.
Lemon juice.
Paprika.
Salad dressing.

Select large, ripe bananas. Remove skin and outside fibrous portion and cut lengthwise, then crosswise. Allow ½ banana for each serving. Arrange on lettuce leaf. Sprinkle with a little salt and lemon juice and a dash of paprika. Serve cold with mayonnaise into which has been folded whipped cream.

Yield: Six servings.

NOW IS THE TIME TO THINK ABOUT CHRISTMASCANDY

Making It at Home Is a Joy to Children.

BY META GIVEN.

On a cold raw Saturday when the children are home from school and the day invites indoor work, nothing is more exciting than to convert the kitchen into a candy factory. The children can have the lickings and mother can have the satisfaction of getting some Christmas gifts made at little expense.

Even the most sophisticated children of today are surprisingly responsive when they are exposed to some simple oldfashioned sport such as cake or candy pan licking.

A Chance for the Girls.

Girls in high school, old enough to do a little cooking, will want to make some candy themselves if their mothers start operations in the kitchen and they see how interesting it is to turn out fondant in all sorts of forms, fudge, cookies, and macaroons.

In former days less money and far more time and effort were spent on Christmas and a good deal more fun was had out of it. All of us can remember those anxious hours we spent stirring candy or hovering over a pan of it, testing it frequently in a glass of cold water, and the thrill of pouring it out on a greased platter. When cold, it was cut and put in wax paper in holly boxes for the various cousins and uncles and aunts.

Some Recipes Suggested.

Here are some recipes which are excellent for Christmas purposes, and which will bear thinking about even now:

DATE NUT ROLL.

1 cup evaporated milk 2 cups chopped nuts

Boil sugar and milk to soft ball stage [234 degrees F.]. Add dates and cook until they soften and blend with the mixture [236 degrees F.]. Add nuts. Cool, then turn onto a buttered platter and knead until creamy and stiff. Shape neatly in a roll. Wrap in a damp cloth and place in cover container until ready to slice. Yield: 1⅞ pounds.

PLAIN FONDANT.

3 cups granulated sugar 1-3 tsp. cream tartar 1½ cups boiling water

Put all the ingredients into the saucepan and stir until sugar dissolves. Boil briskly without stirring to soft ball stage [238 degrees F.]. This cooking requires about 20 minutes. Wrap a dampened cloth around the tines of a fork and remove any crystals that collect above the sirup during cooking. Remove from fire and as soon as bubbles disappear pour into shallow dish or platter. Do not scrape any of the sirup from the pan, because such agitation will start crystallization.

Set platter on a rack so that sirup may cool from bottom as well as the sides. Cool until platter can be held with comfort on the hand. Then beat sirup with a wooden spoon until it loses its stickiness and becomes a mass solid enough to handle. Gather together and knead until it is free from lumps and is plastic. Place in a jar, cover with damp cloth, then jar cover. Let stand at least 24 hours before using. It will keep for weeks if kept tightly covered and in a cool place. Yield: 1¼ pounds.

MAPLE FUDGE.

1 cup granulated sugar ⅓ cup water
2 tbsp. butter
1 cup maple sugar ½ cup evaporated milk
1 tbsp. corn sirup
Few grains salt

Boil all ingredients except the milk to a thick sirup. Add milk slowly so that the mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Stirring continuously, boil to soft ball stage [235 degrees F.]. Remove from fire. All crystalline mixtures should be cooled thoroughly before beating if texture is to be fine. Do not stir or shake pan. When candy is cool enough that hand may be held on the bottom of the pan with comfort [about 120 degrees F.] it is ready to beat. Beat vigorously until stiff. At the first sign of stiffening turn quickly into a buttered pan. If turned out at the right instant, it spreads easily over the pan, stiffens quickly and has a glossy rough surface. If it is not turned out until it hardens, knead until smooth and press out into the pan. Mark in squares. Yield: 1¼ pounds.

BUTTERSCOTCH COOKIES.

3½ cups pastry flour 1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. cream of tartar 3 tbsp. milk
1 tsp. soda 1 tsp. vanilla
¾ cup fat [half butter] 1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup sliced dates
2 cups brown sugar

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with cream of tartar and soda. Cream fat and sugar, add egg and continue creaming until smooth and fluffy. Add milk and vanilla and combine well. Sift in the dry ingredients. With the last few stirs add nuts and dates. Divide mixture into three parts. Form into rolls and wrap in waxed paper and keep in icebox until thoroughly chilled. Slice very thin with a sharp knife. Bake in a hot oven [400 degrees F.]. Yield: 5 dozen cookies.

COCOANUT MACAROONS.

2 egg whites
2½ cups cocoanut 1 tsp. vanilla
2-3 cup condensed milk

Beat the egg whites until stiff, then fold into them the cocoanut, milk and vanilla which have been stirred together. Drop by spoonfuls onto greased pans and bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees Fahrenheit]. Time in baking, 15 minutes. Yield: 4 dozen macaroons.

PEANUT BRITTLE.

2 cups sugar peanuts
½ to 1 cup shelled

Shell peanuts and remove the skins. Break in pieces or chop them or take thick, unglazed brown wrapping paper, spread the peanuts over half of it, cover with the other half and roll until well crushed with rolling pin. Line a greased pan with the peanuts. Put sugar in an iron frying pan and heat until it becomes a thin light brown sirup, stirring constantly. Pour over peanuts, mark while warm in squares. When cool, break in pieces.

DATE DREAMS.

¼ cup butter 1 tsp. salt
¼ cup white fat 2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup brown sugar 1 tsp. cinnamon
1 egg ½ tsp. nutmeg
¾ cup rolled oats 1-3 cup milk
1¾ cups flour 2-3 cup chopped dates

Cream butter and fat together. Add sugar and cream well, then add well beaten egg and oatmeal. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with other dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Add chopped dates and drop by spoonfuls onto a well oiled baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven [375 degrees Fahrenheit] about 15 minutes. Yield: 34 cookies.

POP CORN BALLS.

5 quarts popped corn, salted 3 cups sugar
1 cup corn sirup
1 2-3 tbsp. butter 1 cup water

Put sugar, sirup and water into a saucepan and cook, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking, without stirring until sirup reaches 242 degrees Fahrenheit or a soft ball when tried in cold water. Add the butter and stir only enough to mix it through the sirup. Have the corn in a large bowl so there will be room enough for mixing. Pour the cooked sirup slowly over the salted popped corn and mix well. Shape into balls with the hands, using only enough pressure to make the balls stick together. Yield: 2 dozen medium sized balls.

CRANBERRY JELLY.

2 cups water.
2 cups sugar.

Pick over and wash the cranberries. Cook them [covered] in the water until they are soft and burst from the skins. Press through a strainer, add the sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved; stop stirring and boil eight to 10 minutes, or until a drop jells on a cold plate. Skim and pour it into molds or glasses which have been rinsed in cold water and set away to cool.

CHERRY CRANBERRIES.

¼ cup water.
2 cups sugar.

Pick over and wash the cranberries. Cook them covered in the water for about five minutes, or until the skins burst and pop. Place sugar on top of berries, cover again closely, place in slow oven and let bake until cranberries are thick and clear and resemble candied cherries.

Chicago Meats Eaten World Over

Tender, thick steaks, juicy chops, and meat rolls seasoned with mushrooms and pineapple greet the passengers on the S. S. Resolute as they go below for the appetizing evening dinner. These meats, selected by a Chicago packer from prize winning beef at last year's International Live Stock exposition, were taken aboard for a cruise around the world. Lucky voyagers!

Facts You Should Know About Things You Eat

The word "corn" originally was used to mean any small, hard particle such as a grain of salt, powder, or sand. Gradually, it has come to be used principally in its agricultural sense and to mean the seed of any cereal plant.

In America it means Indian corn or maize but in Europe it is used to mean the country's principal cereal crop. Consequently, in England, where maize does not thrive on account of the climate, "corn" means wheat. In Scotland and Ireland when one says "corn" he means oats.

Indian maize, which is the "corn" of this country, is a grass which originally grew wild in tropical America and which was developed and cultivated for centuries by the Indians before the white men came.

300 Varieties of Corn.

More than 300 varieties of corn now are known and samples of still other varieties, now extinct, have been found in ancient tombs of Peru. Only seven varieties are commonly grown for grain although others are grown for fodder, ornaments, brooms, and a variety of other uses. It is one of the very few grasses having both male and female flowers on the same stalk. The "tassel" at the top consists of male flowers while the ear is the female.

Corn is richer in both albuminoids and oils than any other cereal, some varieties containing nearly 10 per cent of oil. It is the oil in pop corn that makes it explode and turn wrong side out when heated, rather than moisture as commonly supposed.

Maize is purely a product of American origin which was not introduced into foreign countries until the 16th century, although some authorities have claimed that crude drawings found in China and Siberia indicate that ancient people in those countries cultivated a maizelike plant.

Thrives in Favorable Climate.

The plant thrives only in favorable climates and cannot be grown where nights are cold regardless of the day temperatures. It is the first crop to disappear as one ascends into mountainous regions.

In three centuries corn has become the most extensively used of all the world's cereal crops. It supplies man not only with some of the best of foods, but also with the finest of beverages.

OUR CUBS EAT RED MEAT AND ICE CREAM, TOO

Thick Steak Diet of Ball Players.

sideration for the work immediately ahead of them. Most of them eat big breakfasts of fruit, eggs and bacon and are late risers, so the noon demands are light out of necessity as well as choice. They try to confine themselves to milk and ice cream or a sandwich. But it is a common sight to see a player an hour before game time operating on a hot dog and drinking pop.

Starts Day with Candy.

For an unheard of breakfast the medal was awarded a couple years ago to Angley, a catcher, who enjoyed a spring trip with the Cubs. Angley was perfectly happy if, after arising, he could purchase for immediate consumption a chocolate bar and a flagon of pop. That's all he'd eat until noon and he thrived on it. He was quite a football player at Georgia Tech and perhaps that funny breakfast was the secret of his grid success.

As a proof of the spread of Hornsby's steak idea among his own teammates, the Cubs' conduct in Los Angeles for the last two springs can be cited. In his quest for the biggest and best sirloins in town Rogers discovered a spot known as the Dining Car and built on lines to conform to its name. Since then, if you wanted to find any of the Cubs around dinner time while they were in Los Angeles, you'd go to that place and there would be your man.

IF A CHILD WON'T EAT TRY HIM ON FLOATING ISLAND

Fairy Tale Can Be Woven About This Dessert.

Floating island—what limitless chances for a child's imagination to play upon as he consumes this most ravishing of desserts! A mother who has difficulty in getting her child to eat nourishing custards can weave a story around this dessert and get every mouthful of it down her child's throat. After that the child will doubtless prefer it to any other dessert.

Here is the way it is made:

FLOATING ISLAND.

3 egg whites
4 tablespoons sugar
3 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups scalded milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat the whites until stiff. Add 4 tablespoons sugar. Drop by tablespoonfuls into a shallow pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately brown. Remove cooked whites into a serving dish.

Prepare custard sauce: Mix yolks, sugar, and salt in a bowl, add scalded milk slowly. Return to double boiler and cook until a coating is formed on metal spoon. Remove immediately. Add flavoring. Pour around cooked whites in a large shallow bowl or as illustrated. Chill before serving.

Egg Milk Shake Great.

Egg milk shake for children who are under weight is excellent, and children love it, as a rule. Here is a recipe:

EGG MILK SHAKE.

3 cups milk
3 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Few grains nutmeg
Few grains cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt

Beat the eggs until very light; add the sugar, salt, vanilla, and spices then the milk. Stir till the sugar is dissolved; then beat well. Serve cold.

CREAM OF CELERY SOUP.

Separate stalks of celery. Use outside stalks for making soup. Scrape off brown spots, wash, then cut in small pieces. Allow 2 cups of water to 1 cup of cut celery. Cook until celery is tender. Add salt to taste just before celery is done. Add this mixture [using water in which celery was cooked] to 2 cups thin cream sauce. Season and serve hot.

EGGS A LA GOLDENROD.

Hard cooked eggs are made as follows: Put eggs into boiling water and keep hot [but not boiling] 20 minutes. Eggs cooked in this way are better than when boiled. Allow one egg per person for a generous serving. Remove shells and cut into halves lengthwise; cut each half into four lengthwise strips. Over a piece of well buttered hot toast pour a hot medium cream sauce [1 cup milk to 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter].

COCOA.

1 cup cocoa
1 cup sugar
Few grains salt
2 cups water
Milk

Mix cocoa, sugar, salt; add water, and cook until a smooth, thick paste is formed. If convenient, allow to cook 30 minutes or more in a double boiler to improve the flavor. For one cup of cocoa use one tablespoon of this paste in 1 cup hot milk. Do not boil the milk and cocoa together. This paste can be put in the refrigerator or a cool place and kept for a week or more. Making a large quantity saves time and gas. It insures cocoa of a better flavor and a food more easily digested than when made hurriedly.

BAKED CARAMEL CUSTARD.

4 cups scalded milk
1 cup sugar
5 eggs
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt sugar [to prevent burning, use a heavy pan and stir constantly] until a light brown. Add hot milk and cook until free from lumps. Add to slightly beaten eggs salt and flavoring. Strain into a buttered mold and set in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven until knife will come out clean.

TAPIOCA CREAM.

4 tablespoons pearl tapioca
4 cups milk
4 tablespoons sugar
4 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla

Soak tapioca in 1 cup cold water several hours or overnight. Cook in double boiler in the milk until tapioca is perfectly clear. Add sugar and egg yolks beaten smooth, a pinch of salt, any flavoring to taste. Cook 3 minutes, pour in buttered pudding dish.

SUGAR COOKIES.

1 cup butter
1 cup sour cream
3 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs well beaten
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
Flour, about 4 cups

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the sour cream and eggs to the butter mixture. Mix and sift other dry ingredients with 2 cups of the flour. Add part of the flour until it becomes a stiff dough. Put out on a floured board and add sufficient flour to handle easily. Knead slightly and roll. Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg, cut out and bake in a quick oven. This makes a large recipe, about 50 rather thin, medium sized cookies.

It will save time when you are crisping lettuce, celery, or cabbage in cold water to put the vegetables in a piece of cheesecloth or cheesecloth bag first. They can be lifted out and drained without difficulty. This is especially good for shredded lettuce or cabbage.

MARKET HOUSE AT RIGA ABANDONED AFTER 300 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 27.—The Dvina market, for three hundred and sixty years the shopping paradise of the Riga housewives, has passed out of existence. The thousands of flimsy wooden shacks are being removed. Three centuries of accumulated debris beneath them has turned out to be a Klondike for small boys who are finding pocketsful of silver and copper coins dropped by shoppers.

The city plans to convert the old market into a boulevard and park and the new market, located on the site of some old Russian government warehouses, is the most modern in Europe.

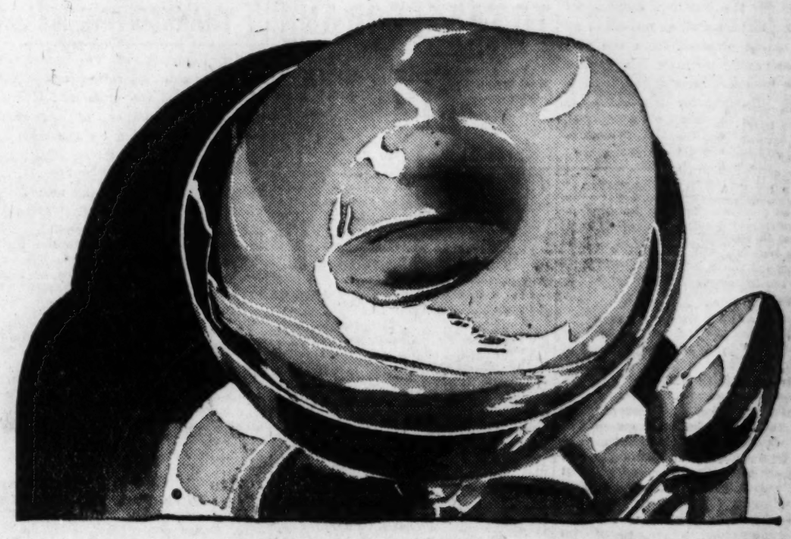

When Latvia won her independence she found she had a white elephant on her hands. In Courland the German occupation troops had erected two large Zeppelin hangars and for five years the Letts did not know what to do with them. Then some government engineers proposed using the hangars to build a new market. After two years of work this was completed.

LEA & PERRINS SAUCE

PLUM PUDDING'S TASTY DISH, EVEN WITHOUT BRANDY

Now's Time to Make One for Christmas.

A plum pudding, ablaze in brandy ning," is an English necessity for Christmas. No English family would ink of celebrating the season with- at least one plum pudding. And the holly is removed from the and brandy [nonalcoholic brandy ewing may be used, although not with much success] is poured over it and set afire, it is a jolly sight. White rape juice sauce makes a good sub- tute for brandy, but you can't have it.

It is suggested that plum puddings be made now, because part of their dness is due to the mellowing cess, and two months is not too g a time for a plum pudding to ipen to perfection. Another thing to be remembered is that the fruits for the pudding must be well soaked.

Plum pudding may be boiled in bags it may be poured into greased coffee cans or other cans of convenient size, boiled and placed on a rack in a large kettle or wash boiler partly filled with water, and steamed. They must be steamed for hours and hours to be good—and many good plum pud- ing makers steam them at intervals for several days. When they are ready to be served they should be warmed or boiled again for a few hours so as to get thoroughly hot. Plum puddings make nice Christmas gifts.

PLUM PUDDING.

½ cups stale bread crumbs	½ lb. seedless raisins
½ cup suet, chopped fine	2 cups sour apples, chopped fine
½ cup sugar	1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ cup molasses	½ teaspoon ground allspice
1 cup flour	½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup candied citron, cut fine	1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped almonds	1 cup any fruit juice
	Rind of a lemon

Soak raisins, citron, almonds and apples in the fruit juices over night; then add the rest of the ingredients. Turn into a buttered mold and cover and place in a well floured, unbleached cotton bag, tie securely, leave place for pudding to swell, and plunge in kettle of boiling water and boil from 4 to 8 hours, the longer the better. Keep covered with water and boiling the whole time. Good warmed over. Serve with white grape juice sauce.

WHITE GRAPE JUICE SAUCE.

1 cup white grape juice	½ cup sugar
1 cup water	Grated lemon rind
1 cup flour

Beat all together in double boiler. Place over fire, stir constantly until smooth and thick, and serve at once. May also be served hot in a glass as a beverage.

PLUM PUDDING.

½ lb. chopped suet	2 cups crumbs
½ lb. raisins	1 teaspoon mixed spices
½ lb. currants	2 cups brown sugar
½ lb. mixed peel	8 eggs
1 cup flour

Mix the suet, the fruit, and the chopped peel and dredge with some of the flour. Mix together the remaining flour, crumbs, spices, and sugar, and add the well beaten eggs. Stir the fruit and suet into this mixture and mix the whole thoroughly. Put into greased molds or into pudding cloths. Drop into a kettle of boiling water and boil from five to seven hours, according to the size of the pudding. Serve with hard sauce or any desired liquid sauce.

Display Old Rail to Be Used in Cafeteria Suit

Mrs. Lillian Davidson, who was manager of the Woman's Exchange cafeteria, 1627 Chicago avenue, Evanston, when it opened over 20 years ago, yesterday held open house to display a section of wooden railing used then and which has become suddenly prominent as legal evidence. Two Denver men recently won a court decision in Birmingham, Ala., upholding their contention that they hold a patent on restaurant equipment. The railing is to be presented by cafeteria men as evidence that such a patent is void.

UNLOADING 60,000 BU. OF POTATOES IS DAY'S WORK AT CHICAGO BIN

Indian summer and the tang of wintry winds sweeping snow inside collars of coats both come within the scope of the men who handle thousands of bushels of potatoes daily as they are unloaded at Chicago's potato bin—the Wood street terminal potato tracks.

According to Sydney Stafford, assistant agent for the North Western railroad which built and operates the terminal just completed this year, 600 freight cars is the capacity of the yards, maintained practically constantly since fall shipments began arriving. Some days 60 to 80 carloads are unloaded into trucks and hauled to commission houses and to retail stores. Other days the unloading may reach 150 carloads, says Mr. Stafford.

One of the interesting sights is a large blackboard enclosed in glass near the offices. Every car which comes into the yards is numbered and this number placed in a column to correspond with the track in the yards. A dealer can drive up in his car or on his truck and without getting out can take a look at the board and proceed to his car for an inspection or for unloading.

Conservative estimates place the average daily unloadings at around 60,000 bushels of potatoes. The market virtually revolves around what happens in the Wood street yards. Paved driveways between each set of double tracks are 50 feet in width. Sixty acres of land with space for further expansion has been set aside for this system of insuring plenty of potatoes for Chicago.

SANDWICH LOAF PLAYS BIG PART IN BUFFET SUPPER

This Tells You How It May Be Prepared.

For a cold buffet supper or a luncheon, sandwich loaf is both decorative and good to eat. Served with sardines packed in olive oil, or a mixture of several kinds of fish, beaten biscuit, a salad, and sherbet and cakes and coffee, it affords a delightful buffet supper.

Remove crust from a loaf of sandwich bread. Slice bread lengthwise. Place a slice of bread on a platter and spread with mayonnaise, then cover with thinly sliced tomatoes. Spread another slice of bread with mayonnaise and place with the dressing side on the tomatoes. Spread with a layer of soft cheese and cover with the third slice of bread. Spread this slice with mayonnaise and cover with sliced stuffed olives, or with chopped chicken mixed with pimento and nuts and mayonnaise. Spread the fourth slice of bread with mayonnaise and place on the lettuce.

How Loaf Is Finished

Soften cream cheese with milk and spread over the entire outside of the loaf. Garnish with parsley or watercress and small radish roses. You may make a pattern with sliced stuffed olives, pimento strips and almonds on the top of the loaf.

Lettuce may be used instead of the chicken mixture in the third layer, but when the loaf is sliced it does not hold together so well if lettuce is used.

Recipes for Salad.

Two appealing salads, both simply prepared, are pineapple, pear and kumquat salad, and date and pineapple salad. The former is made this way:

Sliced pineapples.
Lettuce.
Halved pears.
Cream cheese.
Kumquats.
French dressing.

Place a slice of pineapple on crisp lettuce, with a halved pear, rounding side up, on the pineapple. Outline the pear with cream cheese softened with a small amount of milk and forced through a pastry tube, and garnish the top with a kumquat cut in half. Serve with French dressing.

The recipe for date and pineapple salad is as follows:

Sliced pineapple.
Lettuce.
Pitted dates.
Cream cheese.
French dressing.

Place a slice of pineapple on crisp lettuce, and on the pineapple lay three pitted dates, dividing the slice in three sections. Garnish each section and the center with cream cheese softened with milk and forced through a pastry tube. Serve with French dressing.

U. S. SENDS OUT SEEDLINGS OF ORIENTAL NUTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Many persons can say that they have gathered chestnuts, but not many Americans can say they searched for them in the forests of Korea and Japan as can R. Kent Beattie, a forest pathologist of the department of agriculture who has just returned to this country from a two and a half years journey for that purpose.

Beattie was hunting for blight resistant chestnuts to plant in American forests and during his sojourn in the far east he collected about 250 bushels of nuts of native strains, and scions of about 90 cultivated varieties. He shipped these nuts to Washington and the department of agriculture planted them in its forest nursery at Glendale, Md., to test their resistance to blight and their adaptation to the climate and soil of a new homeland.

BAKING BREAD EASY TASK AND LEISURELY ONE

Flour Prices Are Lower, Women Learn.

The making of bread, far from being the ordeal it is commonly considered to be by women who have never made it, is a nice, leisurely occupation. Between one rising and the next, a good part of a novel may be read; more, it may be read with a free conscience, with the comfortable feeling that one is accomplishing a lot by letting the dough rise.

Here is a simple recipe for making bread. Its yield is two small loaves. It is just as easy to make more bread while one is baking, but for a family of two, if more than two loaves are baked, the bread gets stale before it is eaten:

1 cake compressed yeast.
¼ cup lukewarm water.
2½ tablespoonfuls butter, melted.
2 tablespoonfuls sugar.
2 teaspoonfuls salt.
2 cups milk, scalded.
7½ cups bread flour [about].

Soak yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add melted butter, sugar and salt to milk heated to the scalding point. The liquid should be cooled to about 86 degrees fahrenheit [which is not quite lukewarm]. Add yeast and mix thoroughly, then add flour until dough is stiff enough to knead.

Knead for 10 Minutes.

Knead vigorously for 10 minutes or until the dough is not sticky, is elastic and has a satiny surface. In a warm place [about 85 degrees fahrenheit], free from draughts of air, let rise for about 1½ or 2 hours. If the dough recedes when the hand is thrust into it, it is ready to punch. This means to fold the dough over two or three times and allow it to recede as much as it will.

Cover and let it rise again for 15 or 20 minutes. Shape into two small loaves, place in oiled bread tins and let it rise in a warm place, preferably a closed container that has a pan of warm water on the bottom to supply steam and keep the outer surface of rolls moist.

Let rise until bulk has increased about 2½ times. This will be accomplished in 40 to 45 minutes if the temperature of rising is around 90 degrees fahrenheit. Bake in a 425 degree fahrenheit oven [hot oven]. Total time of making and baking should not require more than 4 hours. Yield: Two small loaves.

How to Make Rolls.

A novel recipe for "refrigerator rolls" enables a woman, at practically no cost and little work, to have fresh rolls for breakfast or lunch or dinner every day in the week. The mixture will keep in an ice box a week. The recipe:

2 rounding teaspoonfuls of butter.
½ cup of sugar.
1 teaspoonful of salt.
1 cup boiling water.
1 cup cold water.

Stir, and when lukewarm add 1 cake of yeast dissolved in ½ cup of warm water. Beat 2 eggs and add to the above. Stir in 7 cups of flour, unsifted. Do not knead. Cover mixture with cover or damp cloth. Leave in ice box until 4 hours before needed. Cut off pieces, roll thin, cut round [or oblong with a cookie cutter], butter with melted butter and fold. Place on greased tins and let rise for four hours. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Recipe for Orange Bread.

Orange bread is good to use for sandwiches without filling other than butter. It may be made with either fresh or candied orange peel but fresh is preferred. This recipe will yield six 2 pound loaves, enough for a large party. Orange bread and butter sandwiches are particularly good to serve at a tea.

½ quart orange juice [6-8 oranges].
2 ounces salt.
8 ounces sugar.
8 ounces butter or substitute.
4 ounces yeast.
6-8 rinds of oranges [use ones from which juice has been squeezed].
4 egg yolks.
8 pounds flour.

Make sponge of water, a portion of the flour and yeast. Wash oranges. Pare a very thin rind (using no white pulp) from oranges and put through meat chopper. Beat yolks until lemon color and add the orange juice. Cream butter and sugar. Combine all. Knead well. Mold loaves. Bake as any other bread.

French Bread.

Here is a recipe for French bread, which should be baked in an oven heated to about 360 degrees, or hot enough so that a piece of white paper, put in the oven, will turn dark in five minutes. If the paper burns the oven is too hot.

1½ ounces salt.
2 quarts of water.
1½ ounces of sugar.
Flour sufficient to make a smooth dough.

Dissolve the yeast, salt, and sugar with the water and mix in flour sufficient to make a nice smooth dough of medium degree, not too stiff or yet too soft. Work until it no longer adheres to hand or bowl and then cover it with a cloth and set to rise until it has doubled its size. This will be in about four or five hours. When it begins to sink work it well again and set it to rise anew.

When well risen divide the dough into equal pieces and mold into round ball shapes or into long loaves of about two inches in thickness. Lay the loaves on a board previously sprinkled with flour, setting them far enough apart not to touch one another and set to rise again. Let them rise to nearly double the previous size.

Have the oven heated, transfer the loaves into it, wash over with eggs mixed with water, make diagonal cuts half way across on each loaf, half way through and close the oven. When baked brush off the flour, wipe the tops with a damp cloth and the bread is ready to serve.

"Slender? Certainly! I thank WELCH'S for that"

says Mrs. John A. Waightman
Seneca Hotel, Chicago

"No more starvation diets for me since I discovered this new Welch formula of two glasses a day. It lets me eat almost anything I want without gaining, and I can wear any of the new styles beautifully. There is no excuse now for anyone gaining excess weight."
Mrs John A. Waightman

Now there is no excuse for anyone being overweight! Two glasses of Welch's daily at breakfast and dinner makes it easy to keep your figure slender.

The secret lies in the abundant mineral salts, neutralizing acids, and energizing fruit proteins which physicians tell us nature herself has rendered non-fattening in the luscious Concord Grapes.

And best of all, the whole family gains new pep and vitality on this delicious fruit juice course.

That is why mothers keep a bottle always on ice to satisfy children's hunger without harmful sweets. That is why women everywhere are serving Welch's daily. Many prefer it diluted with one-third to one-half water.

Try it, for one month . . . this simple two-a-day formula which American scientists have now adopted from the sensational "grape cures" of Montreux, Baden-Baden and other famous European health resorts.

But take care to say Welch's, to secure the full flavor, and vital health elements.* Insist on pasteurized grape juice as processed by Welch's.

*Health Elements—Nitrogenous Compounds, Lecithin, Phosphorus, Vitamins, Mineral Salts, Albumin, Neutralizing Acids (Carbonate)

Unlike other methods, this Welch-way keeps the face as well as the figure, young and lovely.

GIVES CITY FOLK HINTS ON CHOICE OF RIGHT FOODS

Expert Emphasizes Need of Variety.

Although the Lucy Flower Technical High school, 3545 Fulton boulevard, the only technical high school for girls in the city, turns out expert stenographers and bookkeepers and secretaries, its guilding principle is to produce girls well trained in the good old art of home making.

Teachers and officials of the school interviewed recently indicated that, while they were educating their girls so that they could earn their living if they must, they instilled in them during the process of education the love of a nice home and respect for the old fashioned virtues of keeping a husband contented with livable surroundings and a well set, bountiful table.

The alumnæ of Lucy Flower High school, which was started 18 years ago at 26th street and Wabash avenue, have proved the wisdom of these precepts, in the opinion of the teachers. They have been "the marrying kind," but they have married only to stay married. So few unhappy marriages, so few divorces are numbered among the Lucy Flower alumnæ that they are negligible, they said.

Secret of Successful Wives.

"We teach our girls," said Miss Dora Wells, principal, "that a woman can do so much more important a work in staying at home after marriage—if she makes a home—than anything she can do in the way of a job.

"It is a much more needed task for her to set the ethical standards of the home, to keep the real breadwinner in good condition, to give her children personal care than it is for her to bring in a little added income. Of course, when this added income is an absolute necessity, that is a different matter.

"Most of our alumnæ who are married are making successful wives. This we know because we meet with them every now and then. They bring their babies, and we talk about furniture, and the baby's diet, and so on. They are earnest and sincere in their desire to pull their weight in the home, we find."

Home Making a Profession.

As Miss Mary Fuller, assistant principal, who tells her senior classes about the meaning of "home making as a profession," says, "Raising a family is the thing we women were out out for and the thing we should do."

"Of course," she said, "we don't discourage facts. We know that there are many married women in Chicago working. Our girls know it. We tell them that it is all right to work, too, after they are married, if they want to. Some of them may have to. But we always advise them to plan to live on their husbands' salaries. Then, if they can't, they must go to work."

A woman's work as a wife and mother is not one but many jobs, Miss Fuller said. The school teaches cooking, meal planning, nutrition and food values, sewing, laundry work, child care, and other things necessary in the average home, she said, with the idea of equipping the student to create a contented home.

Work Out Family Budget.

From an estimate of the experiences of a class of 32 girls last year, each girl being asked to learn the salaries of the heads of two families employed differently, Miss Fuller obtained an average of $900 a year as a workingman's salary, she said. The workingman in a small town, she estimated, receives $600 a year. From those figures the school works out budgets suggested to the girls, she said.

Miss Grace Moore, head of the household science department, who has been a teacher in the Lucy Flower school since the second semester of its existence, described the school's cooking course, which is a requirement, along with liberal arts requirements.

In the first year the girls learn how to fix individual recipes, each doing her own cooking in her individual utensils. Yesterday the girls were cooking string beans. In the third year of school they spend one semester in more advanced cookery, learning how to plan well balanced meals.

Use Special Kitchen.

In this course they use a special kitchen, which is the only one of its kind in the city. It approximates the kitchen in the home, each girl having her cupboard of dishes and silver, her sink, her table, her stove and utensils.

When classes are large, of course, there is doubling up, two or three girls using one kitchen. There are tables, and these are set correctly by the girls with linen and china, and there the meals are served by them just as they should be served. Across the hall there is a dining room where the girls entertain the teachers at model luncheons, teas, and dinners.

In the fourth year dietetics and food values are studied, and the last semester of that year is devoted to child care, with special attention to correct diet for children of all ages. In the child care course the nursery school, which is the only one in operation in any high school in the city, helps imbue the girls with a love and understanding of children.

Should Learn Food Values.

"I don't teach my classes that a woman must cook everything her family eats," said Miss Moore. "Many women are working outside the home and haven't the time. But I do teach them that a woman should understand the principles of cooking."

BRUSH DUST OFF RECIPES OF OLD 'LADY BOOK' DAYS

Found Among Poems of Love and Gentleness.

The age in which ladies were ladies, as portrayed by old issues of Godey's "Lady's Book" found in the Chicago public library files, devoted more attention to fashions than to cooking. However, used as filler among poems on love, chastity and gentleness, and colored engravings of the newest fashions from Philadelphia, showing the puffed sleeves, wasp waists and turned up hats with plumes also stylish in 1830, are recipes.

Moreover, despite the large amount of space devoted to the foibles of fashion, an earnest note is struck in various essays on woman's place in the scheme of things. A woman writer, after pointing out that the kitchen and the nursery were the true realm for women, concludes:

"The sexes are intended for different spheres and constructed in conformity to their respective destinations by Him who bids the oak brave the fury of the tempest and the Alpine flower lean its cheek on the bosom of eternal snows."

Recipe for Jelly Cake.

A recipe for Brunswick jelly cake is included in the same issue, that of September, 1831:

"Stir together half a pound of powdered white sugar and half a pound of fresh butter till perfectly light. Beat three eggs till very thick and smooth, omitting the whites. Sift three-quarters of a pound of flour and pour it into the beaten eggs and butter and sugar. Add a teaspoonful of mixed spice [nutmeg, mace and cinnamon] and half a glass of rosewater.

"Stir the whole very well and then lay it on your pasteboard, which must first be sprinkled with flour. It will be a soft dough, but if you find it so moist as to be unmanageable, throw on a little more flour. Spread the dough into a sheet about half an inch thick and cut it out in round cakes with the edge of a tumbler. Lay them in buttered pans and bake them about five or six minutes. When they are cold spread over the surface of each cake a liquor of fruit jelly or marmelade.

Frosting Is Put On.

"Beat the white of three or four eggs till it stands alone. Then beat into it by degrees a sufficiency of powdered loaf sugar to make it as thick as icing. Flavor it with a few drops of strong essence of lemon and with a spoon heap it up on each cake, making it high in the center. Put the cakes into a coal oven and as soon as the tops are colored of a pale brown, take them out. These cakes are delicious."

Here follows another recipe written in the quaint style of the day, with a carelessness about eggs and butter distinct from recipes of today:

"Pare and core three large quinces and boil them till soft, but not till they break. Drain off the water and mash the quinces with the back of a spoon. Stir into them a quarter of a pound of sugar and the juice of an orange or small lemon, and set them away to cool. When quite cold mix with them about two ounces of butter and seven eggs, well beaten, and bake the mixture in shells of puff paste. Before they go to table grate white sugar over the top.

"Apple puddings may be made in the same manner, and also puddings of stewed gooseberries."

Substitute Sherry Flavoring.

In place of the "wine, brandy and rosewater" in the following potato pudding one may use sherry flavoring:

"Take half a pound of butter and half a pound of powdered sugar and stir them together till very light. Have ready a pound of boiled potatoes, which must be quite cold. Grate the potatoes and beat four eggs till very thick. Stir the beaten eggs and the grated potatoes alternately into the butter and sugar, with a gill of cream or rich milk. Add a teaspoonful of mixed spice and a glass of wine, brandy and rosewater, mixed.

"Having stirred the whole very hard, put it into shells of puff paste and bake it half an hour. This quantity of the mixture is sufficient for two shells the size of soup plates. Sweet potato pudding may be made in the same manner."

They Liked Sauces Then.

Apparently the cooks of a hundred years ago were fond of sauces. In the issues of 1833 the following recipes for sauces were found. In one or two, where liquor was used, sherry or brandy flavoring may be substituted.

"PUNGENT SAUCE: Put into a sauce pan a half pint of vinegar, a branch of thyme, two or three sprigs of sweet marjoram, a leaf of laurel, a clove of garlic, a shallot or a little onion, and cayenne pepper and salt to your taste. Add a glass of broth or gravy. Stew the whole slowly till it is reduced to two-thirds of the original quantity, then strain it."

"ANCHOVY SAUCE, FOR FISH: Cut the flesh of three anchovies into small shreds and steep them in vinegar half an hour or more. Then mince them fine and throw them into a sauce pan with a little butter rolled in flour. Add pepper and mustard to your taste. Pour in sufficient vinegar to cover it, and let boil gently for a quarter of an hour. Strain it and squeeze in a little lemon juice before you serve it up."

"CURRY SAUCE—Put into a sauce pan two ounces of butter and a tablespoonful of curry powder [or powdered turmeric], half a grated nutmeg, half a spoonful of saffron and two spoonfuls of flour. Add sufficient boiling water or broth to cover it and let it stew a quarter of an hour. Strain it, stir in a little more butter and serve it up."

Tomato Is Spelled "Tomata."

TOMATO [spelled 'tomata' in the Lady's Book] SAUCE—Bake ten tomatoes, with pepper and salt, till they become like marmalade. Then add a little flour or grated bread crumbs and a little broth or hot water. Stew it gently 10 minutes and before you send it to table add two ounces of butter and let it melt in the sauce."

"UNIVERSAL SAUCE—Take a pint of good broth or a pint of drawn butter. Stir into it a glass of white wine and half the peel of a lemon grated. Add a laurel leaf or two or three peach leaves, and a spoonful of vinegar. Let the mixture simmer on a few coals or on hot ashes for five or six hours or more, and it will be good to pour over either meat, poultry or fish and will keep several days in a cool place."

"SHALLOT SAUCE OR SAUCE RAVIGOTE—Take a handful of sweet herbs and the same quantity of little onions and cut them up small. Put them into a sauce pan with some vinegar, salt, pepper and sufficient broth or warm water to cover them. Let them boil gently for one-quarter of an hour. Take the sauce from the fire and set it on the stove or on the hearth, and stirr in, till it melts, a piece of butter rolled in flour or a spoonful of olive oil."

GRAPEFRUIT AND PERSIMMONS ARE CHEAPEST IN YEARS

"Florida made a mistake this year of shipping grapefruit too early and in that way flooding the Chicago market with fruit too green. However, it should be made known that the best of the crop is now available and it is not only of high quality but the cheapest in years," says C. R. Godding of the Fox & Godding commission house at 66 and 68 South Water market.

Fancy grapefruit has never been so cheap, in his opinion. Persimmons from California are selling for from 12½ to 25 cents per dozen retail, he reports. He says this fruit and the avocada pears are growing rapidly in popularity and soon will be an important fruit on the Chicago market. Avocados might be considered a luxury at a retail price of 25 to 50 cents each, but he finds that they can be used for eight to ten salads and in that way provide a not expensive food.

Tangerines, oranges and grapefruit are coming from Florida in heavy shipments which will provide high quality fruit at low prices for several months. In addition Texas is shipping what is considered good quality grapefruit, in contrast to the somewhat green citrus on the market several weeks ago, Mr. Goddard reports.

TEMPTING CUTS OF MEAT ON VIEW AT STOCK SHOW

Wheat Fed and Corn Fed Products to Be Seen.

When visitors go to the International Live Stock show at the Union Stockyards, beginning Saturday, they will have a chance to see not only what kind of meat can be made from wheat, but the very latest styles and fashions in tempting cuts.

With the live stock producers fattening their stock on wheat in the face of the present corn shortage and wheat surplus, housewives will see at the stock show exhibits of beef, lamb, and pork from animals fed on wheat, alongside carcasses from the corn-fed animals. So far as one can tell from the visible signs, the quality and finish of the wheat-fed animals, officials of the show say, equal in all respects the corn-fed.

Very Latest in Cuts.

As for the latest fashions in cuts of meat, it may be observed that the old-fashioned shoulder of lamb will never be recognized in the jaunty mock duck. Fashion may bring back the leg o' mutton sleeves to feminine wardrobes, but the French leg of lamb all dressed up in a frill has supplanted the heavy mutton roast of past years. Lamb stew has become the stylish Saratoga chops.

Beef forequarter cuts have lost their awkward boney angularity and make their appearance as shapely rolls which no husband will object to carving. The old-fashioned round steak, so big it wouldn't fit the skillet, is no more. Now it appears as four very smart, small steaks of just the right size for the kitchenette family.

Window Temptations.

Pork loin is seen in the form of a stately crown, fit for feast day. Boned loin roasts, too, made from the pork loin, are there. These are only a few of the new fashions as attractive as a window full of new winter hats.

The woman who appreciates a bargain will find that the cheaper cuts are just as up-to-date as the so-called choice cuts. Cuts she has served hitherto for economy's sake, she will be contented to buy because of their stylish appearance. And the woman who is shopping for new ideas will find some smart new cut for her dinner table.

Another exhibit is the case containing the new graded and stamped beef carcasses, a departure in meat merchandising, and with a guarantee that the meat is the quality stamped upon it.

The NEW Wonder Wafflewitch

Waffle Iron
Batter Bowl
Measure Ladle
... all in one

No more messy batter bowl, spoons, or pitcher on your table when you make waffles!

Batter bowl and ladle are out of sight and out of the way underneath grids. When ready to make a waffle, grids swing to either side uncovering batter. When the heat indicator says "hot," pour in one ladleful of batter. The ladle holds just enough for one perfect waffle. No guesswork. No muss. Then the grids swing back into place, covering batter bowl and ladle completely. No greasing. No sticking. No confusion. The only waffle iron that offers all these new and amazing advantages.

Finished in beautiful chromium plate, including batter bowl and ladle. Batter bowl makes an attractive general utility dish. Graceful ivory-finish handles. Sunbeam heating unit gives lifetime service.

By Royal Command

BY DORNFORD YATES

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Sara Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed on foot. Attempting to find a passage across a raging mountain stream, they stumble across two men engaged in a furious fight. They intervene and save the life of a peasant named Ramon, who in gratitude leads them over the border by a secret path under the waterfall. In the town of Varder they board a night train for Vigil and hide in a motor car, which they discover is consigned to Prince Paul.

INSTALLMENT V.

MISADVENTURE.

Now the tunnel would have made such fine shelter that, noisy and foul as it was, we would thankfully have alighted before the train had emerged; but, though it promised to be endless, we seemed to be running down hill and our speed to be increasing with every yard. What was worse, I had now no doubt that we were fast descending to the level of Vigil itself and were actually threading the hills that keep the aged city to north and east. If that were so, we should presently issue from the tunnel clean into the station yards, for the latter lay under the hills northeast of the town.

And so we did.

As the train ran into daylight the brakes were applied. The next moment we banged cross points and lurched to the left. Then we heard shouts and whistling and the crunch of steps upon the ballast and the hissing of steam, and two minutes later the train was brought to a standstill in an atmosphere of excitement which showed there was something amiss.

Here let me say that if ever three men were unlucky I think it was we, for I afterwards learned that the driver of the train was in error in not slowing down before, that he should have passed through the tunnel at five miles an hour, that had he not had a clear run we must have been smashed, and that, as it was, he overran the point at which the train should have rested by more than a quarter of a mile.

Such negligence drew to the train the attention of every employé that board or saw it arrive, and, to judge from the scrambling and hubbub, our passage into our siding was watched and attended by most of the station's staff.

This reception was trying enough, but when I perceived we were running alongside a platform my heart sank into my boots, for so long as the train was not berthed they could not discharge the car, but once they could take her off, I was sure that, as George had said, they would do so without delay.

Something had to be done—and done at once.

I turned to Bell.

"The consignment note," I said. "Get it off the windscreen as best you can."

He was back in the car before I had George by the arm.

"Bluff," said I. "We must bluff them. You and Bell and I have come down in charge of the car—by royal command. Engineer, tester and mechanic, specially sent. We supervise the offloading and deliver to the palace ourselves. You must do the talking—you're better than me. Take a high line."

"It's a chance in a million," said George. "Give me the note."

With his words the train stopped with a jerk and I turned to Bell.

"Come," said I. "We're under Mr. Hanbury's orders and we're going to attend the car. Take notice of no one, and if any one gets excited, refer him to me."

Then I took a deep breath, pulled aside the canvas and slid down on to the rails . . .

We had the car uncovered before an official arrived, and before two minutes were past I think he was sorry he came.

George was magnificent.

He vouchsafed no explanation—there were the royal arms on the doors of the car, and I had the bonnet open and Bell had found a duster and was rubbing the silver plate. He did not so much as produce the consignment note. But he fell upon the man as a panther falls upon its prey.

He cursed the line and the driver and he cursed the pace we had come; he cursed the platform and the station and the tunnel through which we had passed; he cursed the absence of helpers and skates and ramps; and he shouted and stamped till the fellow, now thoroughly rattled, began to reflect the censure and to scold his astonished underlings into some show of life.

In that moment the trick was won.

Men fell over each other to fetch the ramps, and when no skates were forthcoming no one dared say as much, but a superintendent was sent for to break the news. The truck being long, we were able to maneuver the car and, by exercising great care, to bring her on to the platform without any skates, but this delicate operation gave George such a scope for continuity that by the time it was over both superintendents had gone and the helpers stood huddled together like frightened sheep.

When he called for petrol his demand was frantically echoed a score of times, and four or five went running to fetch the fuel, and water was brought before he had thought to ask it, on the ground, no doubt, that prevention is better than cure.

The car was of German make and bore a good name, and though I had never used one, its engine seemed simple enough. Indeed, the latter started without any fuss, but I had to endure a volume of execration because I had used the self-starter instead of taking the trouble to swing the crankshaft by hand.

We let her run for five minutes while George passed about the car pointing out invisible scratches and breathing out dreadful threatenings against everybody concerned. Then he asked the whereabouts of the palace and took his seat at the wheel and, ordering Bell and me to sit by his side, drove the car out of the freight yard and into the streets.

The temptation to leave the city and take to the countryside was very strong, for so we could have rested all day in some remote spot, yet have been in Vigil without effort as soon as night fell; but that would have laid us open to a charge of stealing the car and would have made us the quarry of a hue and cry so shocking to contemplate that after a hasty discussion we decided that we had no option but to drive to the palace at once.

We did not relish such a visit, but the day was young and the palace was guarded by sentries and not by police, and once the car was safely within the forecourt all that we had to do was to beat a retreat.

Indeed, what danger there was lay in the streets we must use, and I think we should have done better to leave the car at the station when once she was off the truck; but, as I have shown, we had had no time for reflection and when one is using shock tactics it is easy enough to be carried away oneself.

"But we needn't all go," said George. "In fact, it's far better that I should appear alone. Where shall I drop you and Bell? And where shall we meet?"

This conclusion was plainly sound. Bell and I could do nothing, for George, who could speak like a German, must play the hand. The question was where we could shelter the livelong day.

I think our late misadventure must have disordered my wits, for not until then did I suddenly see the folly of wasting the hours which had fallen clean into our lap.

We had come to help Mme. Dresden, and here we were at her gates a full day before our time.

"Go by the Lessing Strasse," I said. "It's sure to be empty now, and Bell and I can go over the garden wall."

"Of course," said George. "And with luck I should be with you in a quarter of an hour."

Danger is a curious thing, and I have often proved that the ground which one seeks to avoid may be crossed in safety, while the quarter one has never suspected is the covert of peril itself.

All the way we saw but one policeman, and he was busy discussing the fate of some fruit; no notice was paid to our passing, and we met with no cry of check, the Lessing Strasse was empty except for a watering cart, and Bell and I were within the countess' garden before George was out of the street.

GASOLINE ALLEY—HOME REMEDIES

Antarctic Cold Retains Secrets, Byrd Writes

Much Still to Learn, Explorer Says.

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Antarctica, the south pole's bleak and barren base, remains unconquered and a challenge to man, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd says in "Little America," the record of his expedition to the bottom of the world.

There remains the last trace of the ice age, out of which emerged life, the admiral says in the volume which will be published tomorrow on the first anniversary of his flight over the second pole.

"At best," writes the commander of the band of eighty men who lived for months on the ice of Little America. "We simply tore away a bit more of the veil which conceals its secrets. In its larger aspects it remains, and probably will remain for many years to come, one of the great undone tasks of the world."

Discovery of a new land, unseen before, unknown and unclaimed, and its mapping with an aerial camera are believed by Byrd to be among the important results of his expedition. The pictures will be valuable to glaciologists fifty and a hundred years hence, he is convinced, as a permanent record of ice conditions in 1929 against which changes occurring in the future may be compared.

The technical results of the Byrd expedition are yet to be divulged. The scientific staff still is working in four fat volumes. Byrd's reply to those who say his party lacked hardships is: "Rubbish."

"No antarctic journey," he declares, "whether by air of by surface, is easy."

"It was an awesome thing, creeping—so it seemed—through the narrow pass," Byrd writes about the Polar flight, "with the walls of Hansen and Fisher [peaks] on either side, higher than the level of the wings, watching the nose of the ship bob up and down across the face of that lone chunk of rock. Once we entered it there would be no retreat. It offered no room to turn."

But most exciting was his discovery of the vast area to which he gave the name "Marie Byrd Land."

"For here was the ice age in its chill flooded tide.

"Here was a continent throttled and overwhelmed. Here was a lifeless waste born of one of the greatest periods of refrigeration that the earth has ever known. Seeing it, one could scarcely believe that the antarctic was once a warm and fertile climate, with its own plants and trees of respectable size.

"Here, too, in this glacial flood is a counter part of the immense ebb and flows of ice over the earth which profoundly affected mankind.

"One could not help but speculate on what new destiny nature has in store for the lowly mammal when the pendulum reaches the point of turn."

Of the life in camp he recalls especially the monotony of the phonograph.

Georgia Governor Seeks History of Daniel Boone

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gov. L. G. Hardman wants proof that Daniel Boone touched Georgia soil in exploring the new world wilderness before he permits the Boone Trail Memorial assocation to erect a monument to the pioneer on the state capitol grounds. J. Hampton Rich, of Winston-Salem, N. C., director of the association, told the governor of the proposal to erect the monument without cost to the state. The governor wants to know how and why Boone visited Georgia and holds permission for the monument in abeyance until he is informed.

MISS M. E. COLLINS.

Sigma Phi Omega sorority will open a three day annual convention in Chicago today, starting with a dinner and business meeting at the Illinois Woman's Athletic club.

A formal dance will be held tomorrow at the Crystal ball room of the Blackstone hotel, and on Sunday there will be a tea and initiation of new chapters. The new officers of the grand council will be elected at this time.

Mrs. David John Stafford of 7702 Cornell avenue, is grand president of Sigma Phi Omega; Miss Marion Farley, 5525 Sangamon street, is convention chairman, and assisting her are the Misses Helen Proctor and Mary McBirney, and Margaret E. Collins is grand president.

Marshall Fields Flying to Cairo from Capetown, S. A.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Nov. 27.—The Marshall Fields of New York and Chicago, who have been honeymooning in East Africa, arrived at Nakuru via the air, and were piloted by Campbell Black. They stayed all night with Lieut. Col. Arthur Fawcus, brother-in-law of Mrs. Field.

Mr. and Mrs. Field left this morning by plane for Cairo. They stated before leaving that they had obtained two magnificent lions and lioness cubs which are to be mounted in the form of a lion group for presentation to the Chicago natural history museum. They also got one elephant.

Half Million to Aid Attack on Paralysis

Gov. F. D. Roosevelt Tells of Endowment.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Announcement of a half million dollar endowment campaign for the Warm Springs foundation for treatment of infantile paralysis was made tonight by Gov. Roosevelt of New York, in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the patients here.

The governor said the purpose of the erdowment was to make the treatment given here available to a greater number of people.

Other speakers at the dinner included Arthur Carpenter, business manager of the foundation, Fred Botts, assistant manager, and Dr. Leroy Hubbard, surgeon in chief.

Each year since the governor established the foundation in 1927 the patients who have come here to take treatments in the Warm Springs pools have gathered on Thanksgiving night to honor him for his work.

At the first dinner, in 1927, there were 43 present. Tonight covers were laid for more than 200. The governor and Mrs. Roosevelt were honor guests this evening.

Thanksgiving day festivities started this morning with a water carnival in the Warm Springs pools, with the governor as judge of the contests. A Thanksgiving pageant also was held. After the dinner tonight a program of stunts and magic was in order.

At 8 o'clock, while the dinner was in progress, a pause was ordered in the broadcasting program of WSB, the Atlanta Journal radio station, to pay a tribute to the governor. The station said the Journal was "happy to felicitate the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, at this moment the guest of honor at a dinner at his Georgia home in Warm Springs, on his signal achievement for America and the Democratic party."

Radio receivers carried the message to the banquet hall in the old inn, now the property of the foundation.

Australia to Pay Bonus as Spur to Gold Digging

CANBERRA, Australia, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The government today inaugurated a plan by which it hopes to make gold mining produce not only new wealth but also jobs for the country's unemployed. It announced that it would pay a bonus of $5 an ounce on all gold produced in excess of last year's total production. This, it is hoped, will attract British capital and provide jobs for 50,000 workers.

Panama Canal to Send Exhibit to Paris Exposition

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., Nov. 27.—The Panama canal will have an exhibit in the International Colonial and Overseas exposition, to be held in Paris during 1931, Gov. Harry Burgess has announced. It will consist of a large relief map of the canal and a large series of photographs taken during construction days, as well as recent pictures showing the canal's operation.

These photographs will feature what the United States has done in Panama for health and sanitation, the handling of ships passing through the waterway, the construction and operation of the Gatun, Pedro Miguel, and Miraflores locks; the mechanical shops and dry docks, the handling of supplies for steamers passing through the canal, and the fortifications, with army and navy activities.

Gov. Burgess states these pictures are to be sent to Washington for enlarging, coloring, and framing. Department heads have been asked to submit suitable photographs for the collection.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

FRITZ LEIBER and his faithful Shakespeareans celebrated the holiday of thankfulness by pacing through the bloodcurdling chronicle play of "Richard III," and the grim old Tower of London got the usual amount of morbid advertising. The Swan of Avon wrote it; therefore let it pass for a drama. It is an Elizabethan equivalent of the lurid "mystery shows" of today—a melodramatic farce framed up for the cut rate customers. Nevertheless, it contains rich proof that it was written by a poet.

The star attacks the famous character in the customary Saturday night manner, giving him the full measure of deformity and malignity as set down in the text. All the other great rôles in the Shakespearean gallery have been modernized in their interpretation, but the hunchback of Gloster seems to defy the human touch. The tradition that he must be played in Lon Chaney style persists in spite of historical proof that the actual Richard was a brilliant and formidable warrior—no twisted, limping victim of infantile paralysis, but an athletic terror with lance or sword.

Mr. Cecil puts a high note into the performance with the gorgeous speech in which false, perjured Clarence relates his tormenting dream. Miss Hone has a soft, patrician quality as the strangely wooed Lady Anne, and Miss Bronson contributes a dignified queen.

Eddie Cantor rises to deny that he will return to the stage in a show of London origin called "Mr. Cinders." He announces that because he is under contract to make a talking picture next April there is no immediate possibility of his appearing "in person" on Broadway.

The following federal government units will be represented: Department of agriculture, bureau of chemistry and soils, forest service, forest products laboratory, and taxation inquiry bureau.

BUSINESS GROUP TELLS CHICAGO'S BIG GAIN AMONG HIGH SCHOOLS

The public and parochial systems, which are striving to provide seats and instruction facilities for elementary and secondary school pupils, are confronted by an increase of over 31.8 per cent in the school population as compared with that of ten years ago. This is revealed in figures made public yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

While 578,880 pupils attended Chicago schools in 1920, the school population of 1930 is 749,840. This total does not include the public junior high schools, which have an attendance of 30,308. The 1920 figures on these schools are not available to the association and so were not considered in the percentage of increase.

The extent to which education opportunities in Chicago have been stimulated in the last ten years with an increase of almost 25 per cent in population during the same period, is shown by the following results of the Association of Commerce survey:

Public grammar schools	346,197	407,396	17.6
Public continuation schools	6,646	13,068	51.2
Public high schools	38,411	85,031	121.3
Public evening schools	36,004	51,608	43.2
Public junior high schools	....	30,308	....
Catholic grammar schools	137,778	182,625	32.5
Catholic high schools	11,466	20,212	76.2

Further figures will be issued from time to time.

Shaw Attacks Dole, Talking to Socialists

Says Fabian Society Is Proved Mistaken.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—George Bernard Shaw revealed tonight what a tory he has become since the days forty years ago when he was leader of the Fabian society's campaign for socialist Utopia.

As a disillusioned socialist Shaw lectured tonight before the same Fabian society, admitting his earlier views were mistaken but still full of fire and energy in advocating a new British system of government. He admitted the Fabians had been wrong in staking all their hopes on a parliamentary system when all the system could do was to prevent things being done. He admitted "votes for women" was a short sighted slogan because it failed to recognize the necessity of electing women for every office the same time as a man.

With Lord Passfield, and Isabel MacDonald on the platform behind him, Shaw denounced the effects of the dole on British life, saying:

"People of these islands are in a desperate condition. We are burning the candle at both ends. Once it used to be the aristocracy which was using up the nation's wealth; now we have the proletariat living off the government as well. Not only are there thousands who have not known what it is to work, but there are thousands of children who have never known their parents to work.

"And yet the Labor party which knows this danger is unable to do anything about it. It is unable for example to form a national labor corps such as is advocated by G. D. H. Cole and other economists.

"That is the place to put the boys and girls to whom an extra year of school would be a waste of time. There are times when I positively want to get this Labor government out of power. Feeling 'Well, if this drudgery has got to be done let it be done by Stanley Baldwin.'"

Sparing no one's feelings, Shaw asserted the Labor government is doomed. He suggested, however, that by a sweeping new bill reforming the whole British system of government, the Labor party might die gloriously instead of meeting a humiliating death.

"I will always rise at with the wildest enthusiasm," he added. "That's a reform bill. The Labor government, if it goes to the country anew, will go to a thoroughly disappointed electorate. It either will incur defeat or a check. The Labor party had made very large promises two years ago; now it is necessary to give the people hope.

"You'll get the whole country boiling with enthusiasm or indignation over a reform bill, and if labor goes out on such an issue it won't matter. It will be glorious defeat."

Tests on Mice Reveal Work of Outlaw Cells

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—An inherited susceptibility to leukemia, a disease closely resembling and thought to be related to cancer, has been found at the Carnegie institution here.

Leukemia is caused by outlaw white blood cells, which are formed in enormous numbers; they circulate in the blood and concentrate in tumors in different organs, especially in the spleen. In man the disease is fatal.

Dr. E. C. MacDowell of the Carnegie institution and Dr. Maurice N. Richter of Columbia college of physicians and surgeons have developed a race of mice, all of which are subject to leukemia.

Mice of this particular race usually develop the disease after a certain age. But even before this time of life they develop it if inoculated with tissues of mice having leukemia.

Proof of their peculiar susceptibility is found by Drs. MacDowell and Richter in failure of other mice to get the disease from similar inoculations. Other races of mice seem immune to inoculation that is almost certain death for these inbreds and their hybrids.

Furthermore, among the susceptible mice the disease is becoming more virulent. It has been transplanted in them 30 times from one set of mice to the next and now causes death more quickly than at first.

The inoculation is done by hypodermic needle. Although it adds to the already known evidence that cancer can be transplanted from one animal to another, it does not throw any light on the present spontaneous spread of cancer.

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

China Resents New Calendar, but It's Legal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, Nov. 27.—There is no thanksgiving in China over the new and semi-westernized calendar that is now in effect. While it has been tolerated thus far the lunar calendar is officially forbidden and only the solar calendar is permitted.

The change has been gradual in the last two years, but now that the Kuomintang [or People's party] is in control of all except outlying sections the publication of the old calendar is forbidden.

Yet there is nothing in the solar calendar that preserves any of the old traditions. One Chinese facetiously referred to the new calendar as a double sun calendar—the celestial sun and Sun Yat-Sen, the father of the present China.

The eighteen holidays provided in the new calendar deal entirely with Sun Yat-Sen and incidents with which he was connected. The solar calendar that is now enforced omits many of the holidays that were incident to the lunar calendar.

The lunar calendar was uncanny in many respects in reference to the seasons and the weather prognostications were remarkable. One date in what is our March was indicated as "when insects begin to stir." It was amazing to note the infallibility of the calendar in latitude 40, for which it was devised, especially with reference to the first day of spring, which that date marked. It was so throughout the year.

It is now forbidden to print the lunar calendar and the holidays provided in the new calendar mark nothing, but events in the life of Sun Yat-Sen and the revolution I was chiefly responsible for having started. In the Lunar calendar certain foreign bank holidays had been observed, but these are now ignored as such.

But what chiefly affects the Chinese is the abolition of the four settlement days a year, which marked the respective seasons in the Christian calendar. Also it was the custom of the Chinese to close down their industries and especially the shops for a fortnight at the close of the lunar year, when the workers went to their homes, often miles distant. This was at a time in mid-February when it was far better suited to Chinese custom and agricultural conditions.

On the fifteenth day was the feast of lanterns, always marked by parades, then there was the fête of the full moon on the 15th day of the eighth month. There were seven real festivals in all. In the lunar calendar the new moon was the first of every month.

What substitute for the four settlement days will be devised is not yet decided and this is an important question away from the treaty ports where the western method of monthly settlements has not been adopted and the new calendar provides nothing that can be looked to as settlement days, as were the full moon stage of certain of the Chinese months, marking also the midseason periods.

Another tradition is the refurnishing at the new year period. As it now stands unless other dates are chosen the ancient festival of throwing out the old kitchen god and the installation and preparation for worship of the new on must take place on what is the western Christmas day. The new god always was formally worshiped on the New Year's day.

The holidays of the new calendar mark nothing traditional or sentimental of the old one. Those the Chinese will chiefly miss are the four settlement days, with their incidental closing of shops and merry making. These were in addition to the lunar new year, usually in February; the spring festival, generally in May, the midsummer festival, corresponding to the English harvest home, in late August, and the autumn or harvest festival which fell about the American Thanksgiving time.

Do You Want Your Children to Think You Are Perfect?

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

If your young child's questions (early sex education) are difficult to answer, helpful reading will be suggested by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"I used to think my father was perfect when I was a boy—that he was a sort of god," said a man to me the other day. "And when I grew up and knew two great weaknesses and smaller faults that he had it was a tragedy for me. It took me years to get over the disillusionment."

Do you want your children to think you're perfect?

I suppose it's natural enough for you to do so. We all want to loom large in some one's eyes. And our children are so ready to put us on a pedestal.

Many moderns may laugh at such a thought, but it's true. Children do want to look up and reach up—and when they're little mother and father must be the hub of their universe.

It's pretty nice to have your children think you're perfect, and when they do some of us have a tendency to foster the illusion. But it's a dangerous thing to do because the time will come when they'll see that we're not perfect. And disillusion is not so good.

Perhaps on the whole, as they grow older, it's safer for us to let our children realize that we have our faults and that we make our mistakes, too.

I know of one mother who often admits to her little girl that she's made a mistake, or been unfair, or too critical. She will quickly apologize to the child if she's in the wrong. She doesn't want her daughter to love and respect her as she isn't, but as she is. But she really tries to be worthy of that respect.

She rather purposely climbs down off the pedestal that she saw her young daughter putting her on. Or perhaps I shuld say, she won't have any pedestal around.

Let your children know you're not perfect. Don't worry over any loss of respect. If you're fair and frank with them you'll have their respect—also their companionship.

And—here's a big and—it's much easier for a boy or girl to get together, especially in adolescence, with a human mother and father than it is with one who is a demi-god.

Hard Boiled Young Gal Presents Her Ideas on Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Apropos a fairly scathing comment in this column recently about the utter disregard of marriage rights, a hard boiled young modern presents a hard boiled young modern's ideas on the subject of her kind and the husband sealed to another woman.

"You make us out hard and unjust," the young woman writes, "mercenary and cold blooded. But don't you think we have hearts? Don't you think I would like to marry some boy of my own age, and do you think I would want him to run around with other women a couple of years after marriage? It can't be done. Boys of my own age drink too much, have no respect for women, have no money, and are not at all polite. So, in order for me to have any fun I must go out with married men who are understanding, in my case, at least.

"What if they should show their appreciation of my company with material gifts? Is there anything wrong with that? Most married women are so sure of their husbands they do not bother exerting themselves to hold them. And what a necessity to hold them after they are used to having well dressed, good looking, neat, and intelligent girls in their offices all day!"

"Marieanne" concludes with the information that she is 21 and [Heaven forbid!] "she is what they call a typical American girl." We know better, because we are fortunate enough to know the typical American girl and she resembles the portrait above not at all. She doesn't find that boys drink too much, because that isn't the kind of company she has to seek. She does not find that men have no respect for women because her bearing and reputation are such that she gets all the respect she wants.

While she may have a healthy regard for the need of a decent living wage, she is still willing to stretch a young husband's income by economies and good management. She marries a boy of her own age, or near it, because she loves him and because she is not afraid to take a chance with him. She doesn't see married women as a group of stodgy, uninteresting, slipshod creatures. She is wiser than that.

IF INDIGESTION TORTURES YOU

"Having been a stomach sufferer for years, I decided to give ACIDINE a trial. Now all my old ailments have disappeared and my stomach is in fine shape," says Mr. H. T. Games of 4372 N. 43rd Street, Merchantville, N. J. "You can use this letter in any manner you see fit. My only reason for writing you is that whenever I find a thing is good, I feel it my duty to boost that article, and ACIDINE is good, believe me."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Jantase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, easy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

Eva Booth Visiting Bramwell's Widow; Shows Feud at End

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A reconciliation between Commander Evangeline Booth and the family of Bramwell Booth was completed today when the American leader stayed for an hour and a half with the general's widow and her daughter, Commissioner Catherine Booth.

The visit took place at the same house in Hadleywood where the general died, and where his family refused to receive the commander during the high council meeting two years ago.

This is the first time Commander Eva Booth has seen her sister-in-law on her present trip to England, but the day she arrived from America Commissioner Catherine visited her at her hotel. They have been on friendly terms throughout the recent Salvation Army conference.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover attended the morning service in the Central Presbyterian church today. They had personal friends at dinner tonight to meet their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard of New York, who, with their daughter, Peggy, are holiday guests there. Ignace Paderewski, pianist and former premier of Poland, who was a guest of the President for several days, left late last night for New York.

Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by her son, Allan, and Mrs. Rickard and her daughter, were guests tonight of the secretary of the navy and Mrs. Adams in their box at the navy relief ball, at the Willard. They arrived at the ball at 10:30 and remained until a few minutes after 1 even.

Vice President Curtis and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gann, had the Vice President's son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Charles P. George Jr., for their guests at dinner today in their apartment at the Mayflower. They all went to the navy relief ball later.

Mrs. Fred A. Britten, wife of the representative from Chicago, was among the guests of Mrs. Edward N. Hurley of Chicago at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, where she entertained a company. Mr. and Mrs. Hurley have been in Washington for some days.

Miss Julia Mattis, niece of the late Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois, returned from a short visit in Philadelphia in time to have a family dinner in her home in Massachusetts avenue. In the company were Maj. and Mrs. Camp and their little family, and Mrs. James R. Mann, who, like Miss Mattis, continues to make her home in Washington. Maj. Camp has recently come to Washington for station.

WEDDINGS

Although it is customary for a bride to change her name, Miss Alice Charlotte Hanson changed only one letter in her last name when she was wed yesterday to Arthur Stedry Hansen. The ceremony was performed at the Hamilton club by the Rev. E. G. Hawkinson of the Austin Mission church. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hansen live in Wilmette. Mr. Hansen is a financial engineer, at present engaged in refinancing of the public pension funds of this state. He is a graduate of the Armor Institute of Technology.

New York, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Juliet Jordan, blonde charmer from Los Angeles in Florenz Ziegfeld's current musical extravagance "Smiles," it was announced today will be married tomorrow afternoon to a young Greenwich Village artist, Richard Chenault. The ceremony will be performed at the Little Church Around the Corner.

Chicago Group Plans Hunting in Tennessee

BY THALIA

Grasslands, the newest sort of a hunting club in this country [it's located near Gallatin, Tenn.], will be the objective of a pilgrimage of Chicago hunters next week. The inaugural running of the Grasslands international steeplechase is to take place on Saturday, Dec. 6, but the Chicagoans will go south about Wednesday so that they can get in some hunting on the marvelous grounds of the club. Mrs. Howard Linn, Col. Noble B. Judah, the Samuel J. Walkers, Mr. and Mrs. J. Andrew King, and the Austin H. Niblacks are to be in the party which is to be put up by Col. and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, who are the only Chicago members of the organization.

The Grassland Downs course, over which the steeplechase is to be run, is a counterpart of England's Aintree, and the 'chasers entered comprise the pick of the east and south.

Assisting Mrs. Potter Palmer, who is chairman of the reception committee of the Arts club this year, at the tea to open the exhibition of paintings by Margarett Sargent this afternoon, will be Mrs. Joseph Adams, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. James McVeagh, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Miss Margaret Hambleton, Mrs. Howard Linn, and Mrs. Shreve Badger. A showing of Picasso drawings is also to be opened this afternoon.

Miss Suzette Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, and Miss Eleanor Whiting, daughter of Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, will make their formal bows to society this afternoon. Miss Morton's presentation will take place at a tea at the Casino and Miss Whiting's at her mother's residence at 1438 North State parkway. Miss Morton is to be assisted by fifteen of the season's debutantes and by Miss Constance Zabriesky of New York, who is visiting her. Mrs. Oscar Johnson will give a dinner-dance at the Casino this evening for Miss Whiting and her assistants.

Mrs. Gustav Hessert is to be chairman of the committee in charge of the boudoir booth at the Grant hospital bazaar at the Drake on Tuesday, Dec. 9. Assisting her are Mrs. William Peterson and Mrs. Taylor Strawn as assistant chairmen, Mrs. William Rehm, Mrs. E. R. Litsinger, Mrs. Charles H. Wacker, Mrs. William Sherman Hay, Mrs. Andrew Sherriff, Mrs. A. C. Cox, and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd.

In the audience for the professional debut of Mrs. John Grace Jr. (Frances Coates Grace) on Sunday evening at the Civic theater will be many of her Hinsdale neighbors, who have enjoyed her singing on many charitable occasions. Mr. and Mrs. James Knowlson, Mr. and Mrs. William Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wade, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shelton are among the Hinsdale residents who will attend. Mrs. Grace's husband and small daughter, Katherine, will also be present to hear her sing.

The Walter S. Brewsters have lent "Interior" and Mrs. R. R. McCormick, a landscape to the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago for their current exhibition of 15 paintings and some prints by Henri Matisse.

THANKSGIVING DEBUTANTE

MISS LUCY STONE

Miss Lucy Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone, made her debut at a reception given by her parents at their residence at 1337 Astor street yesterday afternoon.

Show of Modern Masters Now Given at Roullier Gallery

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The exhibition of original drawings and lithographs by modern masters in the Roullier gallery is one which is important in itself and important also as a connecting link in the varied chain of exhibitions which this week seems to bind the various galleries together. We are shown recent contemporaries and less recent contemporaries at Knoedler's, the Walden-Dudensing gallery, O'Brien's, and the Diana Court gallery. This exhibit of modern masters in the Roullier gallery is the buckle on the chain.

Henri Matisse is seen in various drawings of women. His direct attack upon the female body may not be always in the best of taste, but it rarely fails in whetting one's appetite for more. A far cry from his unsubtle battle axing is found in the delightful little figure by George Luks, "In the Elevated." A world of poignant desire is in that back. Another direct antagonist to the honest vulgarity of Matisse is discovered in the charming "Study of Eve," by Fahtin Latour.

Henri Toulouse-Lautrec, whose biting humor ranges over all classes and circumstances of society, offers an unusual study in the drawing of an old, work worn horse. A 1930 note is seen in Cooley's "The Sunbathers," prone on the sands in the browning rays of the sun. Archipenko reiterates his passion for massive, architectural nudes, and Davies asserts his lighter touch in a page of ten figures, all of men. Wanda Gag is interesting in another clever use of shadows and light. Her work invariably holds a whimsical humor that is refreshing.

Walt Kuhn, Helen West Heller (with a tremendously clever "Noise"), Ivor Rose, Paul Gauguin, Marie Laurencin, Picasso, Pruna, Renoir, Segonzac, Daumier, and Degas add definite interest to the exhibit.

Society at the Opera

Late Thanksgiving dinners apparently were responsible for the absence of several of the regular Thursday opera-goers at last night's performance of "The Masked Ball."

The Chauncey McCormicks were in their accustomed place in the lower box tier, with Marquesa d'Ivanrey and Col. and Mrs. George Tayloe Langhorne as their guests. Mrs. McCormick wore pale green satin, the marquesa wore an aquamarine satin gown with a double strand of large pearls and an ermine wrap, and Mrs. Langhorne was in figured gold cloth.

Mrs. Waller Borden's eight guests occupied her box, while their hostess sat in Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's box adjoining it. Her party included her two sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, the latter in pale blue beaded chiffon; Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Mrs. Louis G. Stevenson, Mrs. John T. Pirie, and Mrs. Ernest L. Ives.

Miss Jeannette Higgins was hostess in one of the lower boxes to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine Jr., Miss Eloise Higgins, Darrell Matthews, and Arthur D. Welton Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Heyworth had with them their niece, Miss Evelyn Kallscheur, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kuhns.

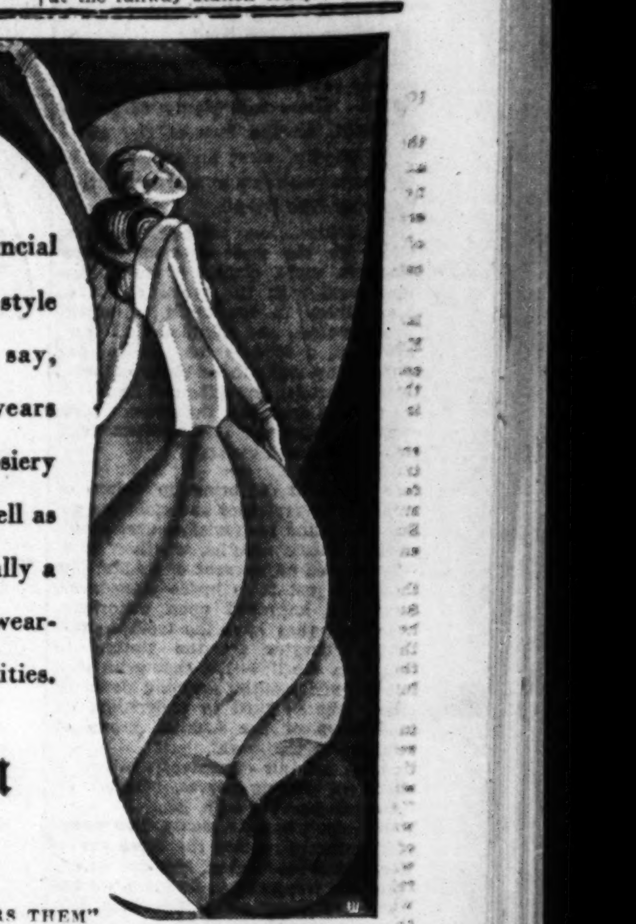

Harold F. McCormick, who has just returned from a long stay in California, occupied his box for the first time this season with Miss Lorraine and Miss Elizabeth Noble and Carl Claussenius as his guests. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Stafford, and Miss Bertha Alling were guests of the George Carter Howlands.

Turkey's Foreign Minister Reaches Italy for Parley

ROME, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, met Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister, at the railway station today.

It is a tribute to her financial judgment as well as her style judgment when they say, "You just know she wears them." For McCallum hosiery launders and wears as well as it looks . . . which is really a tremendous claim for its wearing and laundering qualities.

Suicidal Gloom Doesn't Belong on Any One's Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"That one over there with the suicide gloom on her face!"

The phrase caught my ear in a supposedly gay place of entertainment. I looked. There was plenty of gloom, all right, on the face of the girl—about 25—but what an expression to be worn with such hair and that heavenly blue frock!

Of course, one neither sees nor looks for the most cheerful expressions in night clubs. I am always impressed with the facial strain of good cheer in the midst of music, noise, smoke, and so-called fun. But, after all, a face in the mid-twenties hasn't any right to be blank of hope. Even a broken romance can be mended at that age. But that wasn't what was the matter. It was discontent, chronic, almost vicious.

Anyway, it did bring up visions of the mental processes and emotions going on behind the facial scenery about. And women's mouths, whether from the hurried adjustment of lip stain or whether just from inside cussedness, could be improved upon pictorially. Certainly they have the teeth to smile with. They've got the tinting to brighten the lips—but that grim look that sends mouths dripping down at the edges is hard to understand on the faces of the luckiest group of women in the world.

It is not all discontent; rather a habit of tensing nerves, whether on pleasure bent or on a job.

We don't want a sickly, Pollyannaish smirk to replace the down curve, for that is maddening. Nor can we expect the irrepressible line of good humored childhood on mature faces. But what we could use more of on adult faces is softness of mouth line. No more is needed than that the mouth muscles be relaxed. They do not have to be held down in a tight grip. Let them play—easily.

I don't know anything that will change a face for the better—homely or beautiful—like relaxed mouth muscles, with an easy upturn at the corners. Try it before you set this morning's paper aside. See if you are getting that look of grim determination or discontent that creams will not erase.

You lift the expression of the entire face when you change the mouth muscles for a pleasanter turn. Let your mirror tell you all about that mouth of yours.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

S. B.: STRENUOUS EXERCISE IS necessary to reduce the busts and it must be done systematically every day—at a certain time and, for a certain length of time. Swinging Indian clubs is excellent, also rowing and bag punching.

K. McG.: FOR TAKING CARE OF eyebrows a tiny brush should be used. Brush them into shape morning and night. The same brush may be used on the eyelashes. They should be brushed upward to encourage them to curl.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Marketing grain in the form of turkey meat is one way of obtaining a good price for grain this year, says Rex E. Willard, farm economist at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

"Records show that a pound of turkey can be produced normally with 4 to 6 pounds of feed. The average gain for a healthy fattening turkey is from 1 to 1½ pounds per week. With feed costing on the average ¾ cent a pound or less, by careful feeding a pound of turkey can be produced at an average cost of about 5 cents for feed leaving a substantial margin to cover labor costs and profit."

Many of the young birds which would grade No. 2 at this time because of lack of conditions will, with proper care and feeding, grade No. 1 for the Christmas market, according to Mr. Willard. The spread in price between No. 1 and No. 2 grades is 7 to 10 cents.

"It would appear that birds below No. 1 quality at the time of the Christmas kill should be held over and marketed as soon as they reach No. 1 quality. With normal price trends and the increased value of the turkeys due to a No. 1 grade compared to No. 2, an added feed cost of 30 cents normally would add about $1.90 per bird if they were increased from 10 pounds at the present time to 14 pounds for the Christmas market."

Patterns by Clotilde

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S DRESS.

The crossed lines of the bodice of this dress and the vertical lines created by the box-plait effect at the front, help in giving the figure a slender appearance. The slight blousing of the bodice contrasts with the fitted line of the hip. It is a splendid dress for general daytime wear and any of the dress woolens, or the heavier crêpes, will be suitable.

The pattern, 2799, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

This Jenny Suit Gives Illusion of Slimness

BY BETTINA BIDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Quite a few pounds have been added to fashionable figures, lately. To be smart in Paris is no longer to resemble a poster of the family skeleton, though a small waist is often desirable. A tall, willowy figure is, however, still the feminine ideal, and so Paris couturiers all devote a generous section of their creations to clothes that reduce you, while you wait. The dressmaker's hand is quicker than the eye, and pictures taken before and after wearing some of their costumes would make you swear you'd really diminished considerably.

This sartorial illusion is achieved in a number of ways—by diagonal cuts, by cunning color and texture contrasts, and by narrowing and lengthening drapery. The Jenny suit, sketched above, turns the reducing trick rather prettily. She makes it of dark, corinthe red velvet and trims it with beige caracul. The flare of the semi-fitted coat—drooping in back—is one of the most slenderizing lines there is. The effect is intensified by the narrow, pointed godets inset front and back in the coat, and in front in the skirt, and also by the way the beige fur is applied, forming a point front and back, leaving the bulkiest part of the figure in the dark, red velvet. The beige caracul is used for the crush collar and for the lower sleeves in Jenny's typical manner.

The little tuckin blouse does another clever slenderizing stunt. It has one side of its upper bodice drapery in corinthe red satin and the rest in beige, thus distracting the eye from dwelling on too ample curves.

Iowa Lacks Romance, Sam Goldwyn Says, Reaching New York

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Samuel Goldwyn said today there is no romance in Iowa.

Any tall corn enthusiast, though, who would like to prove the movie producer is talking through his snappy gray fedora need only take his pen in hand and show Goldwyn he is wrong—for as new production head of United Artists he seeks new talent.

Goldwyn stepped from the Century limited with his wife, the former Frances Howard, and let it be known:

1. That he seeks an American girl, about 21, good looking, intelligent, possessing personality.
2. The same in a boy.
3. A writer or writers who can give the talking screen some new life.

This thing about Iowa came up when somebody criticized the Goldwyn practice of choosing screen plays that have their setting in Europe.

"There is where the romance is," he answered, "in Italy, in France, where people live, in America—humpf, show me the romance in Iowa! They're too busy with business out there, too busy."

He'll sail for Europe Tuesday to hunt some capturable romance for the screen.

But maybe, he conceded, the typical American girl lives in Iowa. Intelligence and personality will be her chief assets.

"The old days of the silent movies when a pretty face was sufficient are gone," he said. "Now everybody connected with pictures must be intelligent."

AFTER THE GAME • GARGLE WITH GLYCO

Many throats lose! You can't expose yourself once a week in a chilly stadium and expect to defy a sore throat, colds or hoarseness. Throat resistance must be built up against attack. Gargle with GLYCO-Thymoline . . . especially after moments of exposure. And instead of nursing a sore throat at home . . . be out there cheering at every game. Prescribed by physicians for over 30 years. Just say "GLYCO" to your druggist. Kress & Owen Co., N.Y.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Shamrocks last night for the first time showed their American league wares to 7,500 Chicago hockey customers and succeeded in drumming up quite a lot of approval for themselves by turning back the Tulsa Oilers by a score of 4 to 1.

At first the crowd was a little frosty toward these newcomers who are bidding for some of the affection enjoyed by the Blackhawks. But as the game wore on the folks began to warm up to the green and white clad young men and sponsors of the American league more emphatically expressed their hopes that the field is ready for extensive support of two hockey teams in Chicago.

Announce Hawks' Score.

As evidence that the Shamrocks are sincere in their contention that they are not precipitating a hockey war in setting up the American as a major league and entering the Chicago field, the Blackhawks' score was announced at frequent intervals as the game in New York progressed. This friendly gesture apparently impressed the fans for after the first announcement the many fans found their voices and whooped things up during the remainder of the evening.

The majority of the spectators, perhaps, went to the Stadium in a critical frame of mind. They saw less polished hockey probably than they've been seeing in the National league, but they saw no unhappy falling off in spirit, speed and determination.

The Shamrocks were bearing down all the way and the reduced amount of whistle blowing on the part of the officials allowed for a maximum of action. In the last period the action took the form of a catch as catch can wrestle between Bobby Burns of the Shamrocks and Sonny Boy Wakeford of the visitors.

MacFayden, Keats Ruled Out.

Their teammates eventually got them parted, but before this fracas had been forgotten Duke Keats got into it with Donnie MacFayden. All four of these disgressors were bounced off the ice, Burns and Keats on a major penalty. These side activities pleased the fans not a little, if their joyous howls were to be taken as approval.

Gordon Brydson won a good share of the applause through his skating last night and promises to become a favorite among Shamrock patrons. The same appears to be true of Frank Taylor and Burns, former Blackhawks, Andy Mulligan, MacFayden and several others. Timmins, Shamrock goalie, made a number of fine saves that made the crowd forget his one bit of loafing which enabled the Oilers to get their one score. The fans who had been wondering if the Shamrocks were possessed of scoring punch didn't have long to wait before the boys rang up their first counter on Chicago ice. Clayton's goal in 32 seconds after the start of the contest was so gracefully executed that the customers scarcely realized what was going on.

Feints Goalie McCusker.

Clayton took the puck after the face off and dashed down mid ice, and with a neat feint pulled Goalie McCusker out of position, then slammed the disk into the net.

After the precipitate opening tally there was quite a bit of spirited skating, and several serious scoring threats, but no scores until the period was 18 minutes old. Then Andy Mulligan picked up the puck near his own cage and took it down the north side for a long shot which was stopped but remained in a nice spot for McFayden to rush up and swish it home. The time of the Shamrock's second goal was 18:55.

Burns and Mulligan both made some spirited dashes down the ice, but their shots went wild.

Williams Scores for Oilers.

The Oilers went in for a little sudden scoring themselves at the outset of the second period, Burr Williams accomplishing a none too well resisted score in 1:02. Burr took a long shot which Timmins stopped, but Sam apparently was so elated with his per-

THE GUMPS—CURTAIN FOR BIM

PICKS ON BIG BOY

MICKEY WALKER.

Walker Tries David-Goliath Stunt Tonight

Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, will spot K. O. Christner 30 pounds in their boxing engagement at the Coliseum tonight, according to the informal estimators of poundage who sized up the two athletics yesterday after they had partaken sparingly of Thanksgiving dinner.

Mickey allows this is a considerable concession in tonnage but that the handicap will add just the right amount of zest to the current phase of his campaign to build himself up as a merciless vanquisher of fighting fellows who are bigger than he is.

Seek Bout with Schmeling.

Mr. Walker and his manager, Jack Kearns, report themselves as being eager for a battle with Max Schmeling for the heavyweight title at Soldiers' field next June. If memory serves us right almost everybody who fought in Chicago last winter was fixing to fight somebody important at Soldiers' field last summer, and there were no fights last summer at Soldiers' field so maybe it is just as well to let the Walker-Christner serve for what ever interest value it may have in itself.

There is no denying, however, that Mickey is in the midst of a serious campaign and will be most aggressive in his efforts to flatten his hefty adversary tonight.

Both fighters concluded their training yesterday afternoon and at the end of their workouts Mickey weighed 166 and, while he shied at actual weighing, Christner said he would enter the ring at 197.

It will be Walker's second venture into the heavyweight division. He disposed of Johnny Risko in Detroit, but says he has a greater respect for Christner's hitting ability than he had or has for Risko's.

Battling Bozo to Appear.

Matchmaker Jim Mullen, while glowing over the prospect of a good fight between Walker and Christner, is doing considerable pointing with pride to the semi-windup, the heavyweight encounter between Battling Bozo of Birmingham, Ala., and Harry Dillon of Winnipeg, Can.

Mr. Bozo seems to be something of an eccentric character, and while he takes the fisticuffs business quite seriously, sometimes becomes whimsical in the ring. It is said that Bozo, whose other name is James Curtis Hambright, never has been in the north before.

In addition to the main bouts, there will be five scheduled five rounders to make the card total 43 rounds of boxing. The performers include four Golden Glove winners and the Gale brothers, from Three Oaks, Mich., a home port for athletes, it appears.

The card:

Mickey Walker [Jersey City, N. J.] vs. Myer K. O. Christner [Akron, O.], 10 rounds, heavyweights.

Jack Robinson [Cicero, Ill.] vs. Knute Dane [South Chicago], 5 rounds, heavyweights.

ARMY ARRIVES IN CHICAGO FULL OF CONFIDENCE

Fleming Predicts Cadets Will Whip Irish.

The Army football squad led by Maj. Ralph Sasse, the head coach, arrived in Chicago yesterday looking forward to tomorrow's game with Notre Dame as the climax of their season and regarding their subsequent game with the Navy in New York for the benefit of the unemployed strictly as an exhibition. Maj. Phil Fleming the graduate manager of Athletics at the Military academy, ventured so far as to say that the Cadets would lick Notre Dame.

The team and the coaches went to the South Shore Country club and the other officers and the civilians of the party put up at the Congress hotel.

The Army athletes were surprised to find on awakening yesterday morning that the country west of Buffalo lay under a deep fall of snow as there has been none in their part of the country up to the time of their departure Wednesday afternoon.

Work Out Today.

This afternoon the cadets will work out at Soldiers' field, but their practice of Thanksgiving day consisted of only the lightest limbering exercises at the South Shore Country club.

There were thirty players in the A squad and six coaches, Maj. Sasse, Harry Wilson, Charlie Born, Fats Ellinger, Red Blaik, and Johnny Stokes Three other coaches decided to forego the trip to Chicago in order to scout the Navy, and two Navy men, the Ingram brothers, Bill and Jonas, came to Chicago to scout the Army, indicating that both sides regard the Army-Navy game as something more than a casual and unimportant contest.

Commander Jonas Ingram, U. S. N., is now executive officer of the U. S. S. Wyoming, which lies at present in the Philadelphia Navy yard but he has been continuing his activities in football this fall and officiated as head linesman in the Army's game with Furman earlier in the season.

Two Generous Gestures.

Maj. Sasse read in the morning newspapers that Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame coach, had said he was slightly afraid the Army might beat Notre Dame and replied: "I can be as polite as Knute can, so I will say it is just possible that Notre Dame will beat us."

The entire scrub squad of the Army, 51 players, will arrive in Chicago today, the guests of the athletic department of the Military academy, to see the game and enjoy the trip, as a reward for their otherwise unrecognized service in developing the successful A team. At an average of about $125 per man, the expense of this gesture to the scrubs will cost the athletic fund $6,375.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, the superintendent of the academy, and his staff also will arrive today.

Army in Good Shape.

Thus far the Army has won all games except the tie with Yale, and the squad approaches the Notre Dame game with the advantage of a comparative rest of three weeks, having played easy opponents in their last two games, whereas Notre Dame has had only one week to recover from the wear and tear of the hard battle with Northwestern university.

The loss of Joe Savoldi from the Notre Dame back field, due to his dismissal from school, will be proportionately offset on the Army's side by the elimination of Cy Letzelter, the star halfback, who was learned to have falsified his age, due to a misunderstanding. Letzelter remains a cadet at the academy, however, and accompanied the A squad as an unofficial assistant coach. Last week he played with the scrubs in their workouts against the regular team.

IRISH WORK INSIDE

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Notre Dame completed the major portion of its preparations for the Army eleven this afternoon in the field house. With no classes to attend because of Thanksgiving recess, the varsity players gave full attention to gridiron strategy. There was no formal work this morning, since Rockne was in Chicago with the alumni team,

Meet Maj. Sasse, Professional Soldier and Amateur Coach

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Maj. Ralph Sasse, the head coach, comes first in the Who's Who and To What Extent in football at the United States Military Academy. He is a professional soldier but an amateur coach and his principle of amateurism an singleness of purpose have been expensive luxuries this year and will be more expensive next year. As a major of cavalry, he receives only $3,500 a year, plus allowances for his quarters, heat and light and for the maintenance of one horse. He had not been head coach long this fall before a number of the syndicates which sell journalistic giblets offered him very realistic sums of money to write or lend his name to essays on the game.

"Football," said he, "is or should be an amateur game and if I am coaching an amateur team I can't consistently exploit their success for my own profit."

Moreover, Maj. Sasse has no intention ever to quit the army to become a professional coach, however famous and successful he might become. His only ambition in life is to be a good soldier to the end of his career and aside from that consideration he looks upon the exploitation of the game by coaches, colleges and newspapers as being incompatible with the amateur character of the sport. He can't correct these matters generally but so far as he is concerned there will be no avoidable coöperation.

An army officer with two young daughters who will soon be needing the sort of education required for their social station undoubtedly has domestic financial problems on a scale of pay amounting, at a liberal estimate, to $90 a week. If Maj. Sasse's principles and his determination to follow his profession to the exclusion of all side-lines were less firm he might have trebled his income this season for he has been constantly in demand as a journalist, radio performer and platform lecturer on the subject of football.

Herb Can Demand Salute from Father.

Ed Herb, the Army's full back, presently will be in a position to demand the salute from his own father, an interesting but by no means unique situation in Army families. Herb's father is a warrant officer in an infantry regiment in Manila, P. I., entitled to the address of "Mr." but not to the salute, although there was a time during the war when he reached the rank of captain in a combat regiment in France. The war over, he reverted to the ranks.

CADETS' TEACHER

Young Herb is registered as from Manila because that is now his family address, but he learned his football in that prolific ground in the region of Boston from which so many great players were plucked for Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, and Fordham. Herb's high school football experience was obtained at Medford, Mass., and after he had graduated, and while he waited for the opportunity to enter West Point, he spent two years at Colgate university There he played varsity football and basketball for one year.

He is now a yearling, or sophomore, at the military academy and when he receives his commission in 1933 his own dad, if he is still in the service, will be under the necessity of coming to attention when Ed enters his presence or vice versa.

There have been several cadets in the military academy whose fathers were enlisted soldiers serving on the same post. Capt. Walter Wells, the intelligence officer of the academy, states, however, that in all such cases

Trojans Down Huskies, 32-0, by Open Game

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Trojans of Southern California marched through the University of Washington football team today and on to their intersectional clash with Notre Dame. The Huskies were left bogged in a 32 to 0 defeat as 40,000 persons roared their approval of the spectacular open game.

The Trojans wended their way to five touchdowns with Erny Pinckert, back field ace, absent. He limped from the fray early in the first period with an injured hip.

The Huskies hammered and pounded the Trojan line in vain, but their passing attack at times blossomed into brilliance with Merle Hufford either on the sending or receiving end of their offerings. Hufford was the big problem to the Southern California defense, turning in some remarkable runs besides his prominent play in the passing attack.

Southern California gathered 16 first downs during the afternoon, gaining a total of 312 yards. Washington ran up to 255 yards in nine first downs, but 180 of these were made on ten completed passes out of 26 attempts.

The game was the final conference tussle for both teams this season but Southern California has the unbeaten Notre Dame team to cope with here Dec. 6. Lineup:

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Bears clinched the city professional football title yesterday morning at Wrigley field by defeating the Cardinals from the south side, 6 to 0. By their victory, the second over their rivals this season, the Bears also took fourth place in the National league, trailing the Packers, the Giants and the Dodgers.

Joe Savoldi, who until two weeks ago ran for Notre Dame, was baptized professionally at full back on the Bears' eleven. And it was Jumping Joe who scored the winning touchdown. The act was one of the gestures the quarter back reserves for the team's star, and amounted only to a plunge of about a foot. It certainly is unnecessary to add that Savoldi was the principal reason why 8,000 football enthusiasts huddled in the chill of the concrete stands with the temperature only a few notches above nothing Fahrenheit.

Crowd Cheers Joe.

The crowd belonged to the swarthy, black haired Italian. The thousands thwarted incipient pneumonia and frost bite by stamping and yelling for Sa-Vol-Di, whether Jumping Joe was engaged in the play or not. Savoldi usually was employed in deceptive feints, with Red Grange and Bill Senn, hard bitten old timers, carrying the ball against the rugged Cardinal forwards. Joe was a full back, rather than half back, his previously assigned position by announcement of Coach Ralph Jones, because Bronk Nagurski, himself one season removed from the Minnesota campus, was shelved by injury received last week at Philadelphia.

Savoldi carried the ball once in the first quarter, a five yard thrust through the line which immediately was nullified by a penalty of equal distance, levied because Red Grange violated the rule on a player in motion. In the second quarter Savoldi received a short lateral pass and sprinted around the Cards' left end for approximately 20 yards. In action against the pros, Joe played as he had against the collegians. On this jaunt, his thumping, knee high stride, jerked through the clutching arms of a Cardinal tackler, who skidded on the frozen turf grabbing at nothing, and only the proximity of the side lines kept Savoldi from running to the loop.

Bears Get Scoring Chance.

This run gave the Bears their first scoring opportunity, ending as it did on the Cards' 15 yard line. But the Bears didn't capitalize, principally because Red Grange, who made his own professional debut on the same field five years ago, failed to gain the necessary yard on fourth down. Red's mistake was in running smack into Duke Slater and Herb Blumer.

Grange, however, offered propitiatory amends later, his ability to avoid the big Slater making possible Savoldi's touchdown. Brumbaugh started this march bringing back one of Nevers' kicks to the Cards' 24 yard line. Two plays afterward, Red slid around the Cards' left tackle [Slater plays on the opposite side of the line] and wound up his excursion five yards from the goal line. Brumbaugh gained a yard.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Oregon State's football team raced through West Virginia's Mountaineers to a 12 to 0 victory and the old grads from Northwestern battled Notre Dame's heroes of yesterday to a scoreless tie in the Shriners' charity Thanksgiving day football carnival at Soldiers' field.

The games were played on a snow specked gridiron and in near zero weather. Some 20,000 spectators shivered through them. About 50,000 tickets had been sold and the Shriners hoped for a profit upwards of $100,000 to go into their crippled children's hospital fund. They will not know exactly what the charity pot of gold will amount to until a final check of ticket sales is made.

The pomp and the glamor of a great college football spectacle kept the crowd, which was wrapped in coonskin coats and blankets, on edge. A salute of 21 guns was fired to the crippled youngsters of Chicago. Airplanes bombed the stadium, but the bombs exploded in mid-air, and from out of the aerial guns came American flags. The bands from Oregon and West Virginia played the National Anthem and the fight was on.

Oregon Line Powerful.

Buerke, the Oregon State quarter back, a lad who hails from Illinois, Peoria being his home, and Sherwood, the Oregon left half back, led the attack. But Oregon State also presented a powerful line which ripped the Mountaineers' forward wall to shreds at times. Hammer, the Oregon State center was here, there, and everywhere. Thompson also was a power and he did most of the kicking for Oregon State. His long low spirals almost bewildered the Mountaineers.

Oregon and the Mountaineers battled through the first half without a score. But at the beginning of the third quarter Oregon started a drive which was to bring victory. Buerke received the kickoff on Oregon's 37 yard line where he was downed. Sherwood made three yards around left end and then plunged through center for two yards. On the line buck Tuttle made first down on West Virginia's 43 yard line. Then Buerke passed to McKalip and it brought a touchdown.

There was no more scoring until early in the fourth quarter. A punt settled into Buerke's arms on the 50 yard line and he dashed on to the Third period: No score. Penalties—Thompson, Ingram [2].

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks swept over another of their leading rivals for National Hockey league honors tonight, defeating the New York Rangers, 4 to 0, in a lightning fast game.

The big Chicago squad completely outplayed its opponent for the first two periods and eased up only a trifle in the final frame after it had given 13,000 fans a sample of nearly every kind of scoring. Only in their final effort and in the various times when penalties had reduced Chicago's strength could the Rangers do more than hold the Hawks even.

Gottselig Scores First.

The four Blackhawk goals were tallied in four different ways. Johnny Gottselig started it off in the first period when he took a fine pass from Vic Ripley for the first score. Art Somers tallied unassisted early in the second frame and Stew Adams slapped in Miller's rebound about eight minutes later. Cy Wentworth closed the scoring just before the end of the frame when the Hawks had two men in the penalty box, dashing down alone to beat Roach.

The Hawks started out with a slashing offensive that took the play to the Ranger end of the ice and kept it there. Most of their shots were from the boards. Few Ranger attacks got past the center zone.

This offensive brought results after six and one-half minutes of high speed work which included several threats against the Ranger net. In a dazzling play Vic Ripley slipped a pass to Johnny Gottselig right in front of the goal and paved the way for a perfect shot into the net.

A great exhibition of stick handling by Art Somers, less than two minutes after the second period started gave Chicago a 2-0 lead. Somers took the rubber down the left alley from his own defense zone with two mates as threats, pulled Roach out with a faked pass and flipped the rubber into the goal.

Pile Up Lead.

With Miller penalized, Chicago kept right on attacking at every opportunity while Gardiner gave another great exhibition to turn back the Rangers. One quick charge out of a scrimmage around their own goal gave the Hawks another tally halfway through the period. Miller charged in for the first shot and Adams came in quick to net the rebound as Roach fell trying to clear it.

Ingram and Bun Cook were handed penalties close together and Arbour made it three in the box for anti-defense. Dutkowski followed in the penalty parade as he held the puck to stop the most serious threat the Rangers had made. The Hawks finally were forced to play a defensive game as the Rangers sent their whole team down, but Wentworth broke away from it after a moment and handed the fans another surprise by scoring a fourth Chicago goal single handed and almost unhindered.

The Rangers opened the third period with a great attempt to get into the scoring and forced the play into Chicago territory, but they could not break through the Blackhawk defense.

VALENCIENNES IS VICTOR IN BOWIE HOLIDAY FEATURE

Hertz Horse Defeats Lady Broadcast by Neck.

Bowie Race Track, Md., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Before a tremendous gathering of racing enthusiasts, Valenciennes from the stable of Mrs. John D. Hertz accounted for the Thanksgiving handicap, worth $8,900, when she took the measure of the best aged racers on that number today.

There were only six others to oppose the swift running gray filly from the Hertz barn and it was Lady Broadcast, another of the fair sex, that landed second, a neck behind the winner, while Mokatam, from H. F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable, was third. Sun Mission, from the I. Jacobs barn, drove into fourth place and then came in order Inception, Grey Coat and the favorite, Spinach.

Lady Broadcast led the way for the greater part of the journey. Dashing into command at the rise of the barrier, her rider, G. Fields, permitted her to step along at a brisk pace to lead Inception and the others for the first six furlongs. Inception was through after that and the crowd cheered when Spinach moved into second place at the last turn. His bid, however, was brief, as Valenciennes readily headed him and setting sail for Lady Broadcast took command inside the final furlong to score by a neck. Her time was 1:53 2-5.

The stable of H. C. Hatch accounted for a double triumph during the afternoon when French Lass beat a smart band of sprinters in the third event, while Black Cloud carried the Canadian's silks to victory in the fourth race.

GALAHAD WINS AT N. O.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Racing in New Orleans got away to a perfect start here t[oday] when fifteen thousand race fans journeyed to the Jefferson Park track to see the opening day's program.

The Thanksgiving handicap, mile and a sixteenth feature, was won by Phil Reuter's Galahad, ridden by Jockey E. James, who put up a fine ride. Beau Wrack, in the silks of C. Graffagnini, was second, and George Collins' Patricia Marian third. Martis was fourth.

The race was marred by a spill which occurred on the clubhouse turn when Storm stumbled and unseated Jockey Quackenbush. The boy was thrown heavily to the ground and sustained a broken left leg. He was rushed to the emergency hospital in the paddock and later taken to a hospital in New Orleans.

The start was good and Patricia Marian was rushed to the front and led the field by a small margin to the far turn. Meanwhile, Galahad, under James' good handling, trailed far back, but at the end of six furlongs he began to close ground. James took his mount to the outside, where he would be clear of all interference. Galahad had plenty of speed and took command in the stretch to win easily by four lengths. Beau Wrack beat Patricia Marian three lengths for the place.

Tilden Tech Beats Detroit Eleven, 35-12

Tilden Tech concluded its football season yesterday by defeating Eastern High of Detroit, 35 to 12, at White City. Dynamite McNulty, Tech back, scored three of the victors' touchdowns, one of them after an 80 yard run. Case and Bechina scored the other touchdowns for Tilden, while Reick, captain and end of the Detroit eleven, contributed both of Eastern's touchdowns after receiving passes. Eastern scored in the first few minutes of play while the Tilden reserves were in the game. Plunges produced all of Tilden's points after touchdown, McNulty making three of them and Case and Puhr the others. Puhr, Schieffer and Wilhelm featured in the line.

PULLMAN TECH, 4; FENGER, 0.

Pullman Tech turned in an upset yesterday by defeating Fenger, south section champion of the City league, 4 to 0, in their annual Thanksgiving day game. Two safeties provided the Tech's margin of victory. One occurred near the end of the first quarter when Sladik blocked a Fenger punt and Cetera recovered the ball. A poor pass to Dykstra, who was attempting to punt, brought another safety in the third quarter.

DANVILLE, 18; PARKER, 6.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Parker High of Chicago lost its second game of the season and Danville won its first game here today on a field covered with ice and snow. The score was 18 to 6, with Danville breaking a 6-6 tie in the third quarter after Parker had tied the score in the same period. The half ended 6 to 0.

Led by Stone and Lepera, the little mountaineers pushed across a touchdown in the second quarter and followed with another in the final period.

Jenkerson, Ferrara, and West carried the brunt of the Mooseheart attack, which threatened only in the last quarter on a march which was stopped by a fumble on West Virginia's ten yard line.

BEARS DEFEAT CARDINALS, 6-0; SAVOLDI SCORES

then Red carried within inches of the line, again at the left tackle.

Here Brumbaugh remembered his professional etiquette and Savoldi banged into the line, falling with the ball squarely on the final strip. The place kick for the seventh point failed as has been the habit of such plays with the Bears this season.

Bears Miss Driscoll.

Later in the dressing rooms, several of the Bears suggested they petition Paddy Driscoll to rejoin the team and kick those elusive extra points. Since 1925, that it, until this season, Paddy had attended to such affairs for the Bears, and for the six years before that, he had dropped kicked for the Cardinals. Yesterday he was one of the officials.

Bill Senn contributed a thrill in this second quarter, intercepting a Cardinal pass and dodging over the gridiron until Herb Blumer overtook him on the Cards' 13 yard line. Senn's 60 yard journey didn't mean anything for a 15 yard penalty was subtracted for clipping, and seconds later, 15 yards more were added for tripping. Thus the teams left for the intermission with the Bears leading, 6 to 0.

The second half presented no football thrills. The Cards never succeeded in equalling their first quarter drive which ended with Nevers' missing a place kick from the Bears' 28 yard line. Their impotence rested with the alertness of the Bears' secondary, which intercepted forward passes whenever in danger.

Slugging Match Starts.

Savoldi was replaced by Dick Nesbitt until the last six minutes. But he returned to the lineup in time to receive the accolade of professional football. On one of Grange's end runs, Joe dumped the Cardinal left end with decisive abandon. Shortly afterward one of the Cardinals, screened by a huddle of scrambled players, swatted Joe on the mouth. Although no legal recognition was made of the assault Savoldi didn't waste breath on promises. He retaliated right out in public with subsequent loss of 15 yards for the Bears. The flurry of penalties did not affect the status of the Bears' for Bill Senn successfully kicked far down field.

Statistics show the Cards made 12 first downs, the Bears, ten. The Cardinals completed six out of 20 forward passes, but six were intercepted. The Bears attempted three passes, completing two with one interception.

Savoldi's Status Being Considered by Pro Grid Head

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Joe F. Carr, president of the National Professional Football league, said today he was still investigating the eligibility of Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame full back, to play in the league. Savoldi made his professional debut with the Chicago Bears today.

No college player can play in the league until his class has been graduated, Carr said. He added, however, that Savoldi's case is without parallel in the history of the league. Savoldi was forced to withdraw from college.

the young men, upon graduation, have granted their dads the privilege of a perpetual "As you were."

Fields Gets Chance to Get Even.

Like Marty Brill of the Notre Dame back field, who couldn't qualify for the 'varsity at Pennsylvania, Ken Fields of the Army this year had a chance to rebuke and humiliate his old coach. Unlike Brill, however, Fields couldn't achieve complete vengeance.

Brill left Penn for Notre Dame to prove that he could make one of the best football teams in the country against the hardest competition. He returned to Penn this fall and scored three touchdowns in the humiliating rout of his old Alma Mater, a retribution which was highly publicized as being particularly pleasant to his millionaire father. The elder Brill, in fact, was reported to have paid his son $1,000 each for his touchdowns against Penn, and another fine theoretical problem in amateurism was created.

Fields went from high school at Elkhart, Ind., to the University of Illinois, where he studied for three years. In football, however, he was only a member of the ensemble and he went to West Point as a plebe last year with a pretty good football education but no great reputation. Last fall, as a plebe, he toiled diligently to improve the Army varsity's defense against the Illinois plays with which he was familiar but the Army was beaten at Champaign by two sudden breaks.

This season, as a member of the Army varsity, he started the game against Illinois at the Yankee stadium but, in the one game which he most hoped to win by some dramatic feat of his own, he couldn't get started. Presently, he was relieved by Ray Stecker, a second string man, and Stecker scored both of the Army's touchdown's against Illinois.

Still, young Mr. Field's second career in college has been fairly successful. He has made one of the few undefeated teams in the country and, in the less important but quite necessary intellectual phase of school existence, he has stood near the head of his class, a distinguished young man in a very difficult school.

Five Other Cadets Hail from Chicagoland.

Besides Fields there are five young men from the general vicinity of Chicago who will play or sit by ready to play if permitted to do so under the proud gaze of their kin-people. Aaron Lazar, the third center, and Milton Summerfelt, a guard, are Chicago youths; Carl Carlmark, a regular end, and Gunnar Carlson, a substitute guard, come from Moline, Ill., and Bill Frentzell, a back, is from Danville.

Lazar was more successful last year and when the team left for California to play Stanford he was forwarded by aeroplane in time to join the squad, having been detained at the academy to make up some scholastic work. Summerfelt spent one year at Northwestern university and played freshman football there.

Carlmark has won his third varsity letter at end and is one of the best players on the team. Carlson, a classmate of Carlmark's both at Moline High school and at the military academy, has been on the varsity squad for three years, but has yet to earn a letter. Frentzell spent three years at the University of Illinois, but was not a distinguished athlete there.

Oregon State Defeats West Virginia, 12-0

West Virginia 35 yard line. A pass from Buerke to Hughes took the ball down to the Mountaineers' 35 yard line. Sherwood made three yards through tackle and a second later Little was stopped after a right tackle smash on the 2 yard line. On an end around play McKalip went over for the second Oregon State touchdown.

Old Stars Fight Furious Battle.

It was a furious yet a futile battle which the former stars from Northwestern and Notre Dame played. Neither team was ever within scoring distance. The old grads bounced up and down on the frozen sod like so many rubber balls.

How they will feel this morning no one can guess. But such old wizards as Moon Baker, Bill Calderwood, Yats Levison, Waldo Fisher, Jimmy Paterson from away back in 1922, Bob Weinecke and Tim Lowry played surprisingly good football against the Notre Dame forces. For the Irish Hunk Anderson, Jack Elder, Don Miller, Rex Enright, Jack Cannon, Tim Moynihan, Joe Nash, Art Parisienne and Jack Chevigny slammed the old boys from Northwestern around very much as if a collegiate championship were at stake.

The ball was in the center of the field most of the time. When the old fellows got a bit tired they resorted to passes, but none of them connected at the right time for a score. Lineup:

ARMY ARRIVES IN CHICAGO FULL OF CONFIDENCE

Fleming Predicts Cadets Will Whip Irish.

of which his assistants were members.

Rockne called the boys together in the afternoon on his return from Chicago and they took up where they had abandoned the drill the night before. There was no effort to teach new plays or particular formations for the Army. Rather Rockne wishes to have his men at top form physically and mentally. And his wishes are on the way to fulfillment.

Cripples Back in Lineup.

There was a quickening of spirit today which presaged an alert eleven on the gridiron of Soldiers' field Saturday. The cripples, Metzger, Kurth, Kassis, and Brill, were in the first team lineup. It seems probable that Brill will start at his right half back position, although previously it had been believed Bucky O'Conner would carry on.

Dan Hanley again was at full back on the second team. The big boy from Montana, who will alternate with Larry Mullins backing up the Irish line, should be at home on the frozen turf. Saturday which it now seems will be the players' portion. Hanley, while he does not possess the speed of Savoldi, can hit directly into the line with greater results and if the Army halts the thrusts off tackle, he may be invaluable to the Irish team.

All Tickets Gone.

Art Hanley, business manager, has solved his problem by disposing of practically all the 110,000 tickets. Answering mail and the telephone requests has been reduced to a formula "We have no tickets." Unless thousands fail to attend because of the weather, Hanley asserts the attendance record, made last year when 123,000 saw Notre Dame defeat Southern California, will be broken.

Their own offense tuned up, Rockne set his men against the Army formations. Saturday's game, the seventeenth of the series, is the first ever played in the west. All others have been contested at West Point or New York. While this year's cadet eleven has been tied, 7 to 7, by Yale, it has not been defeated. And Notre Dame will be seeking its ninth consecutive victory of the year and the eighteenth since the conclusion of the 1928 campaign.

DE PAUL CLOSES SEASON SUNDAY WITH ST. JOHN'S

Determination to conclude the most successful grid season in De Paul history with a victory will have the Blue Demons keyed up Sunday when they meet St. John's university eleven in a charity battle at Soldiers' field.

De Paul has lost only one game to date. San Francisco stopped the De Paul winning streak last Sunday but the Demons were by no means disgraced. Three times they advanced to the goal line in the second half but lacked touchdown punch.

In other games De Paul has triumphed over St. Mary's of Winona, Minn., Loyola, and Louisville university. St. John's has built up an impressive record in the east with victories over Manhattan, City college of New York and Washington.

COLUMBIA TAKES IOWA CATHOLIC FOOTBALL TITLE

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Columbia academy won the Catholic prep championship of Iowa by defeating the Catholic academy of Des Moines here this afternoon, 6 to 0. The Dubuque team scored its only marker by a plunge over the line by Graham after McDonald had sprinted 30 yards around end.

La Barba Favored to Defeat Taylor in Tonight's Bout

BUD TAYLOR.

La Barba "retired" several years ago as the world's undefeated flyweight champion, but later reconsidered his decision and returned to the ring as a featherweight. A few weeks ago he astounded the experts by giving Kid Chocolate a decisive beating. Chocolate previously had been considered virtually invincible at his own weight. It is largely because of his showing in that bout that La Barba has been installed a heavy favorite over the middle westerner.

Although a veteran, Taylor has gone back very little. A puncher of no mean ability, the Terre Haute terror has battered down many an outstanding bantamweight and featherweight contender with his relentless body attack.

As an additional incentive to victory, the winner of tomorrow night's bout has been promised a match with the survivor of the Chocolate-Bat Battalino featherweight championship bout here Dec. 12.

Cornell Turns Back Penn by 13-7 Score

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Led by a 19 year old battering full back, Bart Viviano, Cornell's big red football team handed a beating to Pennsylvania today for the first time in seven years. The Ithacans turned the tables on their old rivals by a score of 13 to 7, but their margin of superiority was much greater than the tally indicated.

The Quakers were saved from a worse beating largely through the end play of Paul Riblett, who made tackles anywhere near his side of the line. Riblett was the outstanding defensive player on the field and contributed to the gallant stand which the Quakers made in the final period in taking the ball on downs on their 2½ yard line.

Cornell's rushing attack, with Viviano as its dynamo, registered gains of 251 yards, as compared to 136 yards for Pennsylvania. The Ithacans led in first downs by the wide margin of 17 to 9. Their passing attack, although it accounted for the deciding touchdown, was at times a boomerang. Twice in the third quarter Penn's alert end, Burnett, broke up Cornell marches by intercepting passes.

The passing figures showed Cornell completed 7 out of 11 heaves for gains of 111 yards, whereas Pennsylvania completed four out of 11 for gains of 104 yards.

Little Rock Vanquishes Lindblom Preps, 33-13

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Little Rock High school defeated Lindblom, Chicago public school champion, 33 to 13, here this afternoon. The Chicagoans took an early 13 point lead and were out in front, 13 to 7, at the half. However, the Little Rock team had little difficulty running through the visitors in the last two periods.

Shamrocks in 4 to 1 Victory Over Oilers

formance that he failed to reach out and smack the puck from in front of the cage. Whereupon Mr. Williams skated right up and made his score.

It appeared that Timmins might have been drowsing a bit while Williams was frolicking about, but the Shamrock goalie forthwith showed that he is not a sleepy fellow. Within a minute he made two spectacular stops, and everybody was for Sam again.

The Shamrocks waited until the second period was three-fourths over before they got back into the scoring business. In 15:40 Burns scored a pretty one on a nice pass from Headley, and three minutes and three seconds later McFayden speeded down the ice and made a perfect pass to Taylor.

Taylor Follows Up.

Taylor's shot while traveling at top speed was stopped, but before McCusker could get the rubber out of the way Bouncer had followed up and jammed the Shamrock's fourth counter.

The third period saw the Shamrocks content to protect their 4 to 1 lead, but ready to do a little rough and tumble scuffling. There were several impressive attempts at scoring made by the Oilers in the first half of the period, notably a great save by Timmins on a wicked shot by Keats.

At the halfway point Burns and Wakeford had their altercation, for which each drew a major penalty of five minutes.

INJURED IN BOUT.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Kid Watson, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., boxer, was in the hospital today in a serious condition after his collapse last night at the end of a six round bout with Charles Evans of the Canadian Sault. Watson suffered injuries about the head.

PITT DEFEATS PENN STATE, 19-12; HELLER STARS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Playing the most spectacular game of his career, Warren Heller, Pitt sophomore half back, practically unassisted today won a 19 to 12 victory for the Pittsburgh Panthers over Penn State college before 20,000 fans at the Pitt stadium.

Heller not only made two of the three touchdowns for Pitt but he made them at moments when it seemed for a time that State would gain a victory over Pitt for the first time since 1919. Heller's two touchdowns came on long runs, the first on a 31 yard dash in the second period and the second on a 80 yard jaunt in the third quarter and both times when it appeared that State was about to hold the Panthers to at least a tie.

Cleveland Cagers Beat Fort Wayne, 23 to 16

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Cleveland turned the tables on Fort Wayne in an American league basketball game here tonight, atoning for a defeat on its own floor Monday by winning 23 to 16. Spindell, rookie forward, starred with 13 points. The first half ended 14 to 10 and the Hoosiers did not score for 11 minutes after the intermission.

VALIER, 21; EWING, 19.

Benton, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Valier High school's basketball team beat Ewing at Ewing last night, 21 to 19. Royalton plays at Valier Friday night.

WHITE SOX NEED TRADES TO WIPE OUT WEAK SPOTS

Reserve Players Fail to Show Promise.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Unless Pilot Donie Bush, through manipulation in trades, comes up with a few choice playing articles, or is extremely lucky, the White Sox of 1931 will not differ much either in personnel or strength from the combination which was more or less a failure in the recent campaign. This is indicated by the Comiskey reserve list, just promulgated by the American league office.

Mr. Bush, barring acquisition of one or two men of big league rating, will be forced to select missing parts for his 1931 machine from a supply of youngsters of limited experience. The club, partly out of necessity, has confined much of its recruiting to minor leagues of low classification. This is especially true of infield candidates and it so happens that the infield is the glaring weakness of the Comiskey entry. However, there are some newcomers from class AA or class A who have a chance to install themselves permanently in other departments.

Tate to Get Help.

One of last year's problems which, as a basis of class AA performances, should be solved is the catching. Benzie Tate, after arriving by trade from Washington early last season, proved himself a capable worker and probably can continue to hold first string privileges. But he will need help. He's expected to get that from either, or both, Frank Grube, purchased from Buffalo, or Walter Henline, who reported last September after a good year at Toledo. Grube, a former Lafayette college grid and diamond star, was looked upon as the outstanding backstop of the International league. He has been coaching Lafayette ends this fall. Berg and Autry also are among the catching candidates, but for how long is a question.

If first base is to receive any help it will have to come from Ray Radcliffe, who was purchased from a little league of which Selma, Ala., was a member. It usually takes a couple of years to develop such youngsters. The Cleveland club, realizing the Sox need of a first sacker, is reported to have offered Lew Fonseca for Willie Kamm, but the local officials so far have wisely refrained from showing any enthusiasm over the suggestion.

Appling May Develop.

Luke Appling, bought from the Atlanta club, is expected to develop enough power to win the shortstop berth. If he is good enough to beat out Jiill Cissell, who has his faults, then the short job will be satisfactorily filled. Jeffries, recalled from Toledo, and Willingham, purchased from Dallas, are the other leading infield possibilities. Mulleavy still is on the list, but his shortstopping last season was such a disappointment that he is hardly worthy of consideration. He showed the need of more experience.

The best bet among the incoming outfielders is Fred Eichrodt, a former Cleveland Indian, who was drafted from New Orleans. He is a good fielder, but only a fair hitter. If he shows anything at all he might win a fly chasing job alongside of Reynolds and Jolley, thus making it possible to give Outfielder Watwood another trial as a first sacker. The complete roster follows:

Catchers—Martin Autry, Moe Berg, Frank Grube, Walter Henline, Bennie Tate.
Pitchers—Garland Braxton, Pat Caraway, Lewis Dauglas, Urban Faber, Vic Frasier, Frank Henry, Ted Lyons, Harold McKain, Jess Moore, Al Thomas, Edward Walsh, Willis Webb, Bob Weiland.
Infielders—Luke Appling, Bill Cissell, John Conz, Bob Goff, Irvine Jeffries, Willie Kamm, Johnny Kerr, Gregory Mulleavy, Ed. Olaughnessy, Ray Radcliffe, John Ryan, T. Willingham.

LETTS LEADS 48 HARRIERS TO WIN FIRST I. A. C. RUN

Dale Letts of the University of Chicago won the first annual Illinois Athletic club cross country run yesterday morning in Grant park, covering the 2½ mile course in 14:06 to finish 15 yards ahead of L. Brainard, another Maroon harrier.

L. Hutton of Illinois State Normal college was third, and E. G. Friedl of the University of Wisconsin was fourth. The University of Chicago won the team trophy with 57 points.

Emerson of Gary Wins Indiana Prep Grid Title

Gary, Ind., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Logansport High school's heavy line failed to stop Emerson's driving attack and the Gary school took the state grid championship by winning, 21 to 0. A 25 yards pass, Thompson to Kenerie, scored the first touchdown and Tiny Anderson, 130 pound half back, knifed his way through the Logan forwards for the other two.

Tulane Wins, 12 to 7, Over Louisiana State

New Orleans, La., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Tigers of Louisiana State university fought a grim battle today against the superior Tulane Greenies, and the final score was Tulane, 12, Louisiana State, 7. Twenty-five thousand spectators witnessed the game. Tulane's victory placed the Green Wave one game ahead of the Tigers for the first time in the history of the annual contest.

DETROIT BEATS LES CANADIENS IN 4TH PERIOD, 3-2

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Detroit Falcons downed the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 2, here tonight in a wild nip and tuck National league hockey match witnessed by 14,000 persons.

Tied one all in the first period, when Tommy Filmore, Falcon wingman, flipped the puck over the back of the net and Howie Morenz, teamed with Auriel Joliet to score for Montreal, the Canadiens suffered through the breaks of the final period. Joliat and Morenz were serving penalties when Herbie Lewis, Falcon wingman, broke through to score. Then Burke, Canadien defense star, was given a minor, and Lewis scored again while the Montreal team was short handed. Morenz teamed with Gagnon midway in the period to score. The lineups and summary:

CANADIENS [2].	DETROIT [3].
Hainsworth	G. Dolson
S. Mantha	R.D. Nobel
Burke	L.D. Rockburn
Morenz	C. Goodfellow

Second period: Penalties—Rockburn, Joliat, Hay [2], Lepine.
Third period: Scoring—Lewis [Noble], 3:20; Lewis [Cooper], 3:55; Morenz [Gagnon], 10:90. Penalties—Morenz, Joliat, Burke, Leduc, Hicks, Noble [2].

BRUINS, 2; SENATORS, 2.

Boston, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins regained their winning stride here tonight by coming from behind and ramming through two third period scores to set back the Ottawa Senators by a 2 to 1 score.

Eric Petting, ex-Bruin, put the Senators in the lead when he smashed the puck into the Boston cage on an assist from Harold Starr in the second period. The Bruins squared matters when Eddie Shore fed Dit Clapper with a scoring pass. The Bruins' first string forwards caged the other score. Harry Oliver scored on the rebound that followed Perk Galbraith's hard drive at Goalie Connell. The lineup:

BOSTON.	OTTAWA.
Thompson	G. Connell
Shore	R.D. Alex Smith
Ritchman	L.D. Art Smith
Barry	C. Lamb
Oliver	R.W. Finnigan
Galbraith	L.W. Kilrea

Ottawa spares—Connor, Starr, Cox, Pettinger, Touhy, Gagne.
Officials—Mallinson and Shaver.
First period—Penalties, Alex Smith, Pratt.
Second period—Scoring, Pettinger [Starr], 9:15; penalties, Kilrea, Chapman, Pettinger, Touhy.
Third period—Scoring, Clapper [Shore], :22; Oliver [Galbraith], 7:58; penalties, Clapper [2], Finnigan, Shore, Touhey.

ROSELAND PLANS BENEFIT FESTIVAL AT FENGER HIGH

A community festival under auspices of the South End Chamber of Commerce of Roseland will be held tonight at Fenger High school. Among the athletes who will appear are Joe Savoldi, Bronco Nagurski, and Red Grange of the Bears. The Illinois Woman's Athletic club will send Betty Robinson, Olympic track star; Imma Schmetis and Jane Fauntz.

Proceeds of the festival will go to the aid of the unemployed of Roseland.

Iowa Picks Oliver Sansen as Most Valuable Player

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Not to the brilliant half backs who run the ends or knife off the tackles for long gains, not to the linemen who break through opposing interference to make spectacular tackles, did the University of Iowa football squad turn to choose its most valuable player and its candidate for THE TRIBUNE trophy for the man of more value to his team in the entire Big Ten.

Instead, the Hawkeye gridders paid tribute to the man who takes the knocks as a blocker, smashes first down when it is needed, and fills the inconspicuous but vital rôle which paves the way for the grandstand heroes. Oliver Sansen, 190 pound blonde full back, is Iowa's most valuable player, his teammates decided.

Sansen a Junior.

The big junior from Alta, Ia., who still has a year of competition remaining, played a major rôle in advancing Iowa from the rôle of a doormat outfit early in the season to a team which upset Detroit, Penn State, and Nebraska and held Marquette to a lone touchdown victory.

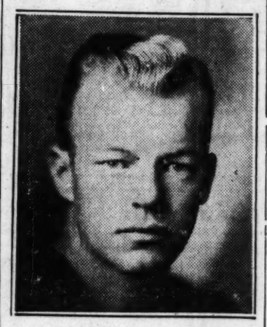

The fact that Iowa's makeshift team gained more ground in its eight games than did last year's powerful eleven was in no small measure due to Sansen's blocking ability. When Jack Warrington, sophomore half back, raced 52 yards for the touchdown which gave Iowa its surprising victory over Detroit, it was Sansen who picked off two men in the Titan secondary defense and cleared the path to the goal.

Always a Threat to Foes.

Though he had speed enough to make him a threat on runs around the weak side of the line, it was Sansen's ability to smash through center for the needed yard or two on fourth down which was his major contribution as a ball carrier. His thrusts through the line were an important factor, says Burton Ingwersen, Hawkeye coach, in keeping the enemy defense pulled in so that the Iowa open attack could function effectively.

Keen ability to diagnose enemy plays and hard, effective tackling made Sansen a major defensive cog. Toward the close of the season he developed an increasing ability to break up enemy passes after showing some weakness in this department of play in the opening games.

Hawkeyes' Best

OLIVER SANSEN.

Gains Average 3 Yards.

Sansen's ability as a line plunger is shown by the fact that he averaged more than three yards on each attempt with the ball. His 223 yards in 70 tries ranked him third among Hawkeye ground gainers. He also was third in scoring with 13 points to his credit.

Twenty-two years old, Sansen is one of the Hawkeyes' married athletes, having been wed about a year ago. He came to the university with an impressive high school record in football, basketball and track, having shown his speed as a hurdler and dash man on the cinder path.

As a freshman track man at the university, Sansen distinguished himself by putting the shot some 44 feet, and establishing a freshman hammer throw record of more than 135 feet. He will be a candidate for the varsity weight events next spring for the first time, having been out of school the second semester of last year. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Sansen, one of the few outstanding Hawkeye athletes to escape being spattered by Big Ten "slush fund" charges a year ago, earns part of his school expenses by working in a local restaurant.

VIRGINIA FANS STAY SOBER WITH DRY AGENTS' AID

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The soberest Thanksgiving on record was the comment of local officials today on the annual Virginia-North Carolina football game here to which state prohibition inspectors had been sent by Attorney General John R. Saunders as part of a state wide program to curb drinking at football games.

Twelve arrests were made on charges of possession for small quantities of liquor, but none of the arrested persons was a student.

J. N. Wood, in charge of the special detail of state prohibition officers sent here for the game, gave out a statement in which he said he saw very few under the influence of whisky.

Swedish-American Soccer Team Wins on Brum's Goal

A goal by Brum in the last thirty seconds of play enabled the Swedish-American soccer team to defeat the Norwegian-American, 3 to 2, yesterday at 4500 West Fullerton avenue. In a preliminary contest the Swedish veterans defeated the Norwegian old timers, 5 to 1.

Proceeds of both games go to the Scandinavian unemployed.

ALABAMA CLOSES YEAR WITH 13-0 WIN OVER GEORGIA

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Alabama defeated Georgia, 13 to 0, here today to close the Crimson Tide's third undefeated football season in eight years under Coach Wallace Wade. Twenty-eight thousand spectators shivered in the coldest weather of the season to witness the Thanksgiving day classic.

Today's victory gave Alabama eight Southern conference victories for the season. The tide won the conference championship in 1926 and 1927. The game with Georgia closed Wade's regime at Alabama. He goes to Duke university, Durham, N. C., next year.

Johnny Campbell Stars.

Johnny Campbell, a half back, was the outstanding star of the victory over the Bulldogs. Campbell scored the first touchdown in the opening period and his 60 yard return of a punt in the fi' ' quarter made possible the other touchdown.

Johnny Cain ran Campbell a close second for hero's honors. Cain scored the last touchdown and was responsible for several good line gains in other periods.

Alabama's first score came on a drive that started from Georgia's 47 yard line in the first quarter. Cain ripped off 22 yards over right tackle and on successive line plunges a first down was made on Georgia's 13 yard stripe. A pass, Cain to Moore, made it first down on the 1 foot line and Campbell went through for the touchdown.

Returns Punt 60 Yards.

Near the close of the fourth period Campbell received a punt from Chandler and ran it back 60 yards to Georgia's 10 yard mark, shaking off four Georgia tackles before he was brought down by Roberts. Line plays placed the ball on the 1 yard line and on the third down Gain scored the touchdown. Campbell made the extra point from placement.

St. Mary's Beats Oregon, 7-6, on Ebding's Kick

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A touchdown early in the second quarter followed by Harry Ebding's goal kick, gave St. Mary's football eleven a 7 to 6 victory over Oregon here today.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: I have just been looking through my scrapbook at some old TRIBUNE clippings telling of the bicycle races of 1893-95. One shows a picture of the old Morgan and Wright team, which consisted of A. D. Kennedy, Art Gardner, Jimmy Bowler (now an alderman), Freddy Rau (who won the 1894 Memorial day race from Grant's monument to Evanston and return), and Red Van Herrick.

I wonder how many old timers also remember such riders as Dutch Miller, C. V. Dazey, "King of Ireland," in his green tights; Jay Eaton, indoor king; Julian Fitzgerald, "Baby" Bliss, with his 300 pounds; Mike Dernberger, Tom Cooper, Eddie Bald, Major Taylor, and Wally (Wooden Shoes) Sanger.

Then there was the old cement half mile track in Garfield park. I also still carry the marks of a "spill" on the ten lap track at Tattersalls, 16th and Wentworth. And there were indoor races at Battey D, Adams and Michigan, in the high wheel days of Zimmerman, Spooner, and Johnson.

Wake: Back in the '80's, before jazz was, theater-goers were regaled with so-called topical songs referring to current celebrities of stage, lecture, platform, boxing arena, etc. One called "Climbing Up the Golden Stair" touched upon about every prominent person of the day. Repetition of its eighteen or twenty verses would require too much space, but two of them, with the accompanying chorus, may be of interest in showing the comparative trend of popular ballads then and now:

Go tell the Jersey Lily that the sight will knock her silly
When she climbs up the Golden Stair.
And John L. Sullivan—he must be a better man
If he wants to climb the Golden Stair.

Don't you hear those bells a-ringing? They're sweet I do declare,
Chiming with the angels singing high up on the Golden Stair.

And now there's Jimmy Blaine. He's going to get a pain
When they bar him from the Golden Stair.
But Bobby Ingersoll, he'll neither climb nor crawl,
Because, he says, there ain't no Golden Stair.

But still those bells keep ringing, ringing on the evening air,
Chiming with the angels singing high up on the Golden Stair.

Dowager's Husband.

Notre Dame vs. Army.

For any one who saw Notre Dame defeat Northwestern last Saturday, it will be difficult to foresee anything but defeat for the West Point cadets at Soldier field tomorrow. Yet the Army also is unbeaten this season. Its record is marred only by a tie with Yale. Caliber of opponents, however is not up to those teams met by the Irish. Army victims have been Boston U., Furman, Swarthmore, Harvard, North Dakota, Illinois, Kentucky Wesleyan, and Ursinus. Army is reported to have an unusually strong line. It will need all of that, even with Savoldi missing from the Notre Dame attack. Past games between these colleges have been featured by several upsets. Possibly, but not probably, another may occur tomorrow.

DUCKS HOP OFF FOR SOUTH AS MERCURY DROPS

BY BOB BECKER.

The cold wave and heavy snowstorms which descended upon the middle west this week swept the last flocks of migrating waterfowl out of the north country. Sportsmen in the central states must now center their shotgun activities in the bottomlands along the lower Illinois or Mississippi rivers.

Wild geese are not likely to be scared away from their favorite feeding grounds around Cairo, Ill., by cold and snow as long as the corn and other food holds out. In fact, thousands of honkers stay in that section all winter. Therefore the Mississippi river sandbars and the wheat fields above Cairo and Miller City can be considered ideal hunting country for December goose shooters.

Geese Hardy in Winter.

We have gone after the honkers several times during the month of December and always found them fat and as wary as ever even though the weather was typically midwinter. The white-throated Canada goose is a hardy rascal. Give him a break on his food supply and he doesn't mind how much of a rumpus old man winter kicks up.

The mallards usually concentrate in the lower Illinois valley with advent of freezing weather. Whether the scarcity of water holes this year will have effect on their migration is questionable. Invariably the old greenheads will stick around the frozen ponds and the big rest grounds in the lower Illinois country even though the temperature is zero or worse. Last year one of the most thrilling mallard hunts we have ever had was staged on the ice following a near zero wave.

Use Duck Boats.

We started for Lou Barkhausen's Cuba island when it was 3 above zero. The outlook for wate fowl hunting was rather dreary. In the first place it required an ice breaking tug to open up the water routes so that one could get a duck boat through. These duck boats with steel runners helped solve the navigation problem. With these a fellow could walk over the ice, hauling boat, decoys, etc., with him.

For the first 24 hours following the freeze the mallards moved very little. We sat in a blind and imitated a polar bear at ease. Then the wind changed. The weather moderated and the flight of greenheads was magnificent. They just poured into a timber hole where, with Secretary of State William Stratton and Phil Connell of Evanston, Ill., we were trying to keep the home fires burning. None of the ducks were wearing skates, but that made no difference. They piled into our decoy set as if they didn't care about ice or anything. But that's another story.

No Poor Leaf
Gets Into Medalist
Cigars Because None
Gets Into the Factory

OCCASIONALLY a poor leaf gets into most cigars in spite of care, but none can get into Medalist because none gets into the factory.

Mr. E. A. Kline, the maker of Medalist, is an old-fashioned cigar manufacturer who personally buys all Medalist tobacco and supervises the making.

It is a matter of personal pride with him to see to it that Medalist standards are maintained year in and year out, and so Medalist has never been a mass production cigar and never will be because it would not be Medalist if it were.

Walgreen recommends Medalist quality without qualification.

Feel Like a New Person In Just a Little While

People have found out that newfangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

MEAT PACKING INDUSTRY PICKS UP IN OCTOBER

Seasonal Expansion 12% Over Sept.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The meat packing industry showed improvement last month, while the furniture and automobile industries showed recessions, according to the monthly review of the Chicago federal reserve bank.

"A seasonal expansion of 12 per cent was recorded in the production of packing house products during October, compared with September, although the volume totaled 7 per cent less than in the corresponding month of 1929, principally because the marketing of live hogs remained under a year ago," the review says. "Slaughtering establishment pay rolls at the close of October showed an increase of 3 per cent in number of employés, 4 per cent in hours worked, and 3 per cent in wage payments over a month earlier.

Lower Price Levels.

"Sales billed to domestic and foreign customers aggregated 4 per cent greater in October than in the preceding month, but remained 18 per cent less than a year ago. Lessened urban and rural income in the United States, limited export business; the reduced supply of packing house products, and a lower level of prices were mainly responsible for the decline from 1929. Inventories of packing house products on Nov. 1 totaled less than for any other month in five years.

"Production by furniture manufacturers again slowed down, though only slightly, during October, as new orders fell off more than 20 per cent from the preceding month, comparing with declines of 4 and 9 per cent, respectively, over the same period of 1929 and the 1927-1928-1929 average.

Low Auto Output.

"October production of passenger automobiles totaled the lowest for that month in any year since 1921. Midwest distribution of automobiles at wholesale during October increased slightly in the aggregate over September, in contrast to a decline shown for the same period last year, but the gain was entirely due to sales to dealers of new models in one or two makes of cars.

"The recession from the preceding month in retail sales averaged about the same as during the same period last year. No improvement was indicated in the comparisons with the corresponding month of 1929. Stocks of new cars in dealers' hands continued to be reduced in number and those held at the end of October represented only a little more than half the volume of the same date a year ago. Sales of used cars declined in October from September and stocks increased slightly."

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS FOR THOSE WITHOUT FEAR, EDITOR AVERS

The following is a message to American business men from Herbert N. Casson, editor, Efficiency magazine, London, England:

"You are depressed. You think you are crippled. You are afraid of the future. You are full of fears.

"You have half the gold of the world and half of the machinery and most of the automobiles and all the skyscrapers.

"You have the greatest home market in the world and the largest corporations that the world has ever seen. You are ruled by ideas and less by tradition than any other people in the world. You have usually done what you thought you could do.

"How can it be possible that a progressive nation of 120,000,000 people can be wrecked by the speculations of a little handful in Wall street. The prices that were forced too high had to come down. Today all prices are too low.

"There is now a golden opportunity for every man who has eyes to see it. Dollars are now being sold for 30 cents. Practically every security in the United States is now being sold at less than its value. The way to create a fortune is to buy from pessimists. Pay your money and take the risk.

"Frick started his career by buying coke ovens in the slump of 1873. Carnegie made $300,000,000 by buying steel plants in slumps. Hundreds of fortunes have been made by buying from pessimists. In five years from now most American business men will belong to the "I wish I had" club. Then it will be too late to buy a dollar for 30 cents. The opportunities will be gone.

"When a horse balks, the balk is in its head, not in his legs. He moves on when he thinks he will. And when an American business man is depressed the slump is in his head. There is nothing serious to prevent him from making money if he thinks he will.

"When fear rules the will nothing can be done, but when a man casts fear out of his mind the world becomes his oyster. To lose a bit of money is nothing, but to lose hope—or lose nerve and ambition—that is what makes men cripples.

"This silly depression has gone on long enough. Get rid of it. It is inside of you. Rise and walk."

Reports Say Big Merger in Steel Brewing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 27.—A merger involving billions of dollars in steel properties throughout the east and middle west is in the making, according to rumors heard here. Bethlehem Steel will be the hub of the merger wheel, the rumors say.

Jones & Laughlin of Pittsburgh, McClintic-Marshall, Pittsburgh Steel, Levering-Garigues company, American Rolling Mill, and McKeesport Tinplate are mentioned in the rumors. Another concern is reported to be involved, but is not named.

The reports say the merger is dependent upon the outcome of the suit pending in Youngstown to halt the Bethlehem-Youngstown Sheet and Tube merger. Reply briefs may be filed in Youngstown Friday and a decision is expected from Judge Jenkins early in January.

Has Ten Plants.

Some time ago it was reported Bethlehem was negotiating for McClintic-Marshall, which has ten fabricating plants. This report cannot be confirmed by officials of either company, but no denial was made by them. Persons close to Bethlehem said the report was correct and said the process of acquisition was being completed slowly.

The Jones & Laughlin report brought immediate denial at the Pittsburgh offices. It was said this report probably was due to a statement attributed to Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem board who, being introduced to some person associated with Jones & Laughlin, is reported to have said: "O, Jones & Laughlin—well, we'll be taking them over one of these days.

A year ago there were persistent reports that Bethlehem was about to acquire McKeesport Tin Plate, but it later was said these negotiations were ended and that McKeesport Tin Plate has no deal on with any concern looking toward a merger or sale.

The American Rolling Mill part in the transaction is also without official verification. This rumor apparently developed in Youngstown at the Bethlehem-Sheet and Tube merger injunction trial.

Gives No Details.

Schwab was quoted some time ago as saying the Youngstown merger was only the beginning of a gigantic deal involving Bethlehem. He left the impression that Bethlehem's program was the greatest ever attemped in the steel world, but he gave no details.

If the companies mentioned in the present rumor are acquired by Bethlehem, and the rumors say they will be acquired by exchange of Bethlehem common stock, it would place Bethlehem alongside United States Steel in size.

Bethlehem is valued at close to $1,000,000,000. Jones and Laughlin's assets are said to be worth $220,000,000, Youngstown Sheet and Tube is valued at $235,000,000, American Rolling Mill is valued at $120,000,000, and Pittsburgh Steel and McKeesport Tin Plate have a combined value of about $35,000,000. There is no official record of the value of McClintic-Marshall.

AGGREGATE VALUE OF STOCKS LISTED ON THE NEW YORK EXCHANGE HAS FALLEN 34 BILLION DOLLARS

COTTON CLOTH OUTPUT DOWN 24% IN 10 MOS.

An analysis by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York of figures on spindle hour activity published by the bureau of census of the department of commerce shows that in the first ten months of 1930 the cotton textile industry produced approximately 1,781,466,000 yards of cloth less than in the same period in 1929, a reduction of about 24 per cent.

Questions Wisdom of Full Truck, Pipe Line Regulation

BY SCRUTATOR.

The argument frequently advanced by railroad propagandists that the loss of traffic to truck lines, waterways and pipe lines could be halted by forcing all these kinds of transportation under full regulation may be true. But its wisdom is more than questionable so far as it applies to the trucks and the pipe lines.

It may easily be agreed that many of the troubles of the railroads are due to over-regulation. To cure their over-regulation by forcing others to be over-regulated to the extent that they would have to raise their rates by flat until the railroads could put them out of business doesn't look right.

The building of highways is as old as history, and almost all of it has been done at public expense. It is true that the trucking lines didn't build their own surfaces. But neither do those hard road surfaces appear on their books as an earning asset, as does the cost of a railroad's track. As for taxation, it is unlikely that a ton-mile of freight handled by truck pays much less in taxes than a ton-mile of freight on a railroad.

Cites Gasoline Tax Cost.

Assuming that a five ton truck can be made to travel ten miles on one gallon of gasoline, it tax per ton-mile in Illinois for gasoline alone is six one-hundredths of a cent. A railroad according to official sources, gets on the average a revenue of 1.076 cents for moving one ton of freight a mile. As 6.3 cents of every dollar paid in revenue to a railroad goes for taxes, its tax cost per ston-mile is about sixty-eight one-thousands of a cent. The gasoline tax does not represent all that a truck pays to government. Other states have different rates for gas levies, some higher than Illinois.

There is no use and little sense, other than from a selfish standpoint, to try to push the truck out of the picture. As one traffic manager puts it, would it have been logical to force the first railroads to charge so much that stage coaches would have stayed in business, or to legislate against the speed of steam vessels so windjammers could continue to keep their traffic?

Comptometer Rate Method.

A large body of informed opinion holds that the rails are losing their traffic to other transportation because they are strangled by regulation, a regulation that has frozen their rate structure. The rates are being frozen because any form of government regulation administers its business with set rules. These set rules with the present interstate commerce commission take the form of inflexible mileage scales.

The railways are not often themselves responsible for such rates. They seldom of their own accord made them. Sometimes they plead for them now; so do business men. But that appears to be a necessity; arguments not based on mileage scales, the comptometer method of making rates, have little weight with the commerce commission.

A more flexible system, under which the rails could get competitive business from the trucks, would seem to be indicated. To attempt to harness an efficient form of transportation with an over-regulation the railroads themselves would like to be rid of, is no approach to solution fair to the public.

RUNCIMAN TAKES A GLOOMY VIEW OF BRITISH SHIPPING

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The Evening News quotes Walter Runciman, recently appointed deputy chairman of a number of shipping companies in the Royal Mail steam packet group, as taking a gloomy view of the shipping situation.

"Things are in bad way," he is quoted as saying. "I am afraid some of the companies may have to go, but the more important ones must be saved. There may have to be reconstruction of capital in some cases."

Turning to the more general side of the question, he is quoted as saying, "I cannot yet see a gleam of light ahead for shipping, but if world trade improved of course our prospects would be brighter."

He said the group of which he had practical control totaled thirty-four shipping companies including the R. M. S. P., White Star, and Union Castle line.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

UNIVERSAL PIPE AND RADIATOR.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30 reports net profit of $14,426, equal to 55c a share on the 7 per cent preferred, against $65,319, or 4c a share on the common stock, in the like quarter last year.

INDIAN REFINING.

Reported net loss for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $2,097,803 after charges. The auditors' report was prepared from the company's books and records without complete verification of transactions.

AMERICAN STEEL CAR LINES.

Gross operating revenues for nine months totaled $245,281, as against $182,574 for the same period last year, an increase of 34 per cent.

WACO AIRCRAFT.

For nine months ended Sept. 30 net loss was $36,918 after charges, against profit of $219,583 after charges, but before federal taxes in the first nine months of 1929.

THANKSGIVING DAY LANDMARK IN FALL MARKETS

Defines Character of Trade Situation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 27.—(AP)—All American markets observed the Thanksgiving holiday today and, since banks were also closed, there were no quotations for securities or money or foreign exchange or grain. Foreign stock and commodity markets remained open as usual.

Irrespective of the spirit which it is traditionally supposed to celebrate, Thanksgiving day has frequently been something of a landmark in our autumn markets. It occurs at a time when the character of a financial and business situation is being defined by the test of the market's attitude after the real momentum of autumn trade activities has spent itself.

Last year the day was anything but an occasion for Thanksgiving. The acute spasm on the stock exchange was over, but recovery from the month's early recurrence of outright panic had been brief and disappointing. The stock market's abbreviated session of three hours had only just been abandoned. Bank rates were being lowered and the great break in staple prices had not yet begun, yet an atmosphere of the greatest uneasiness surrounded all markets.

Two Years Ago.

Thanksgiving day two years ago occurred under highly contrasting circumstances. The week had witnessed the crest of that year's excited stock speculation, "Radio" crossing 400, as compared with 228 a month before and 90 in Thanksgiving week of the preceding year. With average prices 30 per cent above the average of a few months before and headed for a further rise of nearly 40 per cent, Wall street was ready to return to Divine Providence such thanks as it did not consider exclusively due to its own judgment of intrinsic values.

Conditions which prevail in the present Thanksgiving celebration differ from either of the two past years, and so does the state of mind. For surrounding circumstances, one would probably have to go back to 1921, when United States Steel sold on the eve of Thanksgiving day at 82, General Motors at 11, Anaconda at 44, Atchison at 87 and Pennsylvania at 34. Most of these prices, after allowing for subsequently altered capital structure, were less than one-half the prices commanded by the same stocks this Thanksgiving week. That was so, notwithstanding the curious fact that, at this time in 1921, Wall street had already begun to pluck up courage and that a fairly long list of active shares, however one may judge the prices nowadays, had actually reached in the autumn the highest level of the year.

Extent of Decline.

But all such considerations are relative. The moderate hopefulness of this week in 1921 prevailed in spite of average staple prices whose decline had been more than three times as great as in the present period, with prices of grain 67 per cent below the highest of 1920, whereas the fall from the highest of 1929 has this time been only 29 per cent. The autumn stock market, nine years ago, provided therefore a singular contrast to this autumn.

That may have been because the Wall street of November, 1921, was able to see more clearly into the future than the Wall street of this season, or it may have been because the sweepingly destructive work of that older readjustment had converged on industry and on commodity markets, whereas the stock exchange had to bear the full brunt of it this year. The explanation that the contrast indicates a condition in our basic industries sounder at the end of 1921 than at the end of 1930, is the one inference which no one can seriously draw.

Observers Believe Trade is Now Scraping Bottom

With most competent observers agreed that the business depression is "scraping bottom" and that the next movement will be toward increased activity, bankers have lately been turning their attention to the problem of determining from which direction the first manifestations of better buying will appear. In this connection there has been discussion lately of the state of railroad equipment. In particular it has been pointed out that the railroads are operating a large number of locomotives which, judging by their years of honest service, merit being placed on the retirement list. The suggestion is advanced that increased expenditures for equipment by the railroads may soon become necessary. Among a number of observers the opinion exists that the automobile industry may lead the way to better buying, while still others think that a large number of industries will simultaneously feel the effects of replacement demand and report a uniform expansion of activity when the time comes.

Several times during the last few days when large bond issues have been brought out, the oft-repeated announcement of a year or so ago: "The subscription books have been closed, the issue having been oversubscribed" has been employed. In other words, the bond market is beginning to show definite signs of picking up. Taken as a whole, recent offerings of bonds have been of higher grade than usual, since a second grade bond is scarcely likely to meet with a warm reception just because it is a bond. Very little stock financing, other than the sales of shares in fixed investment trusts, has been done lately, but this does not imply that the investing public has an appetite for any and all bonds.

The raw sugar market has become almost stagnant awaiting the outcome of the conference scheduled for tomorrow between the Javan sugar growers and the Cuban committee headed by Thomas L. Chadbourne. The Cuban party arrived in Europe yesterday and following the Javan conference a general conference representing all sugar exporting countries will be held. Traders and refiners are both agreed that failure of the conference will send sugar down, while success will send it up, but so far no factor has been sure enough of the outcome to speculate upon the probable results.

The current holiday season has witnessed a notable absence of the normal firming of money rates which occurs just before Thanksgiving. Ordinarily heavy currency demands are made upon the banks to defray the public's holiday making expenditures and the resultant tightening of money rates extends through the Christmas season and over the end of the year. This year, whether because the celebrations are to be of a more modest nature or because money is so plentiful that the extra currency demand has little effect upon the market, rates have been virtually unaffected.

The decline of the output of crude oil last week to below 2,300,000 barrels daily brought production to the lowest level since the discovery of the Seminole field in Oklahoma about four years ago. The decline in output was the result of the proration agreements and the refusal of many leading purchasing companies to increase their crude oil stocks at the present prices for crude oil. Despite the fact that domestic consumption of petroleum products has increased materially during this period, improved refinery operations have largely taken care of the increased demand.

The monthly report of automobile production shows that the downward trend from last year is continuing despite the fact that at this time in 1929 there was a sharp decline in output. It is maintained, however, that dealers are probably in a better condition at present than for some time, with their stocks well reduced. The arrival of new 1931 models will find them prepared to devote their full time to sales of new cars at a time when it is felt many 1929 purchasers will be ready to buy again.

WINNIPEG WHEAT PRICES DECLINE NEARLY 3 CENTS

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gains made yesterday were wiped out today in the Winnipeg wheat market by a drop that carried prices down to two and one-quarter to two and seven-eighths cents a bushel lower than Wednesday's closing prices. Cash wheat closed at 61 cents a bushel and December futures were down to 59⅜ cents a bushel.

Liverpool came sharply lower and this together with a weak opening at Buenos Aires was chiefly responsible for the decline.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains was moderate, with values following the decline of the wheat future market.

The trade was surprised by Broomhall's estimate of the Argentine crop. Broomhall forecast an exportable surplus of 205,000,000 bushels, indicating a total crop of 280,000,000 bushels as compared with about 140,000,000 last year. This estimate was much larger than any of the private figures released recently.

In Toronto Dr. W. W. Swanson, economic adviser to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at the recent imperial conference in London, told a luncheon meeting of the Empire club that "We must find some method of inducing buyers of wheat in Great Britain to return to their customary preference for Canadian wheat."

"At the present time," he said, "wheat is selling net at a price set by fair and open competition, but at levels to which it has been lowered by the slave labor of the soviet republic, driven by a heartless group of fanatics who do not scruple to starve a nation in order to make a case."

Premier Bennett's proposals of preferential rates within the British Empire would, if carried out, result in an increased price of wheat in Britain, Dr. Swanson declared.

Decides to Recommend New World Bank Policy

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The committee of directors of banks of issue has decided to recommend a new policy for the Bank of International Settlements, designed to eliminate radical fluctuations in national exchanges. The International bank council meets Dec. 12.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Public offering is being made today of an issue of $14,000,000 Northern Indiana Public Service company first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, due Dec. 1, 1970, by Halsey, Stuart & Co., at 92 and interest, yielding about 4.96 per cent. The proceeds of the issue will be used for the completion of an electric generating station now under construction, for the expansion of its general gas and electric service to provide for the rapid growth of its territory, to provide funds for the retirement of underlying bonds, and for other corporate purposes.

J. P. Morgan & Co., Chase Securities corporation, and Barr Brothers & Co., Inc., have extended a $60,000,000 short term 2¼ per cent loan to New York City.

Stockholders of New York Steam corporation have subscribed for the entire issue of 120,000 shares of common recently offered at $50 a share.

Sparks-Withington.

I am thinking of buying some Sparks-Withington stock. Will you kindly give me a report on this company and your judgment on this investment?—W. J. F.

The Sparks-Withington company was incorporated in Ohio in 1919 to succeed a concern formed three years earlier. Originally a maker of automobile horns and other accessories sold under the name "Sparton," the company in 1925 began manufacturing radio receivers and this part of its business now accounts for the greater portion of sales and profits, although the company is still an important factor in the accessory field.

Sales and earnings in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, were less than in the preceding year, but they were still considerably ahead of those reported for the year ended June 30, 1928. In the latest year net sales were $14,850,163, against $17,282,162 in 1929, and $7,839,874 in 1928. Net profit was $1,738,617, or $2.55 per share on the 672,106 no par common shares outstanding. There were also outstanding 3,649 6 per cent preferred shares (par $100), on which dividends were earned 79.41 times. In the preceding year net income was $2,510,322, against $1,212,606 in the year ended June 30, 1928, and $69,057 in the six months ended June 30, 1927.

Financial position in June was satisfactory. Current assets were $5,137,327 and current liabilities were $892,280, leaving a net working capital of $4,245,047. Surplus was $3,416,320. There was no funded debt.

Common dividends are 25c quarterly This stock is medium grade and somewhat speculative at present.

Bonds Sold by a Bank.

If a bank from which you had purchased some bonds would close would you lose your money? Would the people who have bank accounts get their money first?—Mrs. S. G.

When you buy a bond you are lending your money to the company that issues the bonds, not to the bank or investment house that underwrites or sells them. The safety of your investment depends upon the value of the assets securing the loan and the ability of the borrower to meet interest and sinking fund requirements and to pay the principal when due.

Should the underwriting firm or bank through which you purchased the bond be forced to close the soundness of the bond would not necessarily be impaired. Bonds sold by a bank are not obligations of the bank.

SAYS CALUMET, PHELPS DODGE MAY NOT MERGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 27.—G. R. Campbell, president of Calumet and Arizona asserts the merger of Calumet and Arizona and Phelps-Dodge corporation probably would not take place for a year and might never take place. He added many stockholders were opposed to the consolidation.

The company in the last few days has further curtailed production 14 per cent, bringing output to the monthly rate of around 6,300,000 pounds, compared with 7,500,000 previously.

Mr. Campbell said for the entire year production would be around 95,000,000 pounds, against 130,000,000 last year. He said there probably would, regarding fourth-quarter earnings, be none and "if we can avoid a loss for the quarter we will be very well satisfied."

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Worst Fog of Season Delays London Workers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Thousands of Londoners were late for work today when the worst fog of the season came up suddenly at 9 a. m. The railways and omnibus lines installed a special fog service. The fog cleared after a few hours.

RAILROAD NOTES

Work will begin next week on the final link of one of the most complicated and difficult engineering projects undertaken in secent years, it was announced yesterday, when the Pennsylvania railroad begins lowering its tracks in the north tube under the Hudson river, through which all Pennsylvania passenger trains are routed westbound out of New York.

Revenue freight cars handled by the following roads for the week ended Nov. 22 follow:

Metropolitan Corporation of Canada Limited
First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds
NOTICE OF ADJOURNED MEETING OF BONDHOLDERS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Meeting of the holders of the First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds of METROPOLITAN CORPORATION OF CANADA, LIMITED (hereinafter called the "Company") issued and outstanding under a First Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated as of 1st October, 1927, and a Deed in Notarial form ancillary thereto (hereinafter collectively called the "Trust Deed") both executed by the Company to and in favour of MONTREAL TRUST COMPANY as Trustee for the Bondholders, was held at the office of the Trustee at Montreal, Canada, on Monday, the 20th day of October, 1930 for the purpose of considering and if deemed advisable of passing an extraordinary resolution or resolutions within the meaning of the said Trust Deed for the following purposes, namely:—

(1) To sanction and approve the release from the hypothec, mortgage, pledge and charge created by the said Trust Deed of the cases from the Company as Lessor, to METROPOLITAN STORES LIMITED and METROPOLITAN CHAIN STORES, INC., as Co-Lessees, of the lands and premises described in the Second Schedule to the said Trust Deed and to sanction and approve the cancellation of the said leases and the release of the said co-Lessees from all their obligations in and under the said leases provided that contemporaneously with such release and cancellation new leases of the same lands and premises on the same terms and conditions be executed by the Company, as Lessor and METROPOLITAN STORES LIMITED and F. W. GRAND-SILVER STORES, INC., as Co-Lessees, to take effect upon the execution thereof and be assigned to the Trustee as part of the mortgaged premises;

(2) To sanction and approve such modification of or change in the provisions of the said Trust Deed as may be necessary or advisable as a result of the cancellation of the said existing leases, and the substitution thereof of new leases as aforesaid.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that by reason of the fact that a sufficient principal amount of Bonds was not represented at the said Meeting, the extraordinary resolution or resolutions above referred to were not voted upon and the Meeting was adjourned until Tuesday, the 11th day of November, 1930, and on that date for the same reason the Meeting was further adjourned until Monday, the 8th day of December, 1930, upon which date at the hour of eleven o'clock of the forenoon the adjourned Meeting will be held at the office of the Trustee, 511 Place d'Armes, Montreal, Canada.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that at the adjourned Meeting there will be considered and if deemed advisable, passed as extraordinary resolution or resolutions of the nature referred to above.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the following regulations will apply for the purpose of enabling the holders of Bearer Bonds to be present and vote at the adjourned Meeting without producing their Bonds, and of enabling them to vote by proxy.

The holder of Bearer Bond or Bonds desiring to be present and vote without producing his Bond or Bonds at the Meeting or to vote thereat by proxy, may deposit or exhibit such Bond or Bonds with or to any Bank or Trust Company, and any person producing at the Meeting a Voting Certificate signed by or on behalf of such Bank or Trust Company in a form satisfactory to the Trustee, or producing such a Certificate with a proxy signed by the Bondholder named in such Certificate, shall be entitled to vote at the Meeting in the same manner as though such person produced at the Meeting the Bond or Bonds mentioned in such certificate.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that holders of registered Bonds may, by instrument in writing under their hands, appoint any person as their PROXY to vote at the Meeting for them. Save as aforesaid, the only persons who shall be recognized at the Meeting as holders of any Bond or Bonds or as entitled to vote at the Meeting in respect thereof shall be the persons who produce such Bonds at the Meeting and the Registered Bondholders.

All Voting Certificates and Proxies already given for the Meeting of October 20th 1930 will be valid and effective at the adjourned Meeting.

DATED at MONTREAL, this 12th day of November, 1930.

Trustee.
By F. G. Donaldson,
General Manager.

Copies of forms of Proxy and Voting Certificates may be obtained at the office of Montreal Trust Company, Montreal or Toronto, and at the Agency of The Royal Bank of Canada in New York City, and at the office of Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Company in Chicago.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE OF REDEMPTION OF CERTIFICATES OF BENEFICIAL INTEREST IN MUNICIPAL INVESTMENT TRUST ISSUED UNDER AGREEMENT DATED AS OF OCTOBER 1, 1929, BY FIDELITY TRUST COMPANY OF DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Notice is hereby given to the holders of Certificates of Beneficial Interest in Municipal Investment Trust, dated October 1, 1929, executed by Matilda R. Wilson, as Depositor, to Fidelity Trust Company, Detroit, Michigan, Trustee, that the said Depositor has, in accordance with the terms of said Certificates and the agreement under which said Certificates are issued, signified her election to redeem Two Million [$2,000,000.00] Dollars Face Value of said Certificates, at their face value, plus a premium of One [1%] Per Cent, plus the accrued interest to December 22, 1930, and that in accordance with such election the Trustee has designated by lot the following Certificates for such redemption.

The Depositor has further signified that money will be deposited with the Trustee on or before December 22, 1930, for the payment of said Certificates of Beneficial Interest, and the Trustee hereby notifies the holders of the following Certificates that as and if said money is received by said Trustee, it will pay said Certificates upon presentation at its office at 600 Griswold Street, Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan.

All Certificates so presented shall have coupons maturing April 1, 1931, and subsequent, attached thereto, and will be payable out of the funds so deposited with the Trustee by the said Depositor.
